HITLER FAILS TO WIN HELM

GOAT GLAND DOC RAMS SELF INTO KANSAS POLITICS

Out for Governor as a Sainted Martyr.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Topeka, Kas., July 31.—[Special.]—Goat glands are the enthralling motif in Kansas politics this summer. Oldline politicians are being shocked out of their shoes by a new wheat belt phenomenon—a dream of rejuvenation seems to be sweeping the prairies as did populism a generation ago in the sockless and be whiskered days. It centers in the campaign for governor of Dr. John R. Brinkley of Milford, a gland transplanter whose license to practice in Kansas was revoked two years ago by a state board on grounds of "unprofessional conduct and gross immorality."

DR. JOHN R. BRINKLEY.

Brinkley is not entered in tomorrow's primaries [Aug. 2], but he has filed as an independent candidate for governor and is already barnstorming for the November election. Two years ago, in the 1930 election, after he had been barred from practice, 183,000 votes were cast for Doc Brinkley for governor. They were all written in, his name not being printed on the ballot, and the general talk since has been that he actually got enough votes to win, many ballots being cast out because of flaws.

Drawing Large Crowds.

Meanwhile the old "fountain of youth" complex in the body politic still seems to be working. Brinkley is drawing larger crowds than any one else. In Topeka ten days ago he pulled an audience larger than ever greeted Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt in the Moose days, President Taft, William Jennings Bryan in the 16 to 1 days, and that surpassed the Al Smith crowd here four years ago.

Psychologists attribute it perhaps to the dreams of middle aged farmers of satyrs capering over the landscape in pursuit of woodland nympha. Kansas politics for the time has become a mixture of pagan mythology and a demagoguery of new technique. Meantime only slumbrous interest is displayed in the state primaries; the presidential campaign has not got under way, the Kansas farmers apparently being cold on Hoover, but not so hot on Roosevelt and more concerned in whaling the federal farm board than anything else.

In it all the apprehension of the politicians is that the gland doctor may be elected in November and begin pasturing his Toggenburg goats on the state house lawns.

Poses as Martyr.

Brinkley is posing as a martyr. That is accounted one of the holds he has on the populace. The mixing of piety with politics has been a characteristic in Kansas for more than a generation. A flavor of sanctimony has been a campaign asset. For years Kansas governors became ex-officio members of the directing board of the Anti-Saloon league. Big shot politicians, some of them dry talking, wet drinking, have had an aptitude for making talks from pulpits.

The gland doctor has swiped all the holier than thou stuff that has been an adjunct of Kansas politics for so long and has added embellishments of his own. He carries along his own pulpit so to speak, and a Methodist minister, the Rev. Samuel Cookson, his pastor, to make the opening prayer, before he makes his campaign speeches. The Doc built a brick church in his home town, a fact that is not being hid under a bushel—not in a state with so many Methodist voters.

Brinkley makes his tour with a big truck, "Ammunition Train No. 1," which carries a complete broadcasting outfit. There are amplifiers and a remote control hookup with a radio station, so that folks in the remote villages can tune in. At the Topeka rally the preacher opened the meeting with an invocation which laid the Brinkley candidacy before the great White Throne. Afterward the gland doctor asked the minister to lead the audience in singing America. "When any of you feel like going 'Red,' you ought to sing our national anthem," said the doctor.

Makes Alluring Promises.

After laying on the ecclesiastical flavoring in this way, Brinkley begins to croon over the microphone. In

$6,527,955 TAX WARRANTS MAY PAY TEACHERS

Board to Make Its Decision Today.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A pay day—in tax warrants—may be arranged by the school board at its special session today.

If this tax warrant pay day is ordered by the trustees it will be the largest amount of compensation distributed by the board at one time in the last 14 months. The total will be $5,428,340, more than double any payment in more than a year.

This sum is still owing on 1931 salaries. The board ran out of cash in April of last year. In July it issued scrip, which consisted of participation certificates in a trust. The scrip was accepted by public utilities, department stores, railroads, and other concerns. But some of the teachers, on advice of their organization leaders, refused to take it.

Teachers Change Their Minds.

They appealed to the courts and Judge Philip J. Finnegan ruled that the board had no authority to create such a trust. Then the trustees issued tax anticipation warrants, in lieu of cash, as compensation to employés. Some of the teachers declined to accept those.

Now the teachers who refused the board's paper say they are willing to take it. The board will be in a position, after the next city council meeting on Thursday, to deal out $6,527,955 in 1931 tax anticipation warrants, enough to pay the overdue 1931 salaries of $5,428,340 and other pressing obligations totaling $854,955.

In the early part of this year Mayor Cermak was able to borrow about $12,000,000, which was turned over to the teachers in cash. As security for part of those loans the school board put up $3,400,000 of 1931 tax anticipation warrants.

Source of the $6,527,955.

By action of the city council at its meeting last Thursday, the city is to return to the school board this $3,400,000 of 1931 warrants and to receive in its stead the same amount of 1932 school warrants. Those 1931 warrants will then be available for distribution to the teachers and other school employés who refused warrants and scrip last year.

In addition the school board has $1,363,405 of 1931 warrants which were held in the trust as security for the scrip issued, $215,850 of warrants in the hands of the secretary of the board, and $1,448,700 of warrants properly issued by the board but unsigned by the mayor and city controller. The total is $6,527,955.

Decline in Compensation.

If the teachers had accepted these warrants last year, they would have received 10 to 15 per cent more compensation, in cash, than they can get now. Last year these warrants were accepted by the landlord, butcher, grocer and others at par and were selling on the open market only a few points below par.

On Saturday holders of 1931 warrants were offering them for sale at 84 and the buyers were offering 81.

If all the $5,428,340 in 1931 back salaries are paid in 1931 tax warrants, the employes will offer a loss—or a decrease in compensation—of 16 to 20 per cent, at present quotations. That means a money loss on the whole of $828,535 to $1,085,668. If all the warrants are dumped on the market at one time the price will probably be forced down, and the loss to the teachers will be correspondingly greater.

One Group May Go to Court.

If the board declines to issue these warrants for the teachers, it is rumored that one teachers' organization will try to compel the board to do so through court proceedings. If the board does issue them, it is said, the credit of the board will be further impaired.

The banks have so far refused to purchase any of the 1931 tax warrants of the board's educational fund. The tax roll for 1931 has not yet been prepared, and consequently there is no trustworthy way of estimating the amount of taxes which will be assessed or collected for 1931.

Therefore it is impossible to forecast whether the board will have issued more 1931 warrants on its educational fund than will be paid by the 1931 taxes collected. That is said to be one reason why the 1931 educational warrants are selling in the low 80s instead of at 94 to 96 as are the warrants of the city corporate fund.

At its meeting today the school board may also adopt a resolution request-

U. S. Dry Slain as He Arrests a Bootlegger

Eugene Jackson, 34 years old, a Negro prohibition agent, was shot six times and killed yesterday by a Negro bootlegger whom he tried to arrest after receiving delivery of a gallon of moonshine. Police sought Drew Clark, 35 years old, 3817 Indiana avenue, for the killing, which took place a few doors from Jackson's home, 3806 South Park way.

EUGENE JACKSON.

J. R. Fletcher, a Negro federal narcotics agent, was with Jackson at the time and described the shooting to police. He and Jackson, he said, were sitting in the latter's automobile when they saw a Negro carry a package into a neighboring building.

Jackson called the man over, Fletcher said, and said to him, "I'm going to give a party. Can you get me a gallon of liquor?"

Warns the Agent.

"This looks funny to me," the man replied, according to Fletcher. "I'll bring you the liquor, but if anything happens I'm going to start shooting."

Half an hour later the man returned with a package. He gave it to Jackson, who unwrapped it on the spot, disclosing a gallon jug of moonshine. Jackson smelled the liquor, then displayed his star and told the bootlegger that he was under arrest.

The man whipped out a revolver and fired six shots, all of which struck Jackson. The gunman abandoned the automobile in which he had made the delivery and fled on foot.

Fletcher and police took Jackson to the Provident hospital, where he died within a few minutes. Lieut. Patrick Bonner of the Stanton avenue station, traced the license on the abandoned car to Clark. A squad raided his home, but did not find him.

Friend of Jackson.

Fletcher said that he was a personal friend of Jackson, and was not with him on official business. Fletcher's superior, Thomas F. Cummings, assistant supervisor of narcotics agents in the Chicago district, said, however, that there was "nothing unusual" in his men assisting prohibition agents.

The prohibition department began an investigation of the shooting. Gilbert F. Lapply, attorney for the local unit, questioned witnesses, including Fletcher and Jackson's widow. It had not been decided last night whether to ask that Clark, if apprehended, be tried in federal court, which would be possible under the law. Lapply said he believed the case was "one for the state courts."

Records of the prohibition department show that on Jan. 8, 1930, Jackson shot and killed a Negro, William Bell, during a dry raid in Washington, D. C. Jackson and the agents who were with him asserted that Jackson fired only after Bell drew a revolver. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in that case.

News dispatches from Washington related that Jackson had been arrested eleven times in that vicinity, once for assault with intent to kill a policemen. The other arrests were for traffic violations. The alleged assault occurred in Hyattsville, Md.

FEAR MICHIGAN GIRL, 17, VICTIM OF KIDNAPERS

Ludington, Mich., July 31.—(AP)—State and county police searched a lonely swamp west of Freesoil today for Evalyn Sanford, pretty 17 year old farm girl, feared to be the victim of kidnapers.

She was last reported seen about 10 o'clock last night, when a neighbor saw her walking along the road leading through the swamp.

Another neighbor, George Buege, told police today he heard a woman scream last night as he was walking along the swamp road, but that he could see nothing in the darkness. Investigators said they found tire tracks along the road and beside them marks indicating a struggle.

Gronau Plans Pacific Hop on Leaving Here

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German trans-Atlantic flyer, whose Europe to Chicago flight was interrupted near Detroit on Saturday by motor trouble, announced last night in Detroit that he plans to fly over the Pacific ocean in his plane, the Groenland Wal, after his Chicago visit.

Repairs on the plane were going forward at Pontiac, Mich., yesterday and it was expected that Capt. von Gronau and his crew of three would fly to Chicago tomorrow.

The announcement of the German aviator's projected Pacific flight was the first definite statement on his future plans. Reports had been current during the last week that his trans-Atlantic hop was only one phase of a round the world journey.

"After our visit in Chicago we'll fly north," said Capt. von Gronau. "We'll go over Winnipeg and toward Vancouver. We'll probably strike out over the Pacific at a point 300 miles off Vancouver."

Capt. von Gronau said he had no definite idea as to the exact time he would fly the Pacific. There is no hurry, he said, adding that he would first stop at a lake near Winnipeg. "I have an invitation to go fishing there, and I like fishing," he explained.

Inspection of the Groenland Wal at Pontiac yesterday revealed that four pistons were burned out when a broken water line let the engine overheat. The motor was reinstalled last night. Several test flights are expected to be made today.

SPEEDBOAT RIPS THROUGH MOTOR CRUISER IN RACE

A riderless speed boat, traveling 45 miles an hour, crashed into the side of the Roamer, a 34 foot motor cruiser, in the lake lagoon off 23d street yesterday. The accident occurred during the Century of Progress outboard motor boat regatta. Five persons were imperiled.

The speed boat, in rounding a turn, threw out its driver, Fred Harvey of Milwaukee. The boat then dashed on and struck the Roamer, cleaving through from one side to the other like a knife. It pierced a small compartment which had been vacated less than 60 seconds before by Mrs. Roma Elliott, wife of O. E. Elliott, 4423 Malden street, owner of the cruiser. Aboard the cruiser in addition to the Elliotts were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heckler and the Hecklers' daughter, Jean, 9 years old.

Capt. John O. Anderson of the central coast guard rescued Harvey. The crew then took off the Elliotts and Hecklers and towed the Roamer, with the speed boat still sticking through it, to the Navy pier.

Widow Pollak to Bury Her Victim Today

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

For Joseph Pollak, middle aged alcohol dealer, funeral services in the chapel at 4605 South Hermitage avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon will close his earthly history. For his dusky haired, blue eyed, self-made widow, Dorothy, the trip to his grave in the Bohemian National cemetery will be only another chapter in the hectic career on which she embarked last Wednesday night, when she put a bullet through his head in their home at 1936 Garfield boulevard.

In her cell in the county jail, where many another, but seldom a prettier, husband slayer had preceded her, the slim, marcelled and manicured brunette sat yesterday in solitude—more intent on her costume than her crime. Every now and then she lifted her head to inquire whether her mother, Mrs. Marie Mysza, had arrived with the various articles she had been instructed to fetch to the jail, that Dorothy might be a credit at his last rites to the husband she shot.

Costume Her Chief Concern.

Her ensemble of black for the funeral has occupied far more of the 26 year old widow's attention than misgivings about her fate when the inquest is reconvened next Saturday.

Assistant State's Attorney M. V. Ostrowski, who is conducting an investigation into the tragedy, asked for the inquest delay in order to find, if possible, a knife which Mrs. Pollak claims her husband was brandishing a rush toward her when the automatic pistol in her hand spat flame and lead. No small paring knife, such as she mentioned, has been found.

Indications were that the latest and comeliest of Cook county's feminine murder defendants would be allowed to gratify her reiterated desire to attend her husband's funeral only under heavy police guard. Permission for her attendance was granted by Judge John Sbarbaro, though she has not been admitted to bail.

Father to Attend Funeral.

She probably will not be the only principal in the case to watch the lowering of the casket. Her father, Simon Mysza, and her cousin, Mrs. Victoria Schultz, both of whom were present when the fatal shot was fired and both of whom will probably be called as witnesses, are expected to go to the services.

It could not be learned yesterday whether Mrs. Julia Cebulski, characterized by Mrs. Pollak as a woman she had reason to be jealous of, would pay her last respects to the slain man. Mrs. Cebulski and her husband, Frank, who reside at 1512 West 47th street, deny that Pollak, whose employé Cebulski had been, was other than a friend of many years.

They resent the contemptuous comment of Mrs. Pollak that she wouldn't have cared so much "if she (Mrs. Cebulski) had been pretty, but she isn't."

Will Dorothy Go Free?

Attachés of the Criminal court have smiled derisively during the last few days at any inference that a woman as pretty as Dorothy Pollak would ever be found guilty by a jury. It never has happened like that, they know, in the cases that crowd the archives, unless the lady who fired the gun had thick ankles or didn't know how to wield a lipstick.

"Tillie Klimek went to the penitentiary because she never had been to a beauty parlor," one writer reported in 1922 of the squat peasant woman who fed arsenic to four husbands and collected their insurance.

Sabelle Nitti, too, was "a homely creature" who hammered her mate to death. She was sentenced to hang. After spending a year in jail she learned about powder puffs and decent hats and she was finally freed.

Other Defendants Recalled.

Gallant jurymen sat and listened—and looked—in turn at the exotic Cora Orthwein and the fair skinned Lillian Rowland; at Belva Gaertner, the fastidiously groomed cabaret singer; at the blonde Anna McGinnis and her stunning sister, Myna Ploch; at Beulah Annan, the spirituelle, most famous of them all. None of them forgot their complexions, their handkerchiefs, or their alibis. They all went free.

Dorothy Pollak, say the old timers, isn't too optimistic in predicting that she'll go into the beauty business "when I get out of this mess."

Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart, Novelist's Husband, Ill

He was brought to Utica Saturday from Old Forge, where the couple have been vacationing. Mrs. Rinehart is staying at Old Forge, north of Utica.

GERMAN VOTERS KEEP FASCISTS FROM MAJORITY

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—[Monday.]—Germany elected a new reichstag yesterday. A total of 36,976,000 votes out of a potential 44,000,000 were cast and 602 seats—the largest reichstag ever chosen—were filled, bringing to an end a bitter and bloody campaign in which more than 100 persons were killed.

No party, not even Adolf Hitler's mighty National Socialists, was able to ascend to power. As a result, Germany today is facing a chaotic political future.

Results of Election.

The results of yesterday's election were:

Hitler's Nazis more than doubled their strength in the reichstag, but could not constitute a majority. The former Austrian corporal and paper hanger will hold 229 seats, whereas he held only 107 in the reichstag elected in 1930.

Chancellor Franz von Papen and his "neutral cabinet" of aristocrats and militarists apparently tightened their grip on Germany's rule as a result of the deadlock. This iron fisted government is now in a position to dare the reichstag to throw it out.

The Socialists, the bulwarks of the republic and who long were the reichstag's largest party, were shoved into second place.

Reds Show Gain.

Ernest Thaelmann's communists, who take their orders from Moscow, increased their strength, grabbing 89 seats, or twelve more than they held in 1930.

The Catholic Centrists, led by former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, who was forced to give way to Von Papen, again emerged holding the balance of power with the aid of the Bavarian party, which is also largely Catholic.

Under such a situation, anything may happen. The government is as perplexed as the leaders of the political groups. All conceded that it will be practically impossible to get a working majority in the new reichstag.

Standing By Parties.

President Paul von Hindenburg has assured Von Papen that if the reichstag proves recalcitrant he will not hesitate to dissolve it again. Its strange mixture was shown early today in the apportionment from the right through the center to the left. The figures, with six seats not definitely allotted, follow:

National Socialists [Hitler]	229
German Nationalists [monarchists]	37
Populists	7
Christian Socialists	2
Economic party	2
Farmers' party	1
Agricultural alliance	2
Farmers' federation	2
Centrists [Catholic]	75
Bavarian People's party	21
State's party	2
Socialists	133
Communists	89

The contest was largely between the right and left, the voters abandoning the "middle of the road" course. The six parties of the right are considered the supporters of Chancellor von Papen. But the Hitlerites want a "dictatorship" along the Fascist lines. Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalists want restoration of the monarchy.

How Parties Stand.

Parties of the Right.
National Socialists	13,441,000
German Nationalists	2,143,000
Populists	429,000
Economic party	147,000
Christian Socialists	356,000
Farmers	90,000
Total	16,606,000
Parties of the Center.
Centrists	4,534,000
Bavarian	1,080,000
Total	5,614,000
Socialists	7,752,000
Communists	5,223,000
State's party	372,000
Total	13,347,000
Scattered	1,409,000

Before the election Nazi leaders uttered two threats. One was that "heads will roll." The other was that the National Socialists will seize the government, win or lose. The last threat loomed more important than ever last night.

The "storm troopers," young brown shirted followers of Hitler, were concentrated at the outskirts of Berlin. When the returns showed that their idol had fallen short of gaining complete control of the reichstag, they cried:

"On to Berlin!"

Try to Placate Men.

"Our leader will see to it that his principles are enforced by the government," they cried as they dashed from camp to camp.

The impetuous youths, who for weeks have been told that "absolute power will come to Hitler at the elections," at first lent unwilling ears to their leaders, who preached coöperation with Chancellor von Papen's government.

Hitler leaders returned to the capital and told authorities that the "brown shirt" army was under their control and that they had induced it to accept the government of Von Papen and the real boss of the reich—Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, minister of defense.

But the Republicans were skeptical. They mobilized their semi-military organizations—the "iron front," Republican reichsbanner men, Socialist hammer squads, and boys of Catholic militant organizations.

Authorities, too, took no chances. Police patrolled the streets of the capital with carbines slung over their shoulders. But a thunderstorm at 1 a. m. dampened the ardor of the Nazis, and they began to return to their homes.

Von Papen Celebrates.

Chancellor von Papen and his cabinet celebrated today. They are convinced that none of the parties is strong enough to dictate to them. They also believe that the results make it easier for Hitler to begin to coöperate openly with them and "finally share the burden of responsibility."

"The results demonstrate the impossibility of governing through the parliamentary system and undoubtedly have driven home to the masses the need of putting the nation in the hands of strong men instead of a parliament," leaders of the Von Papen and Hitler groups said today.

Spokesmen for Hitler and the chancellor announced that all of the measures they had planned will "be carried out according to the provisions of the constitution." The new reichstag will convene at the end of August. Meanwhile, Von Papen and his friends will prepare for a battle to retain their grip.

Von Papen Woos Bruening.

Von Papen, who began his political career as a member of the Centrist party but was expelled later, will try to win the support of former Chancellor Bruening.

The chancellor is preparing a new law giving the Catholic church greater influence in the schools and he will offer this to the Centrists as the price of their coöperation.

Republicans are crestfallan. They are banking on the hope that Von Papen and the Hitlerites will not come to terms when it comes to a division of power in the government. The Republicans realize that the Nazis, as the strongest party, will insist on the lion's share of the spoils which the "monocled" government does not want to yield.

Von Papen is relying on the secret pact with Hitler. He believes this pact will end party squabbles and "that Germany now can devote herself to constructive work."

Eleven Killed in Riots.

Eleven were killed in election riots Saturday night. Hitlerites and communists fought each other all night long, trying to tear down each other's banners. Scores were injured.

Gen. von Schleicher went to the polls today for the first time in his life, though he is 50 years old. As a soldier he was not allowed to vote, but now as minister of defense he can cast his ballot.

Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, who at the last presidential election announced that he would vote for Hitler, left Potsdam last night with his family for his estate at Oels, Silesia. Die hard monarchists waited in the vainly for hours before the Potsdam palace to catch a glimpse of him marching to the republican polls.

The other Hohenzollern princes Prince Oscar, the former kaiser's fourth son, voted in Potsdam. He was accompanied by his wife. Prince Eitel Friedrich, his older brother, a portly gentleman, walked to the polling booth. He had placed his car at the disposal of Nationalist party officials.

Hitler Claims Power.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 1.—[Monday.] — "We have scored an unparalleled victory and the right to govern Germany cannot be denied us," Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, told his "storm troops" in a proclamation issued at dawn today from the "brown house," headquarters in Munich.

In a proclamation to the voters Hitler promises "to continue the fight for the National Socialist ideals with the new strength gathered in a great victory."

"I am deeply gratified because the communists and Socialists together have less reichstag mandates than the Nazis alone," he said. "That clearly establishes our party's hegemony in any coalition of the right.

"Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's following [Nationalists] dwindled still further. On the other hand the communists' seats in the new reichstag will be much greater than in 1930. That shows where the real danger to Germany lies and proves what we have been contending all through, namely that communism is Germany greatest danger."

LINEUP OF GERMAN GOVERNMENT AFTER REICHSTAG ELECTION

As a result of yesterday's election of a new reichstag, the complexion of the government of Germany swings decidedly to the right. Control, in all probability, will remain in the hands of the junkers or pre-war ruling class, which seized power when President von Hindenburg ousted the Bruening cabinet and made Von Papen chancellor.

The strongest party in the reichstag will be Hitler's National Socialists, which stands for "rejuvenation" of Germany through Fascist dictatoral methods, elimination of the rights of citizenship for Jews, and complete revision of the Versailles treaty in regard to disarmament and other penalties placed upon Germany. The party claims it favors the republic, but leans toward monarchism. Hitler's party in the reichstag will, more or less, collaborate with other parties of the right—the Nationalists, who favor restoration of the monarchy, the Populists, Economic party, Christian Socialists, and Farmers, representing various factions of big landholders and business men.

Two parties in the new reichstag will be in the center. They are the Centrists or Catholic party, made up of Roman Catholics and firm friends of the German republic, and the Bavarian party, also Catholic and made up of citizens of Bavaria who are opposed to Prussian Protestant rule. Former Chancellor Bruening is leader of the Centrists.

On the left will be the Socialists or Social Democrats, and the Communists. The Socialists, who, until this election, have been the strongest party in the reichstag, have become almost pale pink in recent years and are pledged to keep a republican form of government in Germany. The Communists favor the overthrow of the German republic and the setting up of a soviet government. They take orders from Moscow.

$6,527,955 TAX WARRANTS MAY PAY TEACHERS

Board Will Decide Today on Paper Salaries.

ing Gov. Emmerson to call a special session of the legislature to repeal the "N. S. F. check" law, which has impaired the security of 1932 school tax warrants, according to the experts.

The board at its last meeting adopted a resolution of Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell pledging "immediate consideration of the advisability and necessity" for calling a special session. The resolution directed President Lewis E. Myers to appoint a committee of three to confer with the school attorney "and with other governmental bodies and representatives, as well as the citizens' committee, to the end that a program may be formulated which will have behind it unified public sentiment and confidence."

By this program Trustee Caldwell hoped to have "a comprehensive study of the revenue system" made so that an improved tax system could be evolved that would place the schools on a sound financial basis.

Teachers to Decide on Appeal.

Now it is proposed to have the governor call a special session for the repeal of the "N. S. F. check" law alone. The teachers and principals' council is scheduled to meet this morning to decide whether it will send a delegation to make an appeal to Gov. Emmerson.

The theory is that if the "N. F. S. check" law is repealed so far as it relates to Chicago, the school board's credit will be restored. Investment houses, however, say they do not see why they should pay 100 cents on the dollar for educational tax warrants when they can be purchased in the open market at 84 cents.

THREE DEFAULTS TODAY

Three tax governments in Cook county will default on bonds and interest due today, Aug. 1. The total default by the county, the forest preserve, and the sanitary district will be more than $1,000,000. This will bring the total defaulted indebtedness of the tax expending bodies in the county to $13,151,021.

The largest defaulter is the sanitary district which has $1,332,500 in principal and $469,037 in interest falling due today. There will be an effort to meet $800,000 of this. The default, added to that already owing by the district, makes an aggregate of $3,626,476 defaulted bonds and interest.

Cook county will raise enough money to meet half the $162,750 in interest which comes due today. With $1,709,000 already outstanding the county's defaults now amount to $1,781,875.

The forest preserve has only $4,400 in interest due upon real estate bonds today. However, later in the month another $31,000 in interest falls due. The preserve already has defaulted on $1,577,000 worth of bonds and interest.

Sonsteby to Open New Gun Court This Morning

The new Gun court, created by Chief Justice John Sonsteby of the Municipal court, will open this morning in the police building at 11th and State streets with Judge Thomas A. Green presiding. The chief justice will appear at the opening, which is scheduled for 9:30 o'clock. Every person over 21 years of age who is arrested with a gun or involved in any kind of a gun case will be arraigned in Judge Green's court henceforth. It is hoped that by concentrating such cases in one court gun toting and shootings will be reduced.

GERMAN ENVOY TEARS POLAND'S FLAG FROM HOME

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Poland, July 31.—A diplomatic incident likely to cause bad feeling between Poland and Germany occurred in Warsaw today when Baron Emil von Rintelen, German chargé d'affaires, tore down a Polish flag which had been put up on his house.

To celebrate the anniversary of Poland's winning access to the sea the nation held "a sea jubilee" today. Every house in Warsaw flew the national colors, but Rintelen ordered the flag over his home removed. When the owner of the house replaced it Rintelen tore it down himself.

Three policemen attempted to arrest him, but his diplomatic passport saved him. Authorities, however, ordered the flag to be replaced and stationed special police patrols to guard it.

PERSONALTY TAX SUIT HEARINGS TO START TODAY

The hearing of 12,000 suits against persons delinquent in 1930 personal property taxes will begin today in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Craig Hood. He is the first judge to be assigned to the Tax court created by the Circuit judges to hear such cases throughout the year.

Special County Attorney Lee LaRochelle will prosecute all these cases and as many more against taxpayers who have failed to pay their personal property levies of ten previous years. He has announced that he expects to force the payment of $20,000,000 of uncollected revenues.

In outlining his policies Attorney LaRochelle said he would file pleadings in Circuit and Superior court receiverships where taxes are unpaid as an intervening party, urging the prior lien of the debt to the county. In the federal courts, he said, his representatives will seek court orders to intervene in all receiverships and bankruptcies.

"We hope to get draft orders to all receivers directing that taxes be met from the first moneys collected from all delinquent properties. I believe that there are at least 2,000 such properties in the federal courts and another 5,000 in the county courts."

Since the appointment of Attorney La Rochelle and his assistants, Samuel Block, Elmer M. Walsh and James J. McDermott, by the county board last June 1, nearly $5,000,000 of delinquent 1930 personal property taxes have been received by the county treasurer.

"Many of those who have paid are persons who know that we would have filed suit against them if these taxes remained unpaid," said La Rochelle. "Every day dozens of men, representing business firms or themselves, call at my office to seek a compromise of their assessments. It simply can't be done this year. Therefore the payments."

GRAFT IN NAME OF AID TO VETS COSTS MILLIONS

Football Star Kept on Team by Pension.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 31.—Tales of the plundering of the taxpayers in the sacred name of aid to veterans of our wars stagger credulity. The cost of it is already close to 500 millions of dollars a year.

REPRESENTATIVE WILL R. WOOD. [A. P. Photo.]

On the one hand there are the laws passed by congress and signed by Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, letting down the bars to the raiding of the treasury by veterans whose disabilities were not incurred in war service. On the other are the lawyers, doctors and other employés of the veterans' administration many of them drawing disability pay themselves who, according to complaints aired in congress, entertain with a too easy tolerance the applications of undeserving former service men for this form of subsidy to a class.

Puts Footballer Through College.

Typical of the stories told of able bodied ex-soldiers getting on the disability pay roll is that of a football player at an eastern university. He was a former service man who enrolled at the educational institution in search of a remunerative employment on the gridiron. He was an accomplished player of the game and a highly desirable addition to the team. But the college authorities declined to pay him a salary. They said they had stopped paying salaries to athletes. The football star said he could not afford to play without a salary. He was about to pack up and depart when somebody had a happy thought. Could he by any chance qualify for disability compensation from the government? Well, he had been in the service and had come out of the war without a scratch or an ache but he had broken his leg within the last two years. Would that do? It did.

The college authorities pulled a few wires at Washington and the football player shortly began to receive disability compensation comparing favorably with the amount of salary he had asked of the college. His broken leg had disabled him sufficiently to get on Uncle Sam's pay roll but not sufficiently to prevent him from playing a crack game of football which he continued to do for several years.

Reports Graft and Waste.

Representative William R. Wood [Rep., Ind.] informed the house a few weeks ago that veterans sufficiently prosperous to pay income taxes are receiving an aggregate of $24,500,000 in disability pay and that government employés are receiving 12 millions more in the same way. He read a number of letters to the house reporting cases of graft and waste.

Ira L. Hooper, Evansville, Ind., wrote that "to my knowledge there are at least two patients at this same hospital that have been there for years both drawing $150 and more a month compensation. One of them has a wife employed at veterans' bureau at a good salary. He stays at the hospital not for treatment but to save money. He is 'bothered' with asthma but never misses a show or any other performance. Another there draws $150 or more and is a regular attendant at all race meets or poker games."

Willard J. Banyon, St. Joseph, Mich., wrote that "in the local postoffice at Benton Harbor there are four or five veterans . . . receiving pensions from the United States government while under civil service and holding jobs for life."

Mr. Wood said that $8,900,000 would be saved "if all the inmates of the soldiers' homes or hospitals today were required to turn over all loans and pensions except $20 a month for a single person and $60 for the married person."

Expensive Free Hospitalization.

Free hospitalization and domiciliary care costing $55,329,525 this year is provided under the act of June 7, 1924 even though the condition requiring such care did not arise from or have even a presumed connection with war service.

"Under these provisions of law," the National Economy league reports, "76 per cent of the total admissions to hospital in the fiscal year 1931 were for non-service connected cases." Of 43,211 cases under treatment April 30 last 27,610 were non-service connected."

"It is submitted," said the league in a memorial to congress, "that the hospitalization of veterans whose disabilities are incurred in civil life with out any connection with war service is indefensible.

"Section 202 (10) of the world war veterans' act should be immediately repealed. If not repealed it is estimated by Gen. Hines that the prospective increase in non-service connected hospital cases alone will eventually require 100,000 additional hospital beds at a peak cost of 140 million dollars a year.

"By the repeal of this statute this prospective increase would be averted, by the elimination of all expenditures for non-service connected disabilities . . . this item an immediate saving of not less than 70 per cent thereof, or about $39,000,000 could be effected in the fiscal year 1933."

Arctic Expedition Ship Arrives at Chicago

Many Chicagoans visited the lake front in Grant park yesterday afternoon to see the famous vessel, Peary, riding at anchor in the yacht basin. The Peary, now owned by the United States Army Engineer corps, was one of the two ships used on the MacMillan arctic expedition which penetrated to within eleven degrees of the north pole in 1925. The Peary's visit was only for the week-end. It was its first visit to Chicago.

SLAIN VET'S KIN OFF TO ATTEND ARLINGTON RITES

Charles Hushka, brother of William Hushka, 37 years old, the veteran who was killed in the riot of bonus marchers in Washington last Thursday, last night left the city for Washington to attend his brother's funeral in Arlington cemetery, according to neighbors at his home at 2316 West 23d place. The neighbors said he was accompanied by Mrs. Frances Krivenko, his brother's former wife, of 2015 North Winchester avenue.

Both Hushka and Mrs. Krivenko were the subject of much solicitation by two groups yesterday, one of which composed of delegations from veterans' organizations, urged them to permit William Hushka's burial in Arlington cemetery as planned by the authorities in Washington, while the other, composed of groups sympathetic with the bonus marchers, urged the brother and ex-wife to insist upon the body's return to Chicago for a mass demonstration and burial.

A memorial service is planned by veterans' organizations in Chicago at the same time the funeral is held in Washington, in Harrison park, at 18th and Woods streets, Henry Lewandowski, commander of the Kenneth M. Copley post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, announced last night. Cooperating are posts of the American Legion and other groups.

The meeting will be a service and not a demonstration, with the blowing of taps and the firing of a salute, Mr. Lewandowski said.

Johnstown, Pa., July 31.—(AP)—Gloom which enveloped the bonus army surrendered to new hope today as Commander Walter W. Waters shouted a promise of a colony of their own in the Maryland hills.

Flying here from Washington, the chief of the shattered bonus expeditionary force brought news he had secured a deed to a wooded tract near Laurel, Md., to which veterans and families can move within the next two weeks.

The chief of the expedition said he will put into action a twofold program given birth as veterans met defeat in the shadow of the nation's capitol.

Tells of Plans for Colony.

First the colony for the homeless of the bonus expeditionary forces will be set upon 25 acres of land to which he has obtained a deed. Much of this land is wooded and from the timber veterans will build their cabins. They can plant gardens, raise chickens, rabbits, and other stock and wait for a brighter era.

Second, plans will be speeded for formation of a semi-military political organization, to be known as the "Khaki-Shirt."

Explaining the first project, Waters said he succeeded after days of dickering in obtaining the tract situated between Baltimore and Washington.

The owner, Maud Edgell, heretofore has neither contributed nor aided the expedition, but had become interested recently. Twenty-five additional acres are at Waters' disposal, he said, and he has the privilege of using the entire tract of 209 acres until the colony is established.

There will be no room for any one of communistic tendencies, Waters said.

Turning to formation of the "Khaki-Shirts," Waters declared: "I want to say right here and now and I want it perfectly understood that I do not intend making another expedition to Washington.

"This new non-partisan organization will do its fighting at the polls, if possible at the coming election, but if not then at the next one and others that follow."

"If they burn our shacks there," Waters said, referring to the Maryland colony, and waving a clenched fist, "we'll kill them."

"As to your present condition," he continued, "hope only for tolerance from Johnstown—don't expect the city to support you."

Records at the Camp McCloskey registration table indicated about 3,000 encamped, the population swelling hourly. And while the tattered former doughboys poured into the city citizens planned to protest to high state officials against their presence.

Grand Jury Starts Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—Acting promptly to bring to justice those responsible for Thursday's tragic rioting, a District of Columbia grand jury tomorrow will sift the whole sensational series of events which led to the calling of federal troops and expulsion of the bonus seeking veterans from the capital.

In addition to the grand jury investigation requested by President Hoover an inquest will be held tomorrow over the body of William Hushka, Chicago veteran killed by a police bullet. Plans are being made to bury Hushka in Arlington National cemetery.

Three with Patrol Service Stars Seized as Bandits

Merchants and householders in the neighborhood of 79th street and Cottage Grove avenue have been approached recently by representatives of the Grove Patrol service, who mentioned the prevalence of holdups on the south side as a reason for engaging the service. Its members not only kept watch on stores but escorted householders who were putting their cars away to guard them against alley holdups.

Early yesterday police arrested three men wearing stars of the watch service, and charged them with committing some of the holdups which were the prime sales argument of their patrol service. Victims identified the three men, taken with two companions in an apartment at 8247 Ingleside avenue, in connection with three restaurant holdups earlier in the evening.

The arrests were made by a detective squad headed by Sergt. Bernard Corcoran. The policemen saw the men leave an automobile in the alley and enter the Ingleside avenue apartment. Entering, they arrested Frank Quinlan and Lawrence Coleman, who lived in the apartment; Eugene Quinlan, 7110 Dobson street; Henry Dahlquist, 8301 Ingleside avenue, and Clarence Moyer, 5429 Cottage Grove avenue.

Frank Quinlan, Moyer and Coleman wore the stars of the patrol service, and it was this three who were identified as the robbers.

Capt. John Ryan, commanding the Burnside police district, in which the patrol service operated, said that he and Capt. William Russell had given a number of neighborhood patrol services permission to operate in the district. In each case, Capt. Ryan said, the applicants had to satisfy police that they had no criminal record, and they were forbidden to carry firearms. Moyer admitted the ownership of a gun found in the automobile used by the group.

Shot in Back by Bandit as He Raises His Hands

Herman Holtz, 25 years old, office manager of the Cities Ice Cream company, 416 McBride street, Elgin, was shot in the back and probably mortally wounded last night by a bandit. Holtz and Louis Hartz, a driver, were in the company office when two robbers entered and made them raise their hands and face the wall. As Holtz stood as directed, one of the gunmen deliberately shot him. The robbers then carried him to a chair, took his keys, unlocked the safe and escaped with $200. Holtz was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Elgin, where physicians said he probably would die.

GOAT GLAND DOC BUTTS SELF INTO KANSAS POLITICS

Runs for Governor as a Sainted Martyr.

Topeka he capitalized the Passion, so to say, getting as far as Gethsemane. He told his audience it was just two years ago that he was experiencing his "Garden of Gethsemane" in the Kansan hotel when the state medical board was hearing charges against him which led to revocation of his license to practice.

Down at the Jayhawk hotel Brinkley said he was on his knees every night seeking strength and help.

He croons along, not raising his voice, singing a song about what he wants to do for Kansas.

"A lake in every county where the terrain permits" is one of his planks. Kansas is so hyptonized by the gland doctor's crooning that the politicians report few voters listening in regard it as a bedtime story. His platform promises free schoolbooks, an automobile license of only $3 a year, and many other things and with it all lower taxes. He says the platform was written from 46,000 letters containing suggestions. One venerable political war horse today snorted:

"The Doc could grow whiskers and tell them he was John the Baptist and get away with it."

Prescribes Via Radio.

Dr. Brinkley, who put the goat glands into politics, built a radio station and a hospital some years ago in Milford, a small town in the Republican valley. He specialized in the treatment of the prostate gland. One of his radio features was the "medical question box." He said he would prescribe over the air for people who wrote him describing their ailments. He had a list of some 150 prescriptions, many drug stores put them in stock, and over the air the Doc would advise a sick person who had written him to get one of the prescriptions, mentioning it by number and also giving the name of a drug store at which it might be obtained. It was a sort of a radio order prescription factory and dispensary.

This diagnosing of disease of patients miles away and his prescribing over the radio led to complaints of unprofessional conduct. The gland operations also led to complaints from the medical profession, and in June, 1930, hearings began before the state board of medical registration and examination.

The chief charge was that Brinkley was guilty of "gross immorality and unprofessional conduct" because he performed "what he call" the compound operation for the purpose of curing diseases of the prostate gland" and that in connection with this "where additional gland tissue is needed he claims that he transplants animal or human glands to the patient."

The charges said the operation was of no value to the patient and that Brinkley, in proclaiming the benefits of the "compound operation" was working "fraud and deception upon the public." The charges said the fact was that the operation "cannot be successfully performed either with human or animal glands."

Station License Revoked.

At the hearings here during the hot wave of 1930, it was brought out that some 6,000 operations had been performed at Milford. The hearings filled columns of newspaper space. One witness, asked whether he had undergone transplantation of a goat gland, testified he didn't know, adding: "But I shouldn't wonder, for I've been wanting to chew sprouts."

Hundreds of witnesses were here to testify for Brinkley. Eminent surgeons testified the operation could not do what it was claimed it would. The state board voted to revoke Brinkley's license to practice. The doctor brought suit to prevent the medical board from revoking, and it is still pending. Meantime Brinkley refrained from practice, but his hospital has still been running with a staff of surgeons.

Charges were filed against Brinkley with the federal radio commission, which refused to renew the permit for his radio station. Refusal was on the ground that long distance treatment of disease over the radio was inimical to the public welfare.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals sustained the order of the radio commission. The station was to be confiscated, when the Kansas legislature passed a resolution that the wave length should be retained in the state, and the station was sold to a Wichita bank for $95,000.

Goes Into Politics.

When the November elections came along, after Brinkley had made a six or eight weeks' campaign, enough voters wrote his name on the ballot to give him a total counted vote of 183,000 while thousands of votes were thrown out because of misspelling or because the name had been written under some office other than that of governor.

Brinkley went to Mexico and in Villa Acuna built what was called the largest commercial broadcasting station on the continent. His studio was in Texas in Del Rio, and his talks were thrown across the Rio Grande and broadcast out of Mexico with enough juice that they could be readily picked up on the radio in Kansas. He kept on the air regularly until he came up to Kansas to start his campaign, and instead of going into the primaries he filed as an independent candidate for the November election.

GOV. ELY INDORSES ROOSEVELT; LED FIGHT TO NOMINATE SMITH

Boston, Mass., July 31.—(AP)—Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, last of the party's anti-Roosevelt leaders to indorse the Democratic national ticket, tonight threw his support to Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner.

JOSEPH B. ELY.

In a statement announcing his own candidacy for reelection, the governor, who headed the preconvention campaign for Alfred E. Smith in Massachusetts and who presented Smith's name to the Democratic national convention, pledged himself in these words:

"Having in mind the broad purposes of my party, and the accomplishment of those things for which it has declared itself, I shall give my support to the Democratic ticket of Roosevelt and Garner."

His statement tonight came as the first utterance from him since Roosevelt's nomination.

Four days ago he sat down with Roosevelt for a two hour conference in the executive mansion at Albany, but no statement was forthcoming other than the promise of an announcement later.

It followed close upon the speech with which Roosevelt opened his campaign drive last night and with the nominee's declaration of his attitude toward the Democratic platform as its basis.

HORNER'S TOUR OF STATE WILL BE RESUMED TODAY

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, will continue his informal "get acquainted" tour of the state this morning. He will leave Peoria, where he spent the week-end, for the east central portion of the state where he will pass most of his time in the next seven days.

Wyoming, Lacon, Eureka, and Bloomington will be some of the towns and cities he will visit today. He will spend the week-end at Springfield.

DICKINSON OPENS G. O. P. FIRE ON ROOSEVELT TALK

Charges Governor Tries to Rewrite Platform.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, was taken to task yesterday by Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, Republican leader, for referring, in his Saturday radio address, to the St. Lawrence-great lakes deep waterway as a project mentioned in the unemployment plank of the Democratic platform.

The criticism was made in a telegram sent to Gov. Roosevelt which was made public by the publicity bureau of the Republican national committee from its Palmer house headquarters. Senator Dickinson asserted that no reference was made to the waterway in the Democratic platform.

"I have no quarrel with you if you choose to rewrite your platform after the St. Lawrence seaway treaty has been concluded in order that you may join in the 'me too' chorus," said the senator's message to Gov. Roosevelt. "That is a matter between you and the Democratic party. But when you choose to inform the American people that this amended platform of yours is the actual platform adopted by the Democratic convention, then some explanation is due the American people.

What Is Democrat Intention?

"Can it be that instead of printing the actual platform it is the intention of the Democratic national committee to reprint your speech with this amendment as to the seaway? Can it be the intention of your managers to foist this rewritten platform, together with your comments thereon, upon the Amtrican people as the original and genuine article?

"If so, it is significant that it will be done only after President Hoover had successfully concluded the St. Lawrence seaway treaty and after you undoubtedly had learned of the immense popularity of that project with the farmers of the middle west.

"I have taken it upon myself to direct this inquiry to you because only a few hours prior to your speech I addressed myself over the radio to the American farmer on this very subject. I stated: 'Just where the Democratic party stands on this seaway is questionable. It failed to make any mention of it in the party platform.'

A Question of Good Faith.

"In so stating I acted in good faith, referring to what had been issued by the Democratic national committee as the official platform of the Democratic party, and which had been furnished by the Democratic committee to the Republican national committee for purposes of publication by the Republican national committee as the official Democratic platform. Have you acted in equal good faith?

"You need not reply to me personally, I suggest that you reply to the American people. They want to know if, why, and how you have again turned your coat on the St. Lawrence seaway proposal. It is to them you must make explanation as to whether this action is a part of the 'new deal' you promised to them in your acceptance speech."

Watson Joins in Attack.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, visiting in Chicago last night, also took a fling at the Roosevelt radio speech. He confined his criticism to the governor's remarks on the tariff.

Gov. Roosevelt spoke of the 'prohibitive tariff rates' which have resulted in retaliatory action in more than 40 countries," said Senator Watson. "The truth of the matter is that more than 68 per cent of our imports come in free of duty, and it would be instructive if the governor would say what rates prevent imports.

"He also announces a real protective doctrine when he says that 'peasants that live at lower levels than our farmers ought not to determine prices for American-made goods,' and then turns squarely about to advocate an international conference to determine our tariff rates, as well as those of other countries."

FRANK C. WALKER HANDLES FUNDS FOR DEMOCRATS

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The appointment of Frank C. Walker as treasurer of the Democratic national committee was announced today by James A. Farley, chairman. The post has been vacant since the resignation of James W. Gerard last spring.

Since the meeting of the Democratic national committee in Chicago, Mr. Walker, who was treasurer for the pre-convention Roosevelt organization, has been acting assistant treasurer.

Death Chamber Proves Its Power to Kill Every Fly or Mosquito

In the Rex Research laboratory there is a small room, kept filled with flies at their most vigorous age—five days old. Each lot of Fly-Tox is tested here with a sprayer. Unless every fly dies, and quickly, that lot of Fly-Tox is rejected.

That's why Fly-Tox is so certain, so economical to you. Rightly sprayed in a room, it creates a perfumed mist, which no fly or mosquito can escape. That mist is harmless to people, stainless to anything. But these deadly pests all perish at its touch.

Fly-Tox was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. We have spent ten years and over $100,000 to perfect it. The toxic factor comes from flowers of Japan, which scientists found to be deadly to flies.

Use Fly-Tox to protect your home. These insects carry disease germs of some 30 kinds. They contaminate all foods they touch. Their bites inject disease germs in the blood. Thousands of children, every year, die from insect-borne diseases. Rid your home of these pests—keep it free—for the sake of all who live there.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, for safety's sake. Use it because it is the latest, most scientific product for this purpose. Use it for economy's sake—only 1 or 2 cents per room. Use it because this Japanese flower is the most efficient factor that we know. It is easy, pleasant, sure. It is harmless, stainless, quick. Your home protection is too important to use a lesser method. Fly-Tox also kills Roaches, Ants, Bed Bugs, and Moths. Get Fly-Tox now. Sold everywhere. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

ROOSEVELT WILL PICTURE HOOVER IN RADICAL ROLE

Plans to Depict Self as Conservative.

Coolidge to Aid Hoover

Rutland, Vt., July 31.—(AP)—Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, today, after a week-end visit at the Plymouth summer home of Calvin Coolidge, reaffirmed an earlier statement that the former President probably would take part in the campaign to reelect President Hoover.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 31.—[Special.]—It will be "Hoover the radical—Roosevelt the conservative" in the Democratic campaign for the presidency, it was indicated here today.

While the campaign plans are in a nebulous state, and more or less are waiting the laying down of the Hoover campaign strategy in the President's acceptance address, it was learned today that the Roosevelt leaders will make capital out of the Hoover policies, which have led the government into radical activities.

SAMUEL SEABURY.

Will Cite Republican Record.

The many ways in which the Republicans have plunged the government in business, and into control of public utilities, agricultural markets, and other industries, all with a localization of power under the federal rule, have been discussed at length by Mr. Roosevelt in his private conferences with party chieftains.

This is expected to lead the Democrats to label the President "Commissar Hoover," and in that manner to rebut the oft circulated charges that Gov. Roosevelt leans too strongly to the left wing.

The methods of the government in demoralizing the farm market by spending millions in the purchase of wheat, and in inflating the currency beyond bounds considered reasonable, will be the particular butts to be aimed at Mr. Hoover by the Roosevelt managers, and perhaps later by the candidate himself.

The removal proceedings against Mayor Walker of New York are not yet ready for the decision of Gov. Roosevelt, it developed today.

Samuel Seabury, who as chief counsel for a legislative committee presenting the charges against the mayor, notified the governor in a letter received today that he desired to present reply to the formal answer to the accusations filed by Mayor Walker last Thursday.

With Mr. Seabury replying to Mr. Walker's reply, it is considered plausible that Mr. Walker will desire to reply to Mr. Seabury's reply, and how much further than that the exchange of voluminous documents may go is uncertain. Gov. Roosevelt is anxious to make his decision promptly, and would be likely to call a halt to too many delays.

Meet as Former Classmates.

The governor motored from Albany this morning to his home at Hyde Park. He was accompanied on the ride by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who "dropped in" on the governor this morning on his way from Chicago to New York City.

Col. McCormick and Gov. Roosevelt were classmates at Groton school, and the colonel recalled today that for two years they occupied adjoining benches in the classroom. The visit was a personal one, and had no political significance, Col. McCormick said. After lunching with the governor at Hyde Park, Col. McCormick went on to New York.

After luncheon Gov. Roosevelt drove to Peekskill, where at Camp Smith he reviewed the 174th and 71st regiments of the New York national guard.

The governor received a large batch of telegrams last night and today congratulating him upon the stand taken by him in his speech last night opening the radio phase of his campaign for the presidency.

Political analysts feel that Mr. Roosevelt last night made a strong bid for the support of the powerful business interests of the country. There was no mention in the speech of his previously expressed views favoring shorter hours and a five day week for labor, except as they were projected in the Democratic platform itself, the full text of which was read by the Democratic candidate.

Neither did Mr. Roosevelt discuss his proposals for a broader distribution of wealth, but he is expected to dwell on these issues later in the campaign.

The enthusiastic indorsement by Gov. Roosevelt of the platform's declaration for a balancing of the federal budget by drastic decreases in expenditures rather than in higher or new taxes, and his insistence upon a deflated, sound currency, were believed to have been significant gestures by the candidate in inviting the support of commercial interests.

DRY ASSEMBLY LAUDS HOOVER ENFORCEMENT

A resolution praising President Hoover and his aids for their enforcement of the prohibition laws was adopted yesterday at the Chicagoland Dry Assembly, held at the Des Plaines camp grounds under the auspices of the Illinois Conference of Associations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Chicagoland assembly opened eight days ago and ended last night. More than 20,000 persons attended during that time.

DUAL TRAGEDY ENDS LIVES OF MANY CRIMES

Blackmailing Suspects Are Found Slain.

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Finis was written to a crime career devoted to blackmail and counterfeiting with the finding here today of the bodies of Robert Conroy, erstwhile mail robber and killer, and his platinum blonde companion and mistress, Rosemary Sanborn. Conroy, the police say, took his own life after slaying the woman.

Their bodies were found in a dingy "railroad" flat in West 104th street just off Broadway. Sprawled over the bathtub was the body of Conroy, man of many aliases, for whom the police of the nation had sought continuously for the murder of Patrolman George Zientara in a $200,000 mail truck robbery in Toledo, O., on April 16, 1928. He was also wanted for a murder in Los Angeles on Sept. 28, 1929.

Stretched on the bathroom floor was the body of the woman, who had posed as Conroy's wife when they rented the flat for a hideaway three months ago. Conroy was shot in the head and the woman had wounds in the head, breast and right arm.

Murder and Suicide.

The police were satisfied that Conroy had killed the woman first and then had shot himself. Whether it was a suicide pact or the result of a row there were no indications. An ambulance doctor said that the pair had been dead more than 48 hours.

In the flat the police found an elaborate counterfeiting plant and a bale of spurious new $5 notes, the first of a series which had been discovered in circulation only Saturday.

But what interested local police and federal officers more was a number of photographs, tacked on the apartment walls, showing different men with the blonde. The unsuspecting attitudes on the faces of the men indicated that they were not aware that the pictures were being snapped. Furthermore, there was found in a locked trunk a black address book in which there was said to be listed the names of prominent men in various sections of the country.

Report Senators Named.

The book, it is reported, contained the names of two United States senators. Police are convinced that Conroy and the blonde woman were in league in a more or less successful blackmail game. They concentrated their activities, is was indicated, on well to do residents of Washington.

The federal operatives working on the case said that they had not seen the address book. They said they had been informed that the book had been found in one of the trunks in the flat, but when they asked to see it, were informed by detectives who had worked on the case, that the book had "disappeared," when or how, no one seems to know.

Photograph from Ambush.

It was the opinion of one of the federal men that the photographs were taken by some accomplice of the woman who remained hidden in a closet or in some other part of a hotel room while the victim was decoyed into a position where he faced the invisible camera. Each of the photographs gave a full face picture of the man in the case.

Conroy, it is believed, was a member of the gang of Fred [Killer] Burke, the western gunman now serving a life term in Michigan state prison. Police believe it was the Burke gang that figured in the killing of the Toledo policeman. The police alarm sent out after that killing warned that "every caution be used in approaching" Conroy. His aliases included Robert N. Carey, Robert Delroy, Robert S. Conroy, Robert L. Conroy, and Robert Newberry among others.

Taxi Driver Finds Bodies.

A taxicab driver who lives at the 104th street address found the bodies. He told how his suspicions had been aroused by lights burning in the Conroy apartment during the day for the last two days. Recalling that he had last seen the pair last Friday night he summoned a patrolman. Together they knocked at the door; when there was no response they entered an adjoining flat and from there they climbed through a window into the hideaway.

The cab driver and the policeman saw the bathroom door open. The head of the woman rested on the threshold of the bathroom. She was fully clothed. Over the tub sagged Conroy's body. He was also fully clothed. A .45 automatic lay at the woman's feet.

Find Counterfeiting Plant.

In a room adjoining the bedroom was the printing press, a roll of paper and the bundle of fake money. Lesser amounts of the money were found in dresser drawers. In addition there were several plates from which the notes had been stamped. These excited the enthusiasm of Alan Straight, head of the secret service in the New York area.

"It's a beautiful plant," he said. "They turned out an almost perfect job of intaglio printing. The plates were expertly made. The man must have been an experienced engraver. The workmanship showed he took extreme care."

Straight said that Conroy probably had been operating as a "lone wolf." He said he had never heard of him before. The first of Conroy's product had turned up at his office from a downtown bank yesterday, Straight said.

MAYOR WALKER TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR IF OUSTED BY ROOSEVELT

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker, if removed from his present office by Gov. Roosevelt, intends to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, it was learned today on unimpeachable authority. News of this prospective and contingent candidacy of the mayor was received with astonishment by local Democrats. Many of them at first were unwilling to credit the possibility of a situation which would so complicate the Democratic campaign in New York that forecast of the vote would be virtually impossible and which might result in the loss of the state to both Gov. Roosevelt, the party nominee for President, and Mr. Walker as the candidate for governor.

Some of the Roosevelt supporters have come to believe that Walker's intention to seek the governorship in the event of his removal is genuine and that he expects to have strong enough support from Tammany and its allies to win the nomination at the Democratic state convention.

FORMER SENATOR QUITS G.O.P. TO AID ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—Henry C. Hansbrough, a former Republican senator from North Dakota, announced today his support of Gov. Roosevelt for President. He said he opposed Herbert Hoover in 1928.

"With Senator Norris and other Republican progressives," his statement read, "I join in support of Gov. Roosevelt in the interest of 'a new deal by a party with clean hands.'

IMPERIAL CHOIR NOT IN HARMONY IN SONG ON TRADE

South Africa Denounces British "Generosity."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 31.—All is not harmony in the British imperial choir. That was proved this morning when the South African delegation took advantage of the week-end holiday to issue a scathing reply to Stanley Baldwin's statement last Thursday when the British leader claimed that Britain had been very generous to the dominions, that the imperial balance of trade was all in their favor and that South Africa was one of the most favored of all.

The document was a surprise. Mr. Baldwin, who had arranged to spend two days with friends on a farm in Ontario, changed his plans and remained in Ottawa. He is now studying the statement which was issued by H. C. Havenga, finance minister of the Union of South Africa and leader of the South African delegation.

Calls Statement Misleading.

Havenga called the Baldwin statement misleading and quoted facts and figures to show that it painted a picture entirely different from the true one.

"I have no complaint to make of the British policy in the past which looked after British trade first," Mr. Havenga said. "That was Britain's business. But I do want to protest against Mr. Baldwin's claim for gratitude that under Britain's historic free trade policy 90 per cent of the diminions' exports were free of duty in Britain.

"It is presumed that this point does not contain the implication that what was until recently considered the fiscal policy of Great Britain was a concession to imperial sentiment.

Balance in Britain's Favor.

The burden of Havenga's complaint, however, is that Baldwin lumped the trade of all the dominions together to bolster up his claim that the balance of trade in their favor was $500,000,000, and that South Africa had about a third of that surplus.

Havenga insists that so far as South Africa is concerned the balance of trade is definitely in favor of Britain. He makes the bold statement that the figures in Baldwin's statement "do not truly reflect South Africa's absorption of British goods."

"Not a true reflection" is the phrase used in referring to Britain's claim that she has helped financially in developing the dominions. Havenga objects particularly to Baldwin's inclusion of gold in South Africa's lists of exports. Gold, he maintains, is not a consumable commodity and the mere fact that it is produced in South Africa does not make it so.

Exports Gold As Money.

"South Africa does not export her gold as merchandise, but as money to settle her unfavorable trade balance, and Mr. Baldwin has no more right to include her gold exports in her total trade than he would have to include the gold which Britain sends abroad to settle her bills for her manufactured imports," Havenga continued.

From Baldwin's own table Havenga attempts to show that, excluding gold, the value of imports from South Africa retained in Britain in 1930 was about $80,000,000. Another table reports South Africa's favorable trade balance at $172,000,000, or nearly three times the actual imports from the union.

"This discrepency is found in gold and goods reexported and on which Britain obtained commission and handling charges, but, as she was not the customer for these goods, it is misleading to include them in her trade balances," he said. "Concerning gold the position is clear. South Africa uses more than twice as much British merchandise as Britain does South African merchandise.

"As far as the union is concerned the position is that South Africa in 1930 bought from Britain more than $145,000,000 worth of commodities which enter into competitive trade, while Britain bought from South Africa less than $60,000,000 worth of such goods and this favorable position of Britain in the competitive trade of South Africa is the normal position."

In conclusion, Hayenga said that if Britain is able to meet the South African delegation in regard to preference on certain products, South Africa is ready to reciprocate.

POLES COMPLAIN OF 'RAW DEAL' AT HANDS OF DANZIG

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DANZIG FREE CITY, July 31.—The Polish representation in Danzig occupies a huge building directly opposite the Danzig senate. Though officials individually are willing to discuss frankly Polish-Danzig relations, there is a ban on official interviews. The Polish chief commissioner in Danzig prefers to let Warsaw do the official talking, fearing that any statement in his name would harm the friendly relations which the Poles claim they have been trying for years to establish with the Free City.

The Poles hold a number of grievances against the Danzigers. The chief one is that Danzig insists upon treating the Poles like other foreigners. The Poles claim that since they are united to Danzig with a customs union and Danzig is still handling a large portion of the Polish exports and imports they should be entitled to special privileges.

In a number of cases, Polish citizens for business and other reasons, have applied for citizenship in the Free City and have been refused. On the other hand applications from Germans are invariably accepted.

Forced to Pay High Rents.

Poles are also discriminated against, it is held, when they apply to the municipal housing committee for apartments. They are compelled, they say, to rent high priced quarters while Danzigers and Germans obtain the more moderate priced flats.

Polish firms here complain that registration has been made difficult and that they are hindered in their attemps to obtain offices.

The Poles say the small migration of Polish firms and officials to Danzig is purely an economic development, whereas the Danzigers say the Poles are trying to Polonize the city.

Nazis Parade Often.

Der Vorposten [the Forpost], the official newspaper of the Nazis in Danzig, publishes as its motto, "Back to the reich." Nazi storm troops are a common sight on the streets of Danzig. The Forpost places their membership at 16,000.

"Some of the Danzig political parties openly contend the present situation is only temporary," the official Polish spokesman in Danzig told THE TRIBUNE. "This affects Polish investments here, for if Danzig does return to Germany she will get none of our trade.

"At present the Polish minority in Danzig is small. Of the 407,000 inhabitants only 20,000 Poles are Danzig citizens and there is an additional 20,000 persons of Polish nationality employed here. Therefore we have the right to subsidize our schools and cultural institutions. Both Warsaw and Berlin have been sending money to Danzig, the Poles to keep the Poles Polish and the Germans to keep the Germans German.

"As a result the citizens of the free city are the stanchest and most militant patriots in the world. The belligerent type of patriotism found in European universities prevails through Danzig's population.

"In their conflict with Poland the Danzigers are harming themselves economically. They now insist that approximately 400 Polish railroad employes living in Danzig must return to Poland. This means an economic loss of at least 2,000,000 Danzig gulden [$400,000] in trade each year.

"The Danzig business men have the idea that when they were made a free city their compensation for being separated from Germany was to be a virtual monopoly of Polish trade through their port.

"Conditions have changed. Today Russia is practically closed for everybody as a market. To sell our goods we are compelled to become interested in maritime affairs. Our contention is that we must have a port on the Baltic. So we built Gdynia, a few miles from Danzig, and we are not going to trust anybody with a monopoly on Polish trade."

Talking with the Danzigers one obtains the impression they are desperately determined to maintain their present attitude towards Poland and remain Germans. Talking with the Poles one finds an equally intense determination that Danzig must stop considering herself as a part of Germany temporarily cut off, accept her status of being a free city and make concessions to Polish penetration in return for business.

DE VALERA ASKS FARMERS TO BACK FIGHT ON BRITAIN

De Valera was among the pilgrims participating in the annual climb of Croagh Patrick mountain, County Mayo, today.

GEN. MA, CHINA'S MANCHURIA HERO, KILLED IN ACTION

Trapped with Staff by Two Japanese Divisions.

BY

The spectacular career of Japan's toughest foe in Manchuria was ended last Wednesday in the squalid mud hut village of Ankuchen, forty miles northeast of Hailun in the foothills of the Khinghan mountains.

Gen. Ma died as he had lived—fighting. But they got him at last. Trapped between two Japanese divisions, Ma and the remnants of his former army of 20,000 men, made a gallant stand. The Japanese pressed relentlessly in until they had annihilated the last man in their mud huts. After the battle they found the little strategist in a hovel. His body bore many bullet wounds and his dead staff was around him.

Fortune Dwindled.

Nearby lay the remnants of a fortune that once amounted to more than $1,000,000 and an opium smoking outfit. The fortune had dwindled to 20 gold bars and two packages of bank notes against the Japanese Bank of Corea, a mere few thousand dollars.

Thus was ended a four months' manhunt by thousands of Japanese soldiers in the vast areas of northern Manchuria. Frequently the Japanese thought they had Ma trapped, but always heretofore they had been wrong. They even charged he used several 'doubles" in the manner of American movies to help conceal his real whereabouts.

Gen. Ma has been reported killed before but Gen. Matsuki, the Japanese commander of the Harbin district, is certain this time. He announced that Japanese troops are bringing Ma's body back to Harbin.

Gen. Shigeru Honjo, the Japanese leader whom Ma effectively opposed, today lauded the little chieftain's fighting ability and regretted that he had been "led into fighting for the wrong cause."

Once a Bandit.

Ma once was a Manchurian bandit. He gained regularity and respectability as commander of the Taheiho garrison under the former Heilungkiang governor, Wan Fu-lin.

Ma emerged into world prominence last November as the defender of northern Manchuria against Japanese invasion. He harassed the Japanese for weeks until they finally routed his army near Tsitsihar. But he had fought a Japanese force to a standstill at Nonni river bridge before he was beaten.

China then adopted Ma as a hero, sending several millions of dollars, Mexican, for his heroic strategy. But suddenly Ma accepted an invitation to join the "puppet" Manchoukuo government of Henry Pu-yi.

Ma attended Pu-yi's inauguration as chief of the new Manchuokuo and accepted the posts of minister of war and governor of Heilungkiang province. Then he executed another coup. On April 1 of this year he escaped the surveillance of the Japanese military at Tsitsihar, and returned to his old headquarters at Taheiho, across the Amur river from soviet Siberia, to make his last stand against the Japanese.

Jap Planes Raid Jehol.

Meanwhile, Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatches from Chinchow today said the Japanese had executed two air raids over Jehol and were threatening more bombardment in that last Manchurian province governed by the Chinese.

The capture of Gonshiro Ishimoto, a former Japanese army officer, while on a mission in Jehol, started a Japanese force into Jehol July 18. The Japanese, however, held up an offensive to permit Gov. Tang Yu-lin's regular troops to return Ishimoto.

The situation became tense again this week-end on the basis of Japanese reports that allies of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, former Manchurian war lord, were concentrating on the Jehol border, and that Chang's forces in and around Peiping were being augmented. Meanwhile, Ishimoto is still a captive.

Manchuria remains isolated from the rest of the world so far as mail is concerned. No deliveries have been made since the British postal commissioner resigned a week ago when the Manchoukuo authorities announced their intention to take over all the postoffices of Manchuria. Mountains of mail are piling up in all postoffices.

TRIES TO DIE ON TRACKS.

Louis Horgberg, 21 years old, 8612 Summit avenue, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by lying down on the Rock Island tracks at 86th street in front of a suburban train. Engineer George Barkleman threw on the brakes and halted the train just as it reached the youth. He was slightly injured.

CHINA RAISES CUSTOMS DUTIES TO MEET DEBTS

NANKING, China, July 31.—(AP)—In order to raise funds to meet foreign and domestic loan obligations pending a settlement of the Sino-Japanese-Manchurian customs dispute, the nationalist government today ordered an increase in customs duties on certain commodities, effective Aug. 1.

The details of the increase are not yet available, but it is understood that medicines and luxuries, such as wines, tobaccos, artificial silk, and Japanese toys will be affected. Some are to be taxed as high as 80 per cent, it is learned.

The government expects the new duties to bring in $7,000,000 in gold each month, which will about cover the loss in revenue through the Japanese seizure of Manchurian customs.

CHINA STRICKEN BY CHOLERA AND FLOODS; 200 DIE

SHANGHAI, July 31.—(AP)—Cholera, the dread summertime disease of China, raged through the Yangtze valley today, taking a heavy toll in lives, while the Yellow river was flooding a vast area and Canton was counting a death toll of 200 from recent heavy rains.

Chinese advices from western Honan province said the disease is spreading rapidly and that authorities have appealed to Nanking for medical aid. The City of Honanfu is one of the worst sufferers.

Meanwhile in western Shensi province the Yellow river has flooded a vast area, inundating thirty towns and making 50,000 persons homeless. Canton dispatches said that the heavy rains had demolished hundreds of dwellings of the poor. The deaths were estimated at 200, including 30 in a home for the aged which was submerged.

MANAGUA FIGHTS MALARIA; GUARD MARINES' HEALTH

[Copyright, 1932, By the New York Times.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 31.—With the number of cases increasing daily, the government is making efforts to stop a severe epidemic of malaria.

The cleaning up of the lake front, the source of malarial infection, is being directed by E. H. Magood, Rockefeller sanitary engineer. The epidemic followed the earthquake last year, and investigation shows that 85 per cent of the population is infected in some sections of Managua.

In order to keep the American marine camp here free of disease, Gen. R. C. Berkeley, the commander, has ordered that liberty for enlisted men will cease at 9:15 p. m.

FUGITIVE FROM PRISON CAPTURED.

Logansport, Ind., July 31.—[Special.]—Jack Riser, 39, fugitive from the Indiana state prison for four months, was captured here today. He was armed but offered no resistance.

PARAGUAY ISSUES CALL TO ARMS TO BATTLE BOLIVIA

Another of Nation's Chaco Forts Is Seized.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, July 31.—Paraguay ordered a general mobilization of troops today to fight Bolivia. A formal declaration of a state of war seems imminent, according to Asuncion dispatches.

The mobilization order followed the capture by Bolivian infantry and airplanes of the third Paraguayan stronghold in the last few days, Fort Boqueron, in the long disputed Gran Chaco boundary region. Great excitement prevailed in La Paz, the Bolivian capital, as news of the attack and victory reached there. Fifteen thousand paraded the streets in a demonstration of patriotism.

Bolivia Also Girds.

Reports of the mobilization of the first line of Bolivian reserves, totaling 11,000, reached here yesterday.

The two nations have been plunging toward war for more than a month, ever since Paraguay broke off arbitration negotiations at Washington, D. C., because, she declared, Bolivia attacked one of her forts in the Chaco. The region has been in dispute for nearly 60 years.

Sporadic clashes have occurred in the last month with forts which both countries have established in the disputed area as the prizes. Reports of fighting aroused both countries to a high pitch of war feeling.

Students Gird for Battle.

BUENOS AIRES, July 31.—(AP)—Stories of mounting defense funds came out of Bolivia and Paraguay today in the heat of their new argument over their old boundary dispute in the Chaco territory.

Asuncion dispatches said the students of the university there had formed a battalion 800 strong. They refused to submit to a medical examination, declaring all were fit for military service.

The newspaper El Liberal of Asuncion printed a dispatch from Bolivia saying Bolivian deserters had dumped five machine guns in the Pilcomayo river.

Dispatches from the interior of Bolivia today to La Paz asserted that the news of the Bolivian capture of Forts Corrales and Toledo in the Chaco was being received with enormous enthusiasm and that defense funds were increasing.

Chile Neutral.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, July 31.—Private advices by telephone from Antofagasta today stated that, despite official denials, mobilization of the first line Bolivian reserves of 11,000 has been decreed.

The official Chilean attitude toward the Chaco dispute is one of strict neutrality despite the fact that relations hitherto have been more friendly to Paraguay than to Bolivia.

Push Back Rebels in Brazil.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 31.—(AP)—The fourth week of the Sao Paulo revolution began today with a claim by the Rio de Janeiro federals that their circle of troops was drawing tighter around Sao Paulo, and the counter claim that the Sao Paulistas had fought a battle with the federals in which the federal losses were 800 dead.

[The rebel claim came from Sao Paulo via radio to Montevideo. It asserted that the federal dead were 800 in an intense battle. The position of the battle was not given.]

U. S. AND FRANCE TO SEEK FORMULA FOR CUT IN ARMS

PARIS, July 31. — (AP) — Franco-American negotiations seeking an acceptable formula for reduction of armed forces, with a special eye on the French army, are expected to be opened very soon. United States Ambassador Walter E. Edge is preparing for negotiation of a commercial treaty between France and the United States.

It is understood that Washington has represented to the French government unofficially that a disarmament agreement and the conclusion of a commercial treaty would be a means of approach for a revision of the French debt to the United States, if the French wish favorable treatment.

Woman Killed by Train; Husband Hurt 2d Time

La Porte, Ind., July 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Fred Barstedt, 65 years old, of Hanna, Ind., was killed today when an automobile driven by her husband was struck by a Nickel Plate freight train at Walkerton, 15 miles southwest of here. Barstedt, who is 71 years old, received further injuries when the ambulance which was bringing him to Crown Point after the accident was forced off the road by another car. Ray Nussbaum, driver of the ambulance, also was hurt. Barstedt is not expected to live.

DIES FROM FALL INJURIES.

Mrs. Mary Hatch, 63 years old, 817 North Central Park avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital from the effects of a fall in her home on July 24.

A BANDIT LEARNS WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM IN HOLDUP

The holdup man who was given a beating and turned over to police Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. William Pallowick, 245 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park, yesterday told police of the suburb that he was Harry Taylor, 26 years old, 1620 North Troy street.

Taylor said he was standing at Nordica and Grand avenues when Pallowick picked up Mrs. Pallowick, who works in the neighborhood, in the family car. He clung to the rear bumper of the car until Pallowick stopped before the garage behind his home, and then, he confessed, he stepped forward with a revolver and tried to hold up the couple.

"Pallowick started to give me some change," said Taylor, "and then everything went black."

The Pallowicks had explained previously why Taylor lost consciousness. Noting that the bandit was holding his gun loosely, Mrs. Pallowick knocked it out of his hand. Her husband promptly hung a knockout blow on Taylor's jaw, and was engaged in tossing him about the alley when neighbors arrived, summoned by shots which had been fired from the bandit's gun by Mrs. Pallowick.

POLICE PRISONER DIES.

Dan Rodney, 32 years old, 907 South Seeley avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of a fractured skull. He became ill Saturday in a cell at the Des Plaines street police station, where he had been locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct.

POLICE SEIZE 36 BOYS AND GIRLS ON BEACH PARTY

Summerdale police raided a beach party at the foot of Ardmore avenue early yesterday morning and arrested 16 girls and 20 boys, most of whom were between 17 and 20 years old. The party was in honor of Morris Schechter, 23 years old, 4221 Independence boulevard, and his bride, Fay Greenberg Schechter.

About 2 o'clock the party collected about two bonfires singing to the accompaniment of banjos and guitars. Mrs. Eva L. White, 5815 Sheridan road, summoned the police, complaining she has frequently been annoyed by late beach parties. Two patrolmen were jeered at by the young people, it was said, when they ordered them from the beach. The patrol wagon and fliver squads were summoned.

At the station the girls were released, but the boys were held until they put up bonds of $25 each. The last was released about 7 o'clock in the morning. The boys were charged with disorderly conduct and will be arraigned before Judge Harold O'Connell in the Boys' court.

2,000 Cadets at C. M. T. C. Take Oath of Allegiance

More than 2,000 members of the annual Citizens Military Training camp at Fort Sheridan took the oath of allegiance yesterday. They were sworn in by Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commander of the fort. This morning the men will be put through a four hour drill and there will be athletics this afternoon.

POLICE CONTINUE DRIVING SCHOOL ON DUNES ROADS

40 Arrested on Second Sunday of Education.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Indiana state police yesterday, in the second Sunday of their campaign to educate drivers on the old and the new Dunes highways, warned hundreds of erring motorists, arrested 40 flagrant violators and won convictions against 37.

Thirty-eight of the arrests were on the new forty foot pavement between Gary and the Michigan-Indiana line northeast of Michigan City. Most of the motorists were taken before the judge for swinging to the left of the center line of the pavement. Others however, in a prosecution without precedent in the Illinois sector of Chicagoland, were tried for slow driving in the lane next to the center line instead of following the signboard instructions to "keep to the right except while passing."

Seize Two as Reckless Drivers.

The two motorists arrested on the old two lane Dunes highway were found guilty of reckless driving for cutting in and out of line. On the narrow road the police are trying to make every one stay in line and move at least 40 miles an hour when the right of way ahead is clear.

At the western edge of Gary a state policeman was stopping all cars without license plates. Almost all of them, about 75 or 80, were Illinois cars and the drivers were sent back to Illinois. The Indiana motorists were given court summons.

THE TRIBUNE roadster, in a couple of hours of driving on the Dunes roads, encounted improved traffic conditions although there was evidence that the police had not completed their job. There was still an occasional car that would swing to the left of the center line into the face of oncoming traffic, then pass a cluster of automobiles traveling at a more moderate gait.

Police to Stay on Job.

"We'll continue making arrests as long as they are necessary to convince the public that we're going to enforce ordinary rules of the road," said Lieut. Walter Wilson, in command of the police detail. "Nine additional motorcycles have been assigned for Sunday duty on the Dunes roads and they'll probably stick at this work until every one is staying in the outside lanes except when passing and until this swinging to the left of the center line is stopped.

"Sometimes the man who is forced to the left of the center line is not at fault. Sometimes blame properly belongs on a slow driver failing to stay in the outer lane. In such cases we arrest the slow driver. Sometimes both the man passing and the man being passed are at fault and in these cases we take both drivers before the judge.

Courtesy Is the Rule.

"The great majority of motorists appreciate what we are doing and are cooperating. Those we have to arrest are treated with courtesy. In warning a driver of his mistake we do not find it necessary to be abusive. Abuse merely antagonizes the motoring public whereas civility breeds respect for the law and for the enforcement officers.

"Last summer three patrolmen were released from the force for swearing at aggravating and flagrant traffic law violators."

'BRZINSKI STICKS TO HIS STICKUP LITTLE TOO LONG

Frank Brzinski was too persistent a would-be bandit for his own good this morning. Armed with a revolver boasting a six inch barrel, Brzinski, who is 30 years old and lives at 2315 Kroll street, stepped up to a young couple parked in an automobile in front of 2638 West 24th place.

He ordered the occupants, Helen Szewczyu, 18 years old, of the 24th place address, and Victor Skriba, 23, of 2621 West 24th street, to get out. They got out, and for good measure ran away.

Brzinski's persistency then showed itself. He chased Skriba and Miss Szewczyu, calling out, "This is a stickup." At the same time he fired several shots at them. Meantime Sergt. Richard Johnstone and his detective bureau squad heard both the shots and the shouted warning. They joined in the shooting also and finally cornered Brzinski in an alley at 25th place and Rockwell street.

PLAN TO WATCH ECLIPSE AUG. 31? GUARD YOUR EYES

Boston, Mass., July 31.—(AP)—If you are one of the thousands who are planning to attend the solar system's big show, "the total eclipse" with "Old Sol" in the feature role on Aug. 31, be careful of your eyes.

The Harvard College observatory and the Massachusetts Eye and Ear infirmary today joined in a word of caution to the public who will be watching the eclipse. After every eclipse there come to the attention of oculists numerous cases of injured eye sight, due to looking at the sun without proper protection.

The observatory and infirmary officials joined in making up a list of what to do and what not to do. It is:

"Without protection, do not look at the bright disk of the sun, even when it has been partially covered by the moon.

"Protect both eyes. If you look with one eye only, at least cover the other eye with the hand, not merely by closing the eyelid.

IBN SAUD BEHEADS RIVAL; BOYS MAKE HEAD A FOOTBALL

JEDDA, Hedjaz, Arabia, July 31.—(AP)—The government of powerful Ibn Saud, ruler of much of Arabia, announced tonight it had subdued a rebellion among the Bedouin tribesmen, killing 360 rebels, including the Bedouin leader, Ibn Rifada, whose head the desert boys used as a football.

The communique revealed for the first time that a revolt had occurred in the desert. A day long battle was fought. The Hedjaz government said its own losses were negligible.

Ibn Rifada's uprising against the government was the fruition of a revolt predicted last spring when the tribes were exceedingly restless. It was assumed this spring that the world economic crisis, which affected the hot desert country just as it did the world, would bring an uprising.

POLITICIAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF IN HOSPITAL

New York, July 31.—(Special.)—Dudley Kirkton Morris, 42, Democratic leader of Sea Cliff, L. I., shot and killed his wife, Abby, 45, and then committed suicide today in a private room of the North Country Community hospital here. Mrs. Morris had been taken to the hospital 12 days ago suffering from cancer. Physicians had held out little hope for her recovery.

She met her death with her arms crossed upon her breast and an unfinished murder story turned down upon her bed. Her husband had fired two shots. The first pierced Mrs. Morris' forehead, killing her instantly, and the second entered her breast. He died a moment later, sprawled across the foot of his wife's bed.

5 SCHOOLS TO GO ON EXPERIMENT BASIS THIS FALL

Bogan Cites Higher Grades of Kilmer Pupils.

Five more elementary schools will be conducted this fall along the experimental lines that proved a success last year in the Joyce Kilmer school at Greenview and North Shore avenues, according to William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools. There were 49 pupils to a teacher in the Kilmer school last year, the highest load of any elementary school in the city.

"But despite this load," asserted Mr. Bogan, "the Kilmer pupils made higher grades than the average for other school children in the system."

In the Kilmer experimental school the long used "question and answer" system of education has been largely discarded and individual effort or "learning by adventure," as some educators call it, put into use.

727 Pupils in School.

The school is under the direction of James E. McDade, division superintendent. Grace E. Munson is principal. Its enrollment in June of this year was 727 pupils.

According to Mr. McDade, the school will aid in correcting detrimental mass methods of educating children, which resulted from the rapid growth of the city and the crowded school rooms.

"Heretofore the teacher has gone along on the idea that education is something that she gives to the child and not something inherent in the pupil that must develop from within," said Mr. McDade. "This was the audience idea. The teacher stood in front of the class and talked and her pupils did not have to grub for their learning as they should have."

Classes Forge Ahead.

In one first grade room in the Kilmer school the class advanced at more than twice the prescribed rate, according to the principal, despite a series of epidemics which reduced the attendance during the first semester.

"They were able to do this," Principal Munson said, "because the projects and activities kept the children alert and interested."

A second grade class accomplished one and a half year's work in one year without a single formal recitation, she said, and in a sixth grade class the pupils managed their own discussions so well that in April their rating, as shown by tests, was on the level of the fourth month of seventh grade.

DRIVER OF MOTOR COACH IS SHOT IN BACK BY ROBBER

Wesley Schellen, 35 years old, of 7942 Wabash avenue, a driver for the Chicago Motor Coach company, was shot in the back last night by one of two Negro bandits after they had held him up in his bus in Washington park and robbed him of several dollars. He was taken to the Washington Park hospital, where it was said he will recover.

Schellen told Sergt. Richard Dorsey of the Wabash station that the men boarded his bus at 31st street and South Park avenue. In the southern end of Washington park they covered him with a pistol and took his money changer. Then they ordered him to turn his back and give them the bills he had in his pocket. When he turned one of the robbers fired a bullet into his back. He was found in the street by the driver of the next bus that passed.

Dreams Twice of Lost Ring; Looks There and Finds It

McLean, Ill., July 31.—[Special.]—Four years ago Mrs. Arthur Baker, who lives on the McLean-Heyworth road, lost a valuable diamond ring. She had not been away from home between the time she missed the ring and when she was last seen to be wearing it. Last winter she dreamed she found her ring lying beneath the pantry floor. Having no faith in dreams she attached no significance to it. Recently, however, the dream reoccurred. In a skeptic frame of mind she was persuaded to investigate. An opening was made under the pantry floor and the ring was discovered.

Expect Big Turnout

A silver loving cup will be given by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the winner of the song battle between the Kiwanis and Lions clubs Saturday night, Aug. 20, when they meet each other across Soldiers' field at the third Chicagoland Music festival concert, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

The individual clubs are rehearsing at each weekly meeting the contest song, "America, the Beautiful." A. L. Anderson and W. K. Lasher have been chosen the choral directors for the Kiwanians and Al Slade and E. S. McCready will lead the Lions. It is expected that both clubs will turn out about 2,000 men. They will be seated in special sections near the festival stage at the north end of the field. The Kiwanians will be seated on the east side. The Lions, by a tossup, won the right to sing first.

Three of Chicago's leading choral conductors will be selected judges for the contest, and the winner will be announced after the song battle. Committees in charge of the event are as follows: Kiwanis—Frank J. Tyrrell, chairman All-Chicago clubs; Mr. Anderson; Mr. Lasher, and Roy Battis, editor Kiwanis bulletin. Lions—George F. Both clubs have invited Kiwanians and Lions living in Chicagoland to join with the Chicago clubs in the contest.

FEAR BOMBINGS IN CUBA; GUARD U. S. EMBASSY

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, July 31.—Guards at the United States embassy and the Japanese legation will be doubled tomorrow to prevent threatened bombings by communists. All other buildings occupied by diplomats also will be doubly guarded.

Plans for outbreaks in all parts of Cuba are said to have been discovered by raids last night in which several Polish communists and many other persons were arrested.

Military authorities have given strict orders to avert disorders and the police have been instructed to prevent the congregation of crowds. Police reserves were ordered to be on the alert.

FIND HARVESTER CO. WORKERS WILL REAP HUGE CROPS

One million cabbages and tomatoes from one million plants are part of the crop which will be harvested this year in the International Harvester company employé gardens, according to a survey made public yesterday by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. The survey shows that the gardens, one of the most comprehensive projects of its kind, cover a total of 2,800 acres, of which 1,000 acres are in the Chicago area.

Plans for the gardens were made in February, when a committee was selected to interview all employés, including those receiving loans or allowances from the company. Soil specialists passed on all sites as to surface worth, chemical acidity, and available phosphorus. Seeds and plants were distributed to employés at cost or gratis, and farm tools were obtained from company factories.

The garden project for employés is gaining popularity among other companies, the survey showed. Deere & Co. of Moline, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, and the Bradley Implement works, near Kankakee, are other concerns supporting gardens for their workers.

Struck by Golf Ball; May Lose the Sight of His Eye

Milwaukee, Wis., July 31.—[Special.]—James Muth, 41, foreman of the Currie park golf course, was struck by a golf ball late today and may lose the sight of his left eye as a result. The ball struck him flush in the eye. He was standing off the fairway, about 180 feet from a tee, when a golfer drove off. The ball curved to the right and hit Muth. He is at County General hospital.

Next time you listen to an argument as to which is the best cigarette, you can chip in with something more than an opinion.

You won't have to say: "I think the tobacco in OLD GOLD is purer and finer." Instead, you can say: "I KNOW OLD GOLD is better; it's made of finest natural flavored tobacco. Science has proved it!"

As surely as Science can assay pure gold, so it can tell which cigarette is basically the choicest. It did that with 4 leading brands. It made 75 tests of 4 competing cigarettes . . . and found the smoke of an OLD GOLD definitely cooler . . . indicating its superior tobacco quality and purity.

"Coolness" is the clue to cigarette quality. Only the finest and purest tobacco burns "cool." That's the tobacco in OLD GOLDS. The choicest Turkish and domestic leaf; free of heat-making flavorings.

Evidence, not adjectives. If you welcome this change in a cigarette advertisement . . . you'll welcome a change to pure-tobacco OLD GOLD.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

The Verdict of Science

This is to certify that in 75 repeated cool tests made of the 4 leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette in B. T. U./lb. with the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, it was shown that:

Old Gold averages 112 B.T.U's. Cooler than Brand X
Old Gold averages 155 B.T.U's. Cooler than Brand Y
Old Gold averages 156 B.T.U's. Cooler than Brand Z

RIDING ACADEMY IS LOOTED AFTER U. S. FINDS STILL

Souvenir Hunters Carry Off Even the Stalls.

Wreckage of the Blue Island Riding academy at 2027 West 120th street, Blue Island, began by prohibition agents Saturday when a still was found on the property, was completed yesterday by souvenir hunters. So great was the press that police were called. A guard was placed over the property after almost everything removable had been taken.

Early visitors removed the fixtures of the academy, including the plumbing. Children ran about the neighborhood playing with the harness of the 14 horses which the government had seized the day before. Others carried off window frames and demolished the stalls for kindling. Later arrivals entered the living quarters in front of the property and carried off the furniture.

Try to Steal Kennel.

When the police arrived they found one party attempting to take the dog kennel which had masked the secret entrance to the still. The dog and the horses eventually were turned over to the Illinois Humane society. Vats were under 10 of the 14 stalls in the stable.

Records of H. J. Schnurstern, building inspector of Blue Island, showed that the owner of the property is John Rock, 2027 West 120th street, Blue Island. A permit to build a garage on the premises had been taken out by Peter Matz, who gave the same address, last Oct. 14.

Illegally Erected.

The permit granted permission for the construction of a garage to cost $3,000. The contractor's name was given as J. Zeluis. The structure built was a stable 40 by 80 feet. Building Inspector Schnurstern said the cost of the structure was far in excess of the permit estimate and that it was illegally erected.

Papers found by the raiders indicated that a Clarence Wilson was one of the owners. His name does not appear on records of Blue Island. Two automobiles bearing license plates issued to Antheny Reed, 10934 Prospect avenue, and Roy S. Brown, 1414 Pratt boulevard, were also discovered.

The six story building at 2631 Arthington street, where a 100,000 gallon still was raided Saturday afternoon, is managed by Charles N. Johnson and leased to the Chapin-Rivers Terminal company, dry agents announced yesterday. They said the still was the largest ever raided in this area.

JURY TO PROBE TWO VERSIONS OF SLAYING TODAY

A coroner's jury will today hear two conflicting stories regarding the fatal shooting early yesterday of James De Salvo, 22 years old, 3532 South Francisco avenue, by Joseph Moch [alias Schumoch], 3032 Lake street, an ex-convict.

JOSEPH MOCH.

Moch charged after his arrest that De Salvo and a companion, Paul Foreman, 4844 West 36th place, tried to strong-arm and rob him at Archer and Hamlin avenues, where the shooting took place. Foreman charged, however, that Moch killed De Salvo in cold blood because De Salvo had referred to him earlier in the evening as a gangster.

Foreman's story was corroborated by John Gniadek, 4552 South Avers avenue, in whose home all three of the men had attended a drinking party earlier in the evening.

CO-ED BRIDE DIES

MRS. JOHN G. FOWLER.

The belated honeymoon of Second Lieutenant John G. Fowler of the army aviation corps, and Mrs. Phyllida Dilg Fowler, Northwestern university graduate, ended in tragedy last week, it was learned yesterday. She died suddenly Thursday aboard the Steamship President Harding while homeward bound with her husband from London. She will be buried tomorrow or Wednesday in Arlington National cemetery.

Mrs. Fowler was 23 years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dilg of 2715 Harrison street, Evanston. She was graduated from Ferry hall, from where she went to Northwestern. While at Northwestern she met Lieut. Fowler. Immediately following her graduation in June, 1931, they were wed.

His duties at Randolph field, San Antonio, Tex., prevented a honeymoon at that time, however, and it was deferred until last May. As part of the honeymoon they visited Lieut. Fowler's father, Ira W. Fowler, president of the Fowler Casing company of London, England. It was while returning from that visit that Mrs. Fowler was stricken. The cause of death was not learned in Chicago last night.

Mrs. Fowler was a member of Delta Gamma sorority at Northwestern.

Trio Posing as Police Rob Farmer on Highway

St. Joseph, Mich., July 31.—[Special.]—Three men, representing themselves as officers, held up Charles Nimtz, a Bridgeman, Mich., farmer near there today, robbing him of $267. The trio fled in an auto. All had guns. Crowding Nimtz to the curb south of here, two of the men alighted, one showing an officer's star.

ISSUE WARNING AGAINST BOGUS CHARITY PICNICS

With the outing season in full swing, the tide of petty fraud turns to such seasonal swindling as promotion of phony charity picnics, according to a warning issued yesterday by the better business bureau. Most common among the picnic dodges, according to investigators, is the sale of tickets for the benefit of fake police or sheriff organizations on assurance that the buyer will be afforded immunity, particularly for speed and traffic law violations.

New ways of fleecing unemployed persons in search of jobs also continue to crop up, according to the bureau. Latest of these to be uncovered is the "hammer game." The racketeer rents an office as a purported advertising manager of a national business located in another city. He advertises for "sign tackers." When the men appear in search of jobs he tells them his "company" plans to tack up advertising on every state highway in the country. Each sign tacker, the racketeer explains, much have a particular type of hammer before his application will be considered. The victims beg or borrow the price of the hammer, which is from two to four times its value and the racketeer decamps.

GIRL KILLED AS AUTO HITS TRUCK.

Adrian, Mich., July 31.—[Special.]—Miss Pauline Zeluff, 23, of Toledo, O., was killed in an automobile accident on the Chicago pike U. S. 112, 13 miles north of Adrian, last night. R. C. Pocklington, Ridgeway, with whom she was riding, was seriously injured. The car struck a parked truck.

DELIVERS 100,000 TO PRISON SAFELY, BUT ESCAPE MARS RECORD

Abilene, Tex., July 31.—(AP)— "Uncle Bud" Russell is out to clear up a blot on his reputation as a prison transfer agent.

Carlos Brazil, Mexican prisoner who ran away Tuesday, is the blot. Russell has returned here to search for Brazil, who was last seen hiding in weeds along Cedar creek after fleeing from a penitentiary van in front of the Taylor county jail.

Brazil's flight cracked the agent's 24 year record of delivering 100,000 prisoners at the penitentiary and returning 4,100 "escapes" without losing a man.

Russell said he had pursued Brazil more than a mile.

"I didn't want to kill him," Russell said, "nor hurt anybody with a ricocheting bullet. I finally lost him when he winded me."

2 Drunken Bandits Leap Into Auto and Rob Couple

CROSLEY LEAVES TODAY FOR DUTY WITH THE FLEET

Rear Admiral Walter S. Crosley, U. S. N., will relinquish his duties as commandant of the Ninth naval district and the Great Lakes Naval Training station today and leave for the Pacific coast, where he will report to Admiral Richard H. Leigh for duty as commander of a battleship division in the Pacific.

He will be succeeded by Rear Admiral Watt T. Cluverius, who is relinquishing command of cruiser division No. 4 of the scouting force, and will take over his duties at Great Lakes about the middle of September. In the interval Capt. Halsey Powell, the assistant commandant of the district, will be in charge.

The detachment of Admiral Crosley will be attended by a simple ceremony to be held today on the parade ground at Great Lakes. The 3d battalion of recruits will be drawn up in formation and Admiral Crosley will read his orders of detachment and then deliver a brief address. A salute of thirteen guns will be fired.

COUNTESS KILLS SELF NEAR TOMB OF ANCESTORS

PARIS, July 31.—Countess Richard d'Aste, said to be a granddaughter of the late Field Marshal Lord Roberts, committed suicide today by swallowing six sleeping tablets in the Parisian cemetery where her ancestors are buried.

"Not having enough money to buy a revolver, I am using tablets," a letter to police said. According to her lawyer her family deposited $800 in a bank in London three centuries ago and she was entitled to both principal and interest. He said they were about to locate the bank to get the funds.

The countess was being sued for divorce in Paris and a court judgment was imminent against her. She had been ousted from her home at Cannes recently for nonpayment of rent and was ordered to pay her landlord $1,200 damages.

FIGHT FIRE IN WAREHOUSE.

Firemen were called to fight a fire in the Herrmann warehouse, 900 Blue street, yesterday, when bales of cotton burst into flames. The cotton was in the place when a $300,000 fire occurred there several months ago and portions of it have been smoldering since.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE WHY AND THE HOW IN BONUS WAR.

Comment on the driving out of the B. E. F. from its Washington billets requires a passing note on two points which might be lost. The culmination of the bonus episode came when the government tried to get possession of building sites. The men were squatting in buildings and on land where the government proposes to spend $350,000,000 in new government building. With extraordinary deficits, extraordinary appropriations and punitive tax rates as a consequence of deficits and appropriations the federal authorities are proceeding to spend this grent sum to house the bureaucratic locusts which are feeding off the land.

For this expenditure the excuse is offered that it will furnish much needed employment; the kind of government employment which ends in the unemployment which was driven from the sites. It would not be easy to decide which was the least desirable condition, that made by bonus seekers camping in the capital to get something they never should have been encouraged to think was their due or that which will be made by the shovels scooping out holes in which to sink more of the country's resources. The squatters were at least keeping the bureaucrats out until the army turned the gas on them.

The second point is gas. Here was an ugly situation which threatened to get worse. The police apparently were unable to handle it and the squatters felt that they could hold their own. In the fighting with the police one man was killed and many injured because guns, clubs and brickbats were used. When the infantry moved in to take possession tear gas was employed. It did the work which might otherwise have required bayonets, rifle butts or gunshots. A most unpleasant episode might have been the consequence of trying to control the disorder and eject the men by force. The gas did it with ease. The military had the upper hand at once.

Chemicals can be used to subdue American citizens, but international agreement seeks to bar the use of gas on enemies, sentimentalizing one category of destructive weapons as humane and another as unspeakably barbaric.

CAPT. WOLFGANG VON GRONAU.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, Germany's great pioneer of the air, again will be a welcome visitor in Chicago. He has now flown the Atlantic three times. If, as we confidently believe, the time comes when passengers and the mails will be transported across the oceans regularly in airplanes, much of the credit for the choice of routes will be Capt. von Gronau's and much of the technical equipment employed will have received its first important testing at his hands. For his achievements in the field of aviation science and for his gallantry in a perilous enterprise Chicago pays tribute to this distinguished son of a distinguished race.

SPECIAL COURTS FOR SPECIAL CRIMES.

Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court has ordered that, beginning today, all cases wherein the defendants are charged with larceny of automobiles, possession of stolen automobiles or automobiles with numbers obliterated or changed, and larceny of parts, be returned to and tried in branch 42. Also that all cases wherein the defendants are charged with carrying concealed weapons on the person or in motor vehicles, or with defacing identification marks, shall be returned to branch 27, except where the defendants are aged 17 to 21, the law requiring these to be tried in the Boys' court.

The purpose of these orders is to concentrate these cases so as to increase efficiency of handling and permit the chief justice to keep in touch with developments in these forms of criminal activity. Judge Sonsteby says that while under Capt. Zimmer the police division of stolen automobiles has been functioning well with about 90 per cent recoveries, there has developed a new criminal racket, the stripping of cars of accessories, leaving recovered cars almost valueless. A new variety of "fence" who distributes these stolen accessories has appeared and probably a ring of specialists in this crime is in operation.

Meanwhile the prosecution of gun toting, as THE TRIBUNE has noted repeatedly, is not satisfactory, even the most flagrant cases escaping punishment through technicalities of the law, ineffective presentation of evidence, or other reasons.

By bringing these special cases to special courts magistrates will acquire a knowledge of conditions and of personalities which will assist in adequate procedure, and there will be less chance for evasions and irresponsible action. Judge Sonsteby says truly that while every person, innocent or guilty, is guaranteed under our law the protection of his civil rights, this does not mean that all circumstances should be resolved in favor of the criminal. In too many instances this has occurred, whether innocently or through the influence which organized crime exerts in politics.

Judge Sonsteby's orders seem to promise increased efficiency and responsibility in the prosecution of the offenses referred to.

NEW LEADERS IN THE FIGHT FOR TAX RELIEF.

The formation of an advisory council for the National Economy league will add notably to the effectiveness of that organization's important public service. The personnel of the council, which will include Calvin Coolidge, Alfred E. Smith, Elihu Root, Newton D. Baker, Gen. Pershing and Admiral Sims, indicates not only the influence it will exert but the seriousness with which these outstanding citizens regard the cause to which the Economy league is dedicated. It is encouraging, if not surprising, that such men are entering into the fight for reduction of public expenditure and relief from taxation. The issue is, in fact, paramount in American public affairs, one which concerns the drastic measures required to arrest the descent of the nation into bankruptcy and social chaos and the restoration of conditions essential to prosperity and renewed progress. The crisis, as THE TRIBUNE has been striving for months to make clear, is as grave as any the nation has had to meet in its history and calls for the best in American citizenship. The resistance to necessary action is many-sided and powerful and nothing less than the utmost effort of our intelligence and public spirit, and that organized thoughout the country, will overcome it.

The Economy league has begun its campaign with courage and practical sense by attacking the problem of retrenchment where an abused public sentiment and a mistaken political expediency may be expected to resist most strenuously, at least until the situation is better known; that is, the retrenchment of the huge expenditures for so-called veterans' relief.

We have had of late some lip service and generalizations in politics respecting public economy. But this is of little meaning, as the late session of congress and many other similar experiences in lesser bodies have demonstrated. The essentials of success are public informedness, through a campaign of education in the facts, and, not less important, the organization of the demand for retrenchment throughout the country. The National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, initiated in Chicago, has made an excellent beginning with state organizations and should proceed until efficient organizations are at work in every state. Coördination with the Economy league campaign and with all general and local associations of common purpose we hope will be perfected.

THE JUDGES ON THE HORSES.

The state Supreme court holds the pari-mutuel race track betting law legal as to horses, but finds that it does not apply to dog races. It does not appear from what has been printed of the decision that the judges were impressed by the contribution of the pari-mutuels to improved methods of transportation. The race track fan is not expected to learn how to get from, say, Arlington, home more comfortably or more rapidly by spending an afternoon at the track, but the percentage which agriculture takes from the receipts may be reflected in stock improvement.

In ruling out the dogs the court proceeded quaintly to distinguish between the race with a human rider up and the greyhounds' sprint. The dogs, it appears, run only as their temperament, instinct, or mood directs them, whereas the horses are stimulated by human management to their best efforts. Apparently in the judgment of the court a two dollar bet can put only a precarious faith in the greyhound and may rely confidently on the jockey to get the best out of his nag.

At the tracks this will be accepted as one of the serenest tributes ever paid not only to the racing fraternity but to the nobility of human nature. The older but unjudicial opinion was that you couldn't trust any betting sport which had a human being in it.

RUNNING AWAY FROM UTOPIA.

A dispatch from Bucharest reports that three peasant women and two children were killed by machine gun fire from Russian guards on the Dnieper. There have been quite a few of these incidents of late on the Rumanian frontier. The penalty for not appreciating the charms of life in the communist Utopia seems to be death, which may or may not interest the American intelligentsia in their present mood of enthusiasm for the bolshevik system.

Editorial of the Day

POST-SESSION RECORD.

[Illinois State Journal.]

The seventy-second congress adjourned July 16, but copies of the Congressional Record continue to arrive regularly at this desk. The daily issues are ponderous as ever, despite the fact that for ten days the congress has not been in session and most of the senators and representatives have long since started work on their political fences back home.

The contents of the post-session issues of the Congressional Record approximate the material that is printed in the appendix of that valued journal when the congress is in session. The pages are given to "extension of remarks," reprints of speeches and addresses, exhibits, letters to congressmen, poetry, newspaper editorials, and glowing tributes to departed members, either deceased or politically dead at the hands of voters generally known.

A large percentage of the post-session Record is devoted to speeches never made on the floor of either house but printed to give the impression that they are actual excerpts from the official proceedings. A member writes a long speech, obtains leave to have it printed, and then mails out thousands of copies to his constituents under his congressional franking privilege. The Record is printed at an estimated expense of $58 per page. Once the type is set, members can have additional copies of the speeches printed at a few dollars per thousand. The voters back home sometimes think their representatives are great orators and debaters, when, in reality, those members did little more than answer roll calls.

This printing and distribution of phoney congressional orstory amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars in expense to the taxpayers. Is it worth while? Ask any taxpayer if he reads the speeches franked out by his congressman.

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH.

"It is high time," said the reformer, "that we had a moral awakening. Let us arise in our might. Let us gird our loins. Let us take off our coats. Let us bare our arms. Let us——"

"Hold on!" exclaimed a woman near the platform. "If this is to be a moral awakening don't you dare take off another thing!"—Tit Bits.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUG. 1, 1916.

PARIS.—Two days of fine weather have permitted the Anglo-French forces to take the offensive again on the Somme front. With one great bound they have pushed forward to the outskirts of Combles. They are up to the last German line of defense here, and at one point, on the tip of the Monacu farm, are in possession of a piece of the last line. This is the most important step the allied troops have yet achieved in their double drive on Bapaume and Peronne. Combles is the last great German defensive position between the present allied lines and the Peronne-Bapaume railroad.

LONDON.—The eastern and southeastern counties of England had a visitation from German airships late last night, and at this hour the attack is still proceeding. An official communication just issued says: "An attack by a number of hostile airships developed before midnight. The raiders are reported as having crossed the coast line along the eastern and southeastern counties. Bombs were dropped off the Thames estuary. The attack is proceeding."

PETROGRAD.—The official communication says: "On the Stokhod river our forward march continues. At certain points the enemy is employing gusts of fire. In the direction of Kovel fierce fighting continues. In the Brody area we are pursuing the enemy and have reached the rivers Graberski and Sereth."

BERLIN.—Strong Russian assaults in mass formation against the troops of Gen. von Linsingen were repulsed, said the German official statement. The Germans captured 1,889 Russians.

NEW YORK.—"America first and America efficient." This was the keynote, this the promise, uttered by Charles E. Hughes at Carnegie hall as he accepted from the hands of Senator Warren G. Harding and the Republican convention's notification committee the party's commission to lead the coming battle for the presidency.

CHICAGO.—The most destructive heat wave in Chicago's history was smashed yesterday when Lake Michigan suddenly went on a rampage several hours ahead of the cool wave moving in from the northwest. Before the grand old lake was aroused the scorcher took another heavy toll of human lives. Eighty-four deaths made up the day's record, raising the total for the four days attributed to the heat to 348, with prostrations running near the 1,000 mark.

CHICAGO.—Harry Monroe is dead. The man who had served as superintendent of the Pacific Garden mission, at 67 West Van Buren street, for twenty-four years, who converted "Billy" Sunday, and who was known throughout the country by hundreds of former convicts and gamblers whom he had reformed, died yesterday in his home, at 2202 West 110th place, Morgan Park. Mr. Monroe was 63 years old.

NEW YORK.—President E. B. Thomas of the Lehigh Valley railroad and President W. G. Besler of the Central Railroad of New Jersey probably will be arrested on charges of manslaughter, it was announced by Frank Hague, commissioner of public safety of Jersey City, in connection with the explosion on Black Tom island, which killed at least three men, injured scores, and caused damage of approximately $20,000,000.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

PARIS GREEN SPRAY.

Chicago, July 24.—[Friend of the People.]—A neighbor sprinkles paris green on the sidewalk and on empty lots where children come to play. They sit down there and are liable to get some in their mouths and get poisoned. What is going to be done about this? T. S.

You are advised that an inspector was assigned to make a thorough investigation, which resulted in the following report: "The owner has a garden between his and the adjoining premises north, covering a distance of 30x125 feet, which is inclosed with a fence. He has been sprinkling leaves and roots of various plants with a spray solution to kill insects. No nuisance was observed at the time of inspection."

HERMAN N. BUNDESEN,
President Board of Health.

MAY BECOME CITIZEN.

Chicago, July 24.—[Friend of the People.]—I came to Chicago from Canada in 1919, but no record of my examination by the immigration officers at Windsor (Detroit) can be located. Is there any possible way for me to become a citizen? R. S.

Yes. Congress has authorized the immigration service, by the act of March 2, 1929, to receive applications for registrations from those who arrived illegally prior to June 3, 1921, or whose record of arrival prior to that date cannot be located, and register such persons if they have resided in the United States continuously since arrival and if they are of good moral character and not subject to deportation. The writer should call at the office of the district director of immigration, Room 1343 Transportation building, Chicago, for a blank application and advice.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director U. S. Department of Labor.

TITLE TO FARM LANDS.

Chicago, July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I divorced my husband in 1927 for nonsupport and he has not been heard of since. We have a farm in Canada on which I have been paying taxes all these years and now I would like to sell it. Unfortunately, the title is in his name only. 1. Is a divorce issued in the United States legal in Canada? 2. Can a United States lawyer obtain the title for me? If not, what procedure would you advise? M. S.

1. Yes, if the facts were such that the court had jurisdiction.

2. The first step would be to ascertain how the title to the farm was held and whether there was any wording on the subject in the divorce decree.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DESERTION.

Chicago, July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a man's wife leaves his home and takes one of the children with her and refuses to return is he required by law to provide for the wife's and the child's board and keep elsewhere? 2. He is willing now and always has provided a good home for her in the past. In case she does not return and bring the child with her is he liable for any part of the child's or her board and expenses while she is away and refuses to return, according to the laws of Illinois? W. A.

1. If she has no ground for the desertion and he is continuing to offer her a home, then, in general, he would not be obliged to contribute to her support, but he should be required to contribute to the child's support. The foregoing relates only to permanent alimony. In any event he would be required to pay temporary alimony.

2. See No. 1. It is for a divorce court to fix his liability. The allowance is largely discretionary.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A LADY GOT A DIVORCE in New York on the ground that her husband had only been around to see her three times in five years. And probably every time he came he crabbed because the biscuits were hard as brickbats and the coffee was cold. It ought to be a positive pleasure to lots of ladies if they only have to see their storm and strifes three times in five years. But, as Cleopatra said to Marc Antony, people never know when they are well off.

AUGUST.

While mortals wilt beneath the summer's heat
The mighty Painter wields his brush. And here
Where crooning locusts tell the failing year,
He plots to capture by surprise complete
Our alien hearts. With pink and red and gold
He tints the gardens, which we thought were dead.
Nasturtiums linger, though July has sped,
And bright-faced pansies, never growing old.
There vivid poppies, tiger-lilies flame,
With dahlias, asters, clad in many hues.
But August loves the golden flowers: what crews
She bears, of marigolds, sunflowers which shame
The sun—and soon shall bloom chrysanthemums,
Whose prime shall be when loved October comes.

TAKIN THA B. & C. TO THA BIG FITE.

Dick: Wednesday morning the boss slips me 2 tickets fer tha big Golden-Gloves fite. I scratch my dandruff fer 10 minutes figgering how wood be tha best way to invite tha B. and C. so's she woodn't accept. I lifts up tha phone an says Mama, I got great news for you, me an you is going to see tha Golden-Gloves tonight. She asks me where it's playing an when I tell her it aint a show it's a prize fite, she tells me she sees enuff fites right in our kitchen and that I cood take somebody else, also not to come home fer supper as she's tired of that Hot-stove flirtation. Well, to make doubly sure she wooden go I throw in a please go honey an she slams up tha receiver. I says to myself nice work ole man an calls up Snow-shoe Al. Ordinarily when I take him places he wants to know if it includes eats. This time he's so tickled he fergets himself an tells me that he insists upon paying for his part of tha supper. Bout 4 o'clock that sister-in-law of mine calls up tha B. and C. an starts to ritz to beat hell telling tha Mama how she's gonna eat downtown an then go to tha Golden-Gloves. Well tha Mama shoots back with why, dearie, didn't I tell you lass week that tha Duke had orchestry seats for us? Ten minits later she phones me that shes changed her mind and is going. I tells her about Snow-shoe and asks her what I can tell Al and she says as far as she's concerned I can tell him to read tha papers tha next morning or change his socks listen to tha radio or eat worms or any other dam thing. When I breaks tha news to Al he was very gentlemanly about it an tells me to give tha bag his very best wishes for a louzy summer, fall, and winter. Taking a wife to a fite is tha answer to why men go wrong. First she wants to know why I got seats so high up an I tell her so's no blood can squirt on us. When tha colored boy Johnny Phagan was fightin Campe she wants to know which one is tha German, maybe I'm wrong but I yet got to see a German Afrikin. Next she wants to know why some of them are called lightweights so I juss tell her it's only tha losers that's called lightweights. 'Bout ten o'clock, just when tha fites was most interesting she tells me she's seen enough an we shood start for home. By this time I'm so mad I hands her 7 cents and tells her to give my best regards to tha conductor. Then she flares up an asks if there's any other favors she cood do for me.

DUKE BAKRAK.

P. S.—So I told her to include tha motorman.

LIGHT OF LOVE.

There's many a man lies under sod
Who walked as straight as you, lad.
There's a windier wind in some far sky,
There's greater love than the loves you've had.

There are stars in the night you've never seen,
There is taller grass on some greener lea,
And many a man turns underground
Who has wanted the soul out of me.

Go down to the sea in a fragile boat
And learn the wan face of the moon, lad.
For there's many a thing not told in books,
And death comes sure and soon, lad.

And a heart that's whole and free.
For there's many a man lies under sod
Who turned in the night to me.

CAN GOV. ROOSEVELT STAND THE STRAIN?

THE people have a right to the facts about the illness which crippled Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1921 Mr. Roosevelt was a fine physical specimen and in good health. He was 39 years old, married, the father of a family, and working actively. He had served as an active member of the legislature in New York and as assistant secretary of the navy during the world war. In 1920 he was a candidate for Vice President of the United States and campaigned as energetically as vice presidential candidates are expected to do.

His illness, an ordinary acute attack of poliomyelitis, commonly known as infantile paralysis, occurred in the summer of 1921, in a section of the country where the disease was prevailing.

Some have been misled by the term infantile paralysis, thinking the disease one that does not attack grown persons. Experience has proved that age is of no importance in so far as this disease is concerned. It prevails among persons of all ages, on all levels, and in all groups. If it occurs somewhat more frequently in the young, that is merely because fewer of the older groups are susceptible to it.

Mr. Roosevelt's acute attack ran the ordinary course. After a brief spell he was well so far as the constitutional effects of his disease were concerned, but certain nerve cells in his spinal cord had been destroyed, and soon weakness in certain of his leg muscles was in evidence. Within a few weeks his leg muscles began wasting.

Some one called his attention to Warm Springs, Ga. He went there and undertook to rebuild his leg muscles by exercise in the pool. Since then he has spent several weeks out of each year at this resort endeavoring to build up enough leg muscles to enable him to stand and walk.

Having been improved himself, he was responsible for a foundation which has developed the method of repair of wasted muscles by prescribed exercise in a pool, and which formerly provided funds for the maintenance of some who wanted the treatment but who could not otherwise bear the whole expense.

So far as Roosevelt's mind and body are concerned they are in nowise impaired, except this wasting of some of his leg muscles. His trunk and arm muscles are well developed and in good condition. His disease never involved his brain, and he has all of his mental powers. There is no reason for expecting that he will prove unequal to his undertakings or that he will not live out his three score and ten years.

The presidency of today is a hard job. Some do not survive it, and none live long after retiring from the White House. Roosevelt should have as much capacity to endure the hardships of this job as had Hoover four years ago or Coolidge eight years ago.

I have heard some of the gossip about Roosevelt's physical condition, and also some of the prophecies that he will not long survive. This gossip and these prophecies have no foundation.

NOT OF CONSEQUENCE.

J. B. writes: I have spots before my eyes for the last two months. They are very noticeable when I read. I am 39 years old and feel good.

REPLY.

As a rule floating specks before the eyes are of no consequence and call for no treatment. One should refuse to see them. Watching them float around is a cause of introspection and consequent worry. They are caused by minute floating particles in the fluids of the eyeball. In a small proportion of cases these spots are significant of disease of the eyeball.

FAT FOR WOMEN.

R. P. W. writes:

1. Is it a fact that nature provides women with a covering of fat as a protection, and is this the reason they get heavier as they grow older? 2. I am 40. Is exercise at my age harmful?

REPLY.

1. It is true that fat under the skin is a protection against chilling due to exposure. This is true of both sexes. It is a contributing factor in obesity, regardless of sex.

2. No. On the contrary, women of 40 should be exceptionally attentive to exercise.

A CONTRAST.

Hollywood, Ill., July 29.—As an ex-soldier and world war veteran I cannot refrain from expressing my views of this most malicious and deplorable situation. The charge against the bonus marchers as made by Attorney General Mitchell was that the defenders of our country in the world war were violators of the law [in trespassing on government property] and should be dealt with the same as other violators. He made mention of arrests, fines, imprisonment, confinement in the Occoquan workhouse, etc., as just punishment for such infringement and such disrespect for law.

In THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of July 23 we read the headline, "Vice President Gets a Ticket! But What of It?" Mr. Curtis' car, so it seems, had been left deliberately beside a no parking sign in the busiest section of Washington. Did the traffic policeman who did his duty as he saw it according to the law by ticketing the offending automobile receive praise, honor, or promotion for attempting to uphold the laws of the municipality? "Officer Hanboro," THE TRIBUNE tells us, "is of today." His act in line of duty is referred to facetiously as a "faux pas."

This latest act of Commander in Chief Hoover will be written into history as a disgrace to the richest country in the world, of which it has been truly said, "Billions for bankers, but not a cent for the bonus."

W. H. CARROLL.

CIVIL WAR PENSIONS.

Chicago, July 29.—The writer of the following is a widow of a soldier of the civil war. I want to be allowed, in view of present events transpiring at the capital of our country, to say a word about the patriotism and self-respecting manhood of our soldiers of the war of 1860-'64.

When peace followed that war its soldiers returned to their homes to be cared for by their families or return to their occupations when possible. Were there special hospitals awaiting them? I think not. Were there educational advantages offered our boys by their government? None. Were there soldiers' homes inviting them? Not any for many years. After a long wait pensions were awarded them after undeniable proof of disability had been established, pensions as low as $4 per month.

Did they storm the capital with demands for billions? No, indeed. They recognized their country's financial condition and waited, serving by patient waiting as they had served by valiant fighting; and now they totter in age on Memorial day, strong in their love of country and the flag which they follow with pride.

Mrs. C. H. R.

PRIDE.

Chicago, July 27.—I have a brother and a sister who are world war veterans. They did not have to be drafted, but volunteered. My sister served as an army nurse. My brother, with the Sixth marines, was in every big battle during the war.

They did not march on to Washington with the bonus army. If my brother loses his job he has guts enough to do as other men in his town do who were not in the army.

Two things my sister and brother would not do: They would not march in any parade at the funeral of a veteran who fell while trying to mob the United States government, and they would not join any brown shirt brigade.

BLANCHE BROWNE KRANEL.

HE FEARS MORE ACCIDENTS.

Chicago, July 28.—The contention of the elevated lines that a wooden car is safer than a steel car because the momentum is not so great and it can stop in a shorter distance is an absolute joke. Since the antiquated wooden car was put in service great improvements in car manufacture have been made. New types of air brake equipment have been developed and the valve now in use on the steel cars is adequate to stop them in as short a space as the old type of valve on the wooden cars, with the added weight and momentum.

One paper says the motorman did not see the train. Another says the brake valve stuck. The "L" has a block signal system, and motormen know just the distance between them and the train ahead. They have instructions to proceed with caution if for any reason they cannot see ahead.

The answer is that equipment cannot run for thousands of miles a month without being inspected more often. Maintenance of way, inspection, and repair departments have been cut to a minimum. They are worrying along on a shoestring and hoping. As long as the officials are able to hoodwink the public and the Illinois commerce commission by these phony explanations and excuses, we will have more of these accidents.

R. C. B.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Chicago, July 27.—"The law of supply and demand is still the great regulator of business," testifies Mr. Rosenblum in these columns today. If that be so, it is not strange that business is out of balance and all topsy-turvy, since it is well known to any one who wants to know it that there is no such law.

If Mr. Rosenblum and others who seem so willing and eager to swallow any rabblement that may happen to be floating in the air, if it seems to support their pet sagging points, would in this case substitute "demand" by "consumers' purchasing power," or some other such phrase, they would get nearer the truth, and it probably might be called a "law." But it may be surmised that those who talk so much about the "law of supply and demand" are more interested in things other than the facts and the truth as regards these matters.

E. ERLAND.

INDECENT EXPOSURE.

Chicago, July 28.—Indecent exposure being unlawful at the beaches, why isn't some one in authority present to see that the law is enforced, and evict from the eyes of the public persons such as I have seen, absolutely unrestricted, with no sense of shame or decency, almost nude. Men and young boys, it has been my observation, are the greatest offenders.

Without expectation of compensation, I should like the privilege and authority to arrest all offenders.

If police and life guards enforced the law, there would soon be an end to this shameful practice.

In Florida, despite an influx of people from all parts of the country, no one on the crowded beaches is permitted to as much as drop the shoulder strap of their suits. The life guards are always right there to see that the law in that respect is strictly enforced. Nowhere in my travels have I encountered such degrading, disgusting, obnoxious sights as are permitted to exist on all the Chicago beaches.

BROKER JAILED FOR AUTO DEATH FOUR YEARS AGO

Says He Gave Bond in '28; Was Never Called.

Norman E. Lewis, 2614 East 74th street, a real estate broker, was locked up yesterday by police on a four year old manslaughter charge growing out of an automobile accident, despite his protestations that he posted a $5,000 bond when the charge was first made, and had never been summoned to court since. Police refused him his liberty following the arrest because they could find no record of the bond.

Henry Triebull, 21 years old, was fatally injured on May 29, 1928, in a collision between his motorcycle and Lewis' car. A coroner's jury recommended that Lewis be held on a charge of manslaughter, but the case was never presented to the grand jury, so far as could be learned yesterday.

Coroner Frank J. Walsh asked that Lewis be taken in custody yesterday, it was said by Capt. John Prendergast, who ordered the arrest. Leo and Paul Triebull, foster brothers of Henry, had asked the coroner for a new investigation. Leo Triebull said that the family had instituted civil suit against Lewis after Henry's death, and had failed to collect damages. Lewis confirmed this.

Three Deaths in County.

Three automobile fatalities yesterday raised the Cook county motor death toll since Jan. 1 to 677. The victims:

Miss Anna Kilner, 26 years old, 2438 South 51st avenue, Cicero. Killed when the automobile in which she was riding with five companions struck a street car which had been parked for the night at Ogden and Lawndale avenues, Lyons. She was a daughter of John Kilner, Cicero police commissioner. Her companions were all injured and taken to the Berwyn hospital.

Frank Kortas, 39 years old, 8253 Burley avenue. Killed when an automobile in which he was riding struck a trolley pole at 102d street and Commercial avenue. Witnesses told police that occupants of the car were playfully striking each other with cattails which they had picked in a nearby marsh, but this was denied by James Grisso, 3525 East 106th street, driver of the car.

James Panapolus, 20 years old, 611 North Homan avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries received Thursday when he was thrown from his automobile following a collision with another car at Francisco avenue and Polk street. Albert Gicconi, 3139 Flourney street, who was driving Panapolus' car at the time, and James McCann, 315 South Western avenue, operator of the other vehicle, were both charged with reckless driving.

William Hulbary, 38 years old, 1016 Greenwood avenue, Maywood, was probably fatally burned last night when his automobile caught fire from a gasoline explosion in the Lake street highway, 3 miles east of Elgin. Clifford Wilcox, 30, of 1012 South 13th avenue, Maywood, his companion, was also burned, but will recover. They were taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Elgin.

AVIATOR KILLED ON HOME MADE PLANE TEST HOP

First Flight in Ship Ends in Tragedy.

The ship, a two seater biplane, equipped with a four cylinder, 95-horse power English Cirrus motor, was made by Schwab and Cliff Mains of Saginaw, the owner. The plane was completed only this week.

This afternoon Schwab and Mains took the ship to the Clements Memorial airport near here, with Schwab prepared to make a test flight. He took off. At 150 feet the plane dived, and crashed into the field less than 40 feet from the River highway, packed at the moment with automobiles. As it struck, the plane burst into fire, frustrating all efforts at rescue. Schwab was married and the father of one child.

Crash on Links; 2 Die.

Dayton, O., July 31.—(AP)—Two men were killed in an airplane crash on a golf course near here today. The victims were Charles Harding, 19, of Miamisburg, the pilot, and Reuben Fink, 20, of Franklin, O. The plane, a three seated cabin type, struck a telephone wire and went into a nose dive.

Parachute Jumper Killed.

Monessen, Pa., July 31.—(AP)—In view of 3,000 persons, Ralph Marshall, 20, of Gibson, near here, today plunged 3,000 feet to his death when his parachute failed to open at the Monessen airport. It was his first exhibition jump.

Pilot Burned to Death.

Wildwood, N. J., July 31.—(AP)—Charles Cooper, 33, Philadelphia, was burned to death today after an airplane piloted by his brother, Barney, crashed on the beach at Wildwood Crest from a height of 200 feet and burst into flames. The brother escaped from the wreckage, uninjured.

Killed When Seaplane Falls.

SAINT ROSE, Que., July 31.—(AP)—The engine failing, a seaplane tonight plunged 50 feet into the Jesus river, burying its nose in the mud and giving its three known occupants no chance to escape death from drowning.

The bodies of Andrew Darling, 32, of Montreal, owner and pilot; John Maguire, 20, and Georges Brossard, 19, mechanics, were taken from the cabin by youths who dove down and forced open the doors.

Four coats were found, indicating another man may have worked himself out of the cabin, the presumption being that he was drowned.

Rib Saves Life of Woman When She Shoots Herself

A rib saved the life of Mrs. Emma Gibson last night. Mrs. Gibson, who is 40 years old and lives at 414 South 18th avenue, Maywood, was found shot near the heart in her home. POISON LIQUOR KILLS 2 MORE; "NO LAW," SAYS AGENT

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Two more deaths reported today due to drinking wood alcohol brought the total to eighteen in the last five days. Most of the deaths as well as a number of alcohol poisonings were reported from the lower east side.

Andrew McCampbell, local federal prohibition administrator, when told regarding the spread of the sale of wood alcohol as a beverage, said:

"The government is in no way responsible for this. There is no federal law prohibiting the sale or transportation of wood alcohol. It seems that if any action is to be taken regarding the regulation of the sale of wood alcohol, it should be taken by the state. We are coöperating with the police in trying to find where the supply is being obtained on the east side. We want to see this sort of thing stopped and we are anxious that those responsible for the poisoning be promptly caught and punished."

PHILIPPINE LAW MAKERS TACKLE FARM AID PLAN

Gov. Roosevelt Also Asks for More Schools.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., July 31.—The Philippine legislature, now in session, has work cut out for it in the broad policies laid down by Gov. Theodore Roosevelt in his first message. Along with framing the budget to make the insular government live within a dwindling income, the legislature must shape its program in accordance with the definite views pronounced by the governor general.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT. [A. P. photo.]

As a result of his inspection trips through the length and breadth of the archipelago Roosevelt has outlined his administrative program emphasizing three main points: [1] Aid to small farmers, [2] better health conditions, and [3] greater educational facilities for children in small communities. All conform to the policies enunciated in his inaugural address.

Plans Ten Small Banks.

Aid to the small farmer is predicated mainly on greater credit facilities. These will be secured, according to present plans, through the Philippine National bank, a government financed institution, by opening small rural banks. The work of organizing these banks has started, and when completed there will be at least ten established throughout the islands.

A second relief to farmers will be acceleration in the granting of titles to their lands. Courts are clogged with land title cases which have been pending for years. This condition has been a sore spot of every administration since Taft. Roosevelt has directed the department of justice to find a remedy and clear the congestion.

Wars on Tuberculosis.

Lack of funds always has been a bar to improving health conditions. The present administration must develop a program as efficient and as effective as possible within the limited means. The health department has been operating under the department of public instruction. Probably it will be made separate and reorganized. Tuberculosis exacts the greatest toll in the islands. Already a tuberculosis commission has been created to inform the natives of the disease, its prevention and cure.

Not Enough Teachers.

Educational facilities are limited by lack of rooms and not enough teachers to accommodate the number of children seeking admission in the public schools. The number of children has increased faster than school appropriations. New sources of revenue must be found if all children are to be accommodated.

The legislature's task will be most arduous if it deals satisfactorily with all of Gov. Roosevelt's program. It looks doubly exacting considering that the present income is insufficient to meet the usual expenditures of the government.

NEW YORK HOTEL NIGHT CLERK ROBBED OF $4,250 BY GUEST

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The night clerk at the Hotel Martinique, Broadway and 32d street, early today was tied and gagged by two armed men, who then pried open the strong box in the safe with a crowbar and escaped with $4,250 in cash and checks.

The robbery, according to the detectives and hotel management, was carefully planned. The clerk, Jack Adams, told the police he recognized one of the holdup men as a guest who registered at the hotel about four hours previously.

Politicians Vexed; Seize Argentine Police Station

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, July 31.—A group of about 30 disgruntled politicians today attacked and captured a police station at Tamberia, province of San Juan, and, when police reinforcements arrived, fled in the direction of Mendoza. The attackers were said to be followers of former President Hipolito Yrigoyen.

ALLMAN'S POLICE ORDER IN EFFECT AT MIDNIGHT

Although the order of Police Commissioner James P. Allman, which reorganizes the Chicago police force on radically different lines from those prevailing in the past, became effective at midnight last night, those affected by the changes said they would not assume their new duties until today.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, whose department was left almost untouched, asserted his belief that the change in the handling of the uniformed police would have excellent results.

"The establishment of six divisional supervisors," he said, "will be a fine thing for the district captains. It will relieve them of sole responsibility for conditions and at the same time enable them to keep in closer touch with the commissioner's office. Matthew Zimmer is the ideal man to be chief of the uniformed police and I am glad he has the post."

U. S. PREPARES TO ENFORCE NEW EXTORTION LAW

Preparations are being made at the federal building for enforcement of the new federal law against the use of the mails for extortion. The new law, which became effective on July 8, provides a maximum punishment of 20 years in prison and a fine of $5,000.

Passage of the law was the second step by the federal government to bring kidnaping and extortion under the jurisdiction of the United States. The first step came in the form of a law passed a month ago which made a federal crime the transportation of a kidnaped person from state to state. Until this law was passed, kidnaping was punishable only in state courts.

Any communication sent through the mails with the intent of extortion comes under the new postal law. The statute says that a person has violated the law who mails a letter, or other form of communication, containing a threat or demand for ransom.

Willa Cather Called Leading Woman Writer

'Obscure Destinies' to Bring Her New Laurels.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Obscure Destinies," by Willa Cather [Knopf.] Published today.

THERE is no doubt in the mind of this reader that Willa Cather is the greatest living woman novelist of the United States. She has won that distinction by an adherence to the canons of superlative writing aided by a genius which is as pure and natural as the fresh dew on a spear of grass in the early morning.

WILLA CATHER.

She has never once in her writing career compromised with the exigencies of time or fortune. If it took her three years to write a novel, sobelt three years were spent upon it. If she might have made a small fortune on the serialization of another novel, that small fortune was looked upon as a heavy price to pay for the publication in an alien form of a work of art, and she refused.

She literally did deny herself a pile of gold by refusing to have "Shadows on the Rock" serialized, and the piles which she cast aside by not allowing [after one unsuccessful attempt] her novels or stories to be made into movies might pay the national debt of one of the Balkan states.

One thing of which any reader may be absolutely certain when he reads anything from the pen of Willa Cather is that what he is reading is something that the author had to write from some inner urge and that, in so far as it lies in human power to do so, Miss Cather has written exactly what she meant to write.

If, as in the case of "Death Comes for the Archbishop," she has done a religious epic and the world asked for a novel, the world has received what Miss Cather chose to give it, not what it demanded. And if, as also in the case of "Shadows on the Rock," she chose to do an ecstatic soul-picture of a period instead of a lifelike chromo of a time, and thus disappointed some of her readers again, as in the case of "Death Comes for the Archbishop," she followed her own genius and gave to the literature of her language a masterpiece.

I call attention thus to Miss Cather's straight, arrowlike literary flight to her own goals because in "Obscure Destinies" it seems to me that the most marked joint characteristic of the three short stories which make up the volume is that she has chosen—as always—to say what she set out to say in her own way and not in any sense in the traditional way.

Of the three stories, one, "Two Friends," is unimportant in the sense that it neither adds to nor detracts from Miss Cather's position. It is the story of two middle aged pillars of a small town who quarreled over politics. It has the flavor of the period in it and there are two or three pages of superb writing at the beginning. But neither in the characters nor in the setting does Miss Cather surpass herself.

Of the other two stories one, "Neighbor Rosicky," has the same beauty of character and solemnity of peace that has made "My Antonia" one of the classics of American literature. If you do not know that simple tale of a Bohemian servant girl you do not know one of the great tales of literature.

The same quality is inherent in Rosicky, the same tenor of character and the same inspired recounting of his life in the prose of the author. It is the most unadorned of tales—of a Bohemian farmer, father of a family which admires as well as loves him, husband of a woman who is known throughout the countryside for her wholesome happiness, the story of a successful human being who has found life worth living despite hard times, despite hunger, despite strange languages and strange lands. It is so simple a tale and so simply told that many will find it almost casual as they read it for the first time. But they will not forget Rosicky.

But of the three stories "Old Mrs. Harris" is the gem of the most brilliant, the most precious, beauty. It is in its few pages a commentary on all of life, on a whole culture. On the surface it is merely the brief story of three generations of women living in one crowded house; the grandmother, who is overworked, who carries her comb in her pocket because there is no other place to put it, and who finds compensation for any hardship in the love which her grandchildren bestow upon her; the mother, pretty, spoiled, who manages to keep her husband and her children gay through misfortune by a sheer lack of understanding that they might be anything but completely happy in the mere acts of devotion to her, and the granddaughter, who has a passionate urge to go to college, to be something other than her mother.

As sharply and as clearly as any three lives have ever been pictured for the reader those three lives live in Miss Cather's pages. Tragedy, irony, and the sheer unquestioned beauty of human devotion are all caught there.

There is nothing in "Obscure Destinies" to tarnish even the tip of one of Miss Cather's immortal golden laurel leaves, as there sometimes is in the volumes of short stories from the pens of novelists, and "Old Mrs. Harris" will add new and shining leaves to her crown.

Funeral Held for Kenwood's Big Willow Tree

Children's Rites Recall Old Neighborhood Legend.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

THERE was a funeral in Kenwood the other day. All the children of the neighborhood gathered to pay their last respects to the big willow tree that has always been "goal" for their games of "hide and seek" and "cheese it." The tree had lived its span, so it was chopped down just as many another willow has been felled in days gone by.

In fact, there are not many of the great drooping willows left in this old and aristocratic community—a few in what was once the famous Dunham cow pasture, several back of the Kimbark avenue residences of Albert H. Harris and Bernard E. Sunny, and a few more in Dorchester and Kenwood avenue yards. But most of the trees that gave rise to the old neighborhood legend are gone.

Still the story persists.

It concerns a subterranean river that once crossed the town of Kenwood and a trail of willow trees that came up along its course. It's really a good story, for it never fails to stir the imagination of the person who hears it for the first time.

"And as a matter of fact, it's more truth than poetry," one of Kenwood's oldest residents remarked the other day when I questioned its authenticity. "Back in the early days a cow path ran from a point on what is now 55th street up to Cleaverville.

"Cleaverville, you remember, was settled by Charles Cleaver, who came out here from the east in 1833 to a place about where 31st street is now located," he continued. "Well, this path that led out from Cleaverville to the southwest was reported to follow the course of an underground stream. And it probably did, for in later years rows of willow trees came up along its trail. Of course, settlement of the district these last 75 years has gradually dried up the stream, if there was one, but enough water nourishment has remained in the soil to preserve some of the old willows. They're landmarks here today."

Interesting enough, there is considerable fact to back up the story. To go away back to the beginning, we know that the Wisconsin drift, rear guard of the ice sheets that covered much of North America, produced, as it receded, several rivers lost to record today. Likely as not the stream in question or a series of such streams were among these glacial after-effects.

As for the willow trees, it follows logically that they grew up close to the course of such a river, for it is a well known fact that they are water loving plants, preferring the banks of a stream for their best growth. Of course they had to be started, but this was taken care of, history relates, by an early settler who outlined his land or the cow path (as you prefer) with a homemade fence of willow posts, imported from the east with his family and household effects.

Many of these willow posts in later days sprouted and grew into willow trees, and each willow tree became, in turn, two or three more willow trees. For somehow the "genus" has a way of sending out shoots from the long interlacing roots that develop with little or no care. There probably isn't a tree that is more self-sufficient, given a water home.

Willows are scattered the world over. The Eskimos never see another tree than the little inch high variety. On the site of Napoleon's grave in St. Helena stands a famous weeping willow. But with all their globe circling popularity, they are seldom planted in the cities and their suburbs—poor cousins, as it were, of the elm, the maple, and the oak.

They must come up as they will, from a shoot or a fence post. But, then, that's the very reason Kenwood has its legend of the willow tree.

Love Rescues Surgeon Who 'Goes Native'

By Anna Nangle.

When you find an English surgeon, who has gone native on an island in the South seas, called, only because the case is urgent, to set the leg of a beautiful and apparently unattached young Britisher, what do you think is going to happen? It does.

The movies, because they believe in that old saw about the course of true love, decree that the two must part. Diana goes back to London to "face life" [don't ask me why], and her wooer remains to fight the demon rum and establish himself in the white colony again.

Some time later there's another emergency case. This time a yachting millionaire sends for Dr. Yorke. The operation is for appendicitis and successful and the grateful patient takes the physician back to London to reestablish him in his rightful circles. And who does the wife of the rich St. Claire turn out to be?

And who is implicated when the naughty Mr. St. Claire, who is quite a playboy and doesn't treat his wife very nicely, is suddenly poisoned?

Guess that one and you go to the head of the class.

The cast does the best possible with this one, but there's an air of antiquity about it all, even to the way Miss Kenyon, as Diana, wears her hair. Conrad Nagel as Dr. Yorke and John Halliday as the wayward husband deserve better material to work with. Mona Maris and Juliette Compton, playing two of Mr. St. Claire's diversions, are O. K. And it is nice to see Mae Busch back again! She does a nice bit in this film.

Even if the film doesn't bowl you over you'll probably enjoy the stage show. The fur fashion revue is enough to hold any one's attention. All types of luscious fur coats are worn by a troupe of pretty girls. Vanessi does a neat rhumba, and you can get a look at Grant Withers, of the movies. The rest of the bill is entertaining and easy to look at.

Trip to Circus Offered Writers of 100 Letters

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Gay posters everywhere about town tell one that circus time is approaching, and soon that city of tents otherwise known as Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus will be erected on Chicago's lake front. It's good news, boys and girls, isn't it? And it's even better news to learn that we're going to include a day under the big top in our series of parties.

It's to be on Thursday, Aug. 11, and I shall have one hundred guests—the boys and girls who write winning letters. Every young circus lover in and around Chicago is invited to compete for an invitation, and just in case you don't know how it's done I'll tell you all about it again. At each of my weekly parties I have one hundred guests. If you'd like to be included in this group you write me a letter telling why. Those of you who sound like they'd have the best time will be invited. The point, then, is to convince me that you'd have a good time at the party.

There are so many things to write about in the circus that winning an invitation should be comparatively easy. There are the clowns, funniest things imaginable, who romp about the various rings and stages of the vast arena, keeping the audience in a constant state of hysteria. There are the aerialists and trapeze artists who amaze one with their feats of daring, tight rope walkers, bareback riders, acrobats, trained animals, and such a variety of things to see that one is kept very busy trying not to miss any of them.

With so much fun to look forward to I know you won't mind writing a letter. Have it reach me no later than next Thursday morning. Be sure that your name and address are written plainly, tell me your age, and address your letter to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Boys Worship in Four Faiths at Scout Camp

Chicagoans Learn Reverence at Owasippe.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Camp Owasippe, Mich., July 31.—[Special.]—Religion is being caught by hundreds of Chicago boys this summer in this Boy Scout camp operated by the Chicago Boy Scout council in this lake dotted region near Muskegon. The old adage that real religion is not so much taught as caught is worked out by the scout directors so that the week day activities—which range from study of stars to friendliness with birds, animals, and even insects—develop a reverence for creation which in turn, is directed to reverence for the Creator in special Sunday services.

Early this morning several hundred Catholic boys gathered before a rustic altar where the Rev. Gerald P. Scanlan, director of the Catholic Youth organization of the archdiocese of Chicago offered the mass. Later in the forenoon similar groups of Protestant and Jewish boys gathered beneath the trees for their own services of worship. Rabbi Benjamin H. Birnbaum, spiritual leader of the Douglas Boulevard congregation, Chicago, directed the devotions of the Jewish lads.

The scout movement, leaders explain, is interested in religion, but not in a sectarian way. Alfred C. Nichols, chief director of all the Owassippe camps, told of eight different religious services, or two for each of the four religious faith, each Sunday. In addition to Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish services, two Sunday Christian Science services are held.

While attendance at worship is not compulsory, yet Director Nichols pointed out that only a few of the 800 to 1,000 boys in camp each week fail to attend the services.

Roy Alm, assistant director of the camps, with the aid of the Chicago Council of Religious Education, has developed several forms of worship for the Scouts of the Protestant faith. Mr. Alm stated that most church services in Protestant communions consider almost solely "the adult mind." Today's service, in Mr. Alm's program of worship, stressed the meaning of reverence.

The hundred or so Protestant boys assembled for services on a hillside overlooking Crystal Lake, responded to Mr. Alm's "call to worship" by affirming their membership in "the great host of persons around the world who will praise God this day. The leader and boys then joined in a litany that called the spirit of reverence from the experience "of lakes and woods mystery of the heavens and the beauty of the world" and asked divine aid to appreciate privileges and responsibilities.

The prayer for the day which echoed its way across the lake as the Scouts uttered it in unison sought forgiveness for the times when they were "foolish, selfish, unkind, untrue, impure, or quitters of hard jobs." Then the prayer turned and affirmed the desire "to work with thee, and instead of making excuses we want to make good. May we respect ourselves, respect others and respect thy laws."

The Owassippe camps are now in their 21st season. The first of the camps was founded by A. Stanford White. Five of the camps, one for each section of Chicago, are for white Scouts and one camp, Camp Belnap, is for colored Scouts. The South Shore camp is known as Camp James E. West; Camp Dan Beard is the North Shore Scout camp; Camp McDonald is for the stockyards and southwest side Scouts and Camps Checaugau and Blackhawk are for northwest and west side Scouts. The total area for all six camps is more than 1,000 acres.

Wear Everyday Clothes at Special Church Service

The congregation of the Acacia Community Presbyterian church, at 7800 Berteau avenue, attended services yesterday morning in everyday clothes at the invitation of the pastor, the Rev. George Cleaver. The Rev. Mr. Cleaver had designated yesterday as "Cotton day," and had asked his flock to discard silks, satins and other finery for plain cotton clothing. He said that people should not have to "dress up" to go to church, and that a lack of finery should not keep churchgoers at home.

Fitted Raccoon Coats in Favor This Season

August Fashion Shows Prices Surprisingly Low.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Another August and another fur fashion month of exciting fur fashion revues and individual and interesting new collections in all the shops in town!

These fashion shows are irresistible. Every one goes to them, and you'll see all the newest ideas about high and higher waistlines, wider shoulders, skimpy, short, but awfully smart tailored collars on sports and daytime models, and the thrilling new sleeves that puff, and gather, and pouch, around the best elbows. You'll see all kinds of silver gray kidskin, new nut brown caraculs, all the silky, lustrous black caraculs made to make you even more slender than you ever dreamed of being; but the big surprise of the showings is the almost unbelievably low prices on all of them.

Any gal with a job can have a fur coat this season; even the bill paying males can't possibly object when you buy a good looking fur coat for such a modest sum as you usually spend on a fur trimmed cloth coat. And these new 1932 models are going to lure more money out of the various hideaways than anything else could. This is no time to hoard money, when such marvelous bargains are yours for the lowest prices you have ever been asked to pay.

The news that will stun you, at least momentarily, is the good tidings that bulky raccoon coats have passed into oblivion. This year they are made to fit, nipped in at the waistline, and all you pernicity people that never wore them because you lost all your slimness when you did are going to sit up and take notice, and undoubtedly broadcast this fashion upheaval to all who will listen. Even though a form fitting raccoon coat sounds fantastically unreal, the results will shout for themselves. Raccoon coats are complete knockouts this season!

If you are a keen observer you will notice the distinctive summer ermine coats. They really are the prima donnas of the show, exquisitely fashioned, and these detailed models show just how intricate and skillful the designers can be. One very unusual model looks as though it were made by Vionnet, that French dressmaker who makes a slim fitting dress with a flock of triangles, bias inserts, and half squares.

This summer ermine creation has large sleeves set into the armholes in V formation in the back. The perpendicularly lined skins in the back reach a peak in the region of your shoulder blades. No other contrasting fur is used on this coat, and its superlative beauty is simply but artistically achieved with clever manipulation of pelts.

Hudson seal coats use plenty of white for contrast, and this dramatic accent of white is used on sleek black caraculs with spectacular success. However, all black coats of either Hudson seal and caracul still remain the smartest, most popular creations for the shopper who insists upon beauty combined with wearableness.

They are showing some sports models in the swagger style and three-quarter length. Just how quickly they will be accepted by the well dressed but careful shoppers remains a doubtful issue. However, it is easy to predict a successful season for the distractingly beautiful shorter length evening wraps of snowy white ermine and caracul that a few shops are featuring!

Elmwood Park Mass Inaugurates Catholic Out of Doors Mission

A noonday field mass celebrated yesterday in Elmwood Park by the Rev. Father Francis Shea inaugurated a Roman Catholic out of doors mission. A congregation of 1,200 gathered for the mass before the same altar used a few weeks ago at Lockport, Ill., when Cardinal Mundelein dedicated the new Holy Name Technical school. Two priests of the Passionist order, Fathers Charles and Adelbert, will conduct the mission.

Seating arrangements for 3,000 persons awaited the first sermon of the week's series, held last night at the field. Picturesque features of the mission, held under the auspices of St. Celestine's parish, of which Father Shea is pastor, include a cross nearly ten feet high, erected at the pulpit; electric illumination of the altar and flood lights around the field, and the papal decorations patterned after those used at the International Eucharistic Congress here a few years ago.

Mrs. Lamont to Be Guest in Lake Forest

Seeks Vacation from Capital's Formal Parties.

"PLEASE don't plan any parties for me" is a familiar line in letters heralding the arrival of visitors from out of town. In most cases the hostess doesn't take the request very seriously and arranges entertainments of one sort or another to brighten her guest's stay. I learned yesterday, however, that a Lake Forest hostess is expecting a guest this week who really means that she does not want a single party to be given during her visit.

The visitor is Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, wife of the secretary of commerce, who is coming from Washington tomorrow or Wednesday to spend the remainder of the week with Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson in Lake Forest. Mrs. Lamont's daughter, Mrs. Charles Saltzman, will arrive with her, and after a few quiet days in the community where they spent every summer prior to Mr. Lamont's appointment to President Hoover's cabinet three years ago they'll go to their estate at Land o' Lakes, Wis.

The reason for Mrs. Lamont's insistance on simple informality is obvious. Her position in Washington entails so much entertainment of a formal nature that she, like all the other cabinet ladies, has grown weary of it and is looking forward to a vacation. All through the winter and spring, and during the recent prolonged session of congress, entertaining went on in Washington with a regularity that became rather deadly for every one concerned. In addition the hot weather of the last several weeks has made residents of the capital eager to get away to their summer places.

Younger Set Planning to Entertain for Mrs. Saltzman.

As a result, Mrs. Lamont's numerous friends in Lake Forest are respecting her wishes and planning to see her informally. Some of the young people, however, are hoping to entertain for her daughter, Gertrude Lamont Saltzman. Harris Wilder has asked a group of his friends to dine and dance at a party for the young woman on Thursday night at Onwentsia, and there probably will be a few luncheons or teas for her.

Mrs. Saltzman made her debut in Washington the winter after she moved from Chicago with her parents.

Mrs. John T. Boddie of 325 Fullerton parkway announces the engagement of her daughter, Judith, to William Addison Walker, son of Dr. and Mrs. James Walker of Salina, Kas. This interesting news was revealed at a small dinner party given by Mrs. Boddie on Saturday evening at Indian Hill.

Miss Boddie, who has been a popular figure in the younger set since she made her debut several seasons ago, is sailing for France next week with Mrs. Frank R. Fuller of Winnetka. She is a much traveled young woman, and has spent a great deal of time touring Europe and visiting in all parts of this country. She and her mother spent last spring in Washington, and then on their return moved out to the Georgian hotel in Evanston for the summer. Mr. Walker has been in business in Chicago for about two years, so he and his bride-to-be will reside here after their marriage which will be in the early fall after

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doris Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralizing influence of Doris. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doris meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat and threatens to disclose his identity unless Gold does as he bids. Pierce, who overhears Gip's threats, unknown to Gold, arranges to get him third class passage on condition he doesn't bother Gold. Dorrance offers Gold a position as his secretary on the Havana trip, which she gladly accepts. Doris invites a good looking youth from steerage to dine with her and give an exhibition tango. The youth is Gip Alen.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

A TEST OF LOYALTY.

"You won't see your half-brother again during the trip," said Elverton gravely. "The captain has given very strict orders about him after his exhibition tonight."

"Gip won't mind not seeing me!" Gold said with a crooked little smile, and walked away, afraid lest the weakness should swamp her again.

The doctor did not follow. He went to Pierce's suite, finding him slowly sipping a brandy and soda, while an untouched glass stood on a low table near.

"Have that one; I've only just poured it out," he invited.

"Wasn't it for some one else?"

"It was, a few minutes ago."

Elverton sat down in the easy chair Gold had so lately vacated, and a faint drift of perfume reached him.

"Of course you can trust me absolutely." "I think I can," said Dorrance.

He remembered and labeled it. "I've just put in a good bit of work," he began carefully.

"My dear, you look marvelous. But rather strange, dear, as if a lot has happened. You look dramatic, dear. Do tell me. I do love to know."

"I'm almost quite happy. That's all," said Gold. But she lay down, and turned her face to the wall, and suffered again for the callousness of Gip—little, lovable charge; little, dear brother; unscrupulous, imponderable young man.

But soon—it was the comfort of that wealthy philanthropist in the background described trustworthily by Elverton—she fell into the longest, loveliest sleep that had visited her for half a year.

Then there ensued two full days when Doria kept to her stateroom and her bed. She had the excuse of a rough sea, but her real reason was the Gip episode; she was ashamed of that. On the first day that she put in no appearance at luncheon, Elverton paid an unsolicited visit in his medical capacity, when he spared no details of a talk he had had with Gip Alen earlier, and of the young man's frankly expressed disappointment in the financial status of his patroness—"for so," said Elverton with delicate irony, "he looked upon you." The young fellow's interest, said Elverton, had waned. He had also begun to realize the real seriousness of his position, and to listen respectfully even to unpalatable advice. "You won't hear of him again," said Elverton.

"I don't want to."

"What do you want to do next?"

"Wherever I go."

After Elverton had left her, also she must begin to consider her financial position. She was gambling for the high stakes at the auction, and she had a foreboding that she would lose. This did not depress her unduly, for she had no respect at all for money as money. But, at whatever cost to others, she must have enough for her own needs, and they were never modest. She spent almost as a sport; as some women drive racing cars, or speedboats, or fly. She reckoned on meeting friends or acquaintances wherever she might be going—because she only went to the playgrounds of the world—and in Havana, if she grew short of cash for actual personal needs, she would be sure to see someone from whom she could borrow. There were still many such men, men who liked the notoriety conferred by the company of a chic and lovely woman; besides the better specimens like Barney Pierce.

"Would he do it again?" she wondered.

Those two days she kept Gold Franklyn beside her almost constantly. There were manicures, scalp massages, reading aloud from novels, frequently taken and returned, after the first few too-dull pages, from the ship's library; and she had her jewelry cleaned under her own exigent directions, and wanted initials embroidered on some new sets of lingerie. "Because I simply can't stay in this cabin alone," she insisted. "I never can. I'm never alone. It's morbid to want to be alone."

"To some people," said Gold, thinking of overcrowded rooms and offices, and lives overcrowded, too, though not with Doria's sort of company and events, "it's a luxury."

"Ask Barney Pierce to come and see me. Ask Mr. Dorrance."

They came together.

"I'm not going alone," Dorrance thought, still careful of what Barney Pierce's feelings might be. So he said: "I'd like to pay my respects to your charming friend, Pierce. Do you think I might call with you?" Dorrance's call was brief; it left Pierce alone in the stateroom with Doria, except for Gold; and at the merest sign from Doria, Gold slipped out.

She walked the deck, and Dorrance joined her. He, too, had read the mute language of Doria's eyes.

"Soon be there now," he said. "And I want to tell you—these two days you've showed up so little, just those very brief appearances at table—I want to tell you Havana is settled."

"Too good to be true!"

"That's what Havana is, as you'll think when you're there." He hinted to her that the Pierce-Dorrance merger was now practically an accomplished fact: "But no news to the public, as yet."

"Of course you can trust me absolutely."

"I think I can," said Dorrance.

The easy looking man, as far as business was concerned, was sharper than a rapier, cautious as the slowest and wiliest of strategists.

He had picked on this stranger-girl—at first tentatively because of her attraction, then, with further observation, more definitely—because he did not wish even the most trusted of his regular staff to scent this merger before he was ready to let the news reach Wall street and the newspapers.

This girl was a type that a business man did not often find—something quick and splendid about her, above the mere sense and efficiency.

Her whole attitude was just right.

He told her that now. "Your attitude is just right. I don't want you to let Mr. Pierce get too friendly with you—he is rather apt to play you against Mrs. Hathaway because he's crazy over her in his queer way, isn't he? Keep very aloof. We want your company in this foursome as I said, but aloofness is what I want from you."

Her loyalty was entirely Dorrance's.

"The merger is not through yet, and if anyone tries to get at you, be careful. In New York you're not to talk."

"I'll have no one to talk to."

"Poor kid!" said Dorrance. "You shall have someone to talk to. Shall I show you some of the excitement?"

"You're kind. This is a dream of a job!"

"All the better if you think so."

"I haven't mentioned to anyone that I am making the trip."

He did not mind at all if it were known, but he thought of this point of secrecy as another little test. If she didn't whisper it to that doctor fellow, with whom, Doria Hathaway made it clear—or wasn't it exactly clear?—that she had an understanding, if she didn't confide it to Doria either, then she had further proved herself.

Pierce approached them.

"He hasn't paid a very long visit to our lady," said Dorrance.

Pierce reached them.

"Will you walk, Miss Franklyn?"

Joan Bennett Joins '30 Love Tennis Club'

Bloodhounds Fool Director in Convict Pcture.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., July 31.—[Special.]—Joan Bennett is the newest member of the "Thirty Love Tennis club." There are 15 or 16 members of the organization, started by Aileen Pringle, Bebe Daniels, and other girls of that set. Fees are $10 to join, $10 a year, and $1 for every tournament. A tournament takes places every time two or three members of the club get together.

The movies may fool you or me, but they can't kid a pedigreed bloodhound. In concluding scenes for Radio's "Liberty Road," a pack of them were supposed to pursue an escaping convict up to the camera. In order to assure the dogs would run in the right direction, John Cromwell, the director, placed chunks of raw meat behind the camera men. The first time the scene was shot something interfered, and the dogs' trainer took the meat away from them as he led them back to their starting point. The next time the cue came, the dogs didn't run, meat or no meat. They couldn't be fooled twice.

Jack Pickford sailed from San Pedro for Europe on the Danish motorship Europa last Wednesday, his departure being kept secret at the time because of his delicate health. Pickford, who has slowly been recovering strength after an extended illness which first gripped him nearly four years ago, will go to the baths at Carlsbad and after a month or more there, will pursue his convalescence in the south of France. If he recovers sufficiently he will try to make a new start in screen work in England. The only work Jack has done recently was to prepare a vaudeville skit for his sister, Lottie Pickford, which, together with Lottie's proffer to do stage work, is now in the hands of an agency for possible billing. Jack was accompanied by a woman nurse, who will stay with him during the whole of his quest for health abroad.

Joseph I. Schnitzer, associate producer at Radio R. K. O. studio, has signed Leo Carillo to star in a new film "Freedom" by Tom Lennon, as soon as Carillo gets back from Honolulu, in two weeks. Its about an Italian musician who gets into a brush with the law, makes a famous musical organization out of the prison band, is pardoned, and gets sent back to the pen where he is happy once more leading the band.

An effort may be made to revive "The Merry Widow," the picture which built up the silent film reputations of Jack Gilbert and Mae Murray, and to use the perennial musical hit as a sound film vehicle for Jeannette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier. There are a few complications—namely, that MacDonald is under contract to M. G. M., while Chevalier's movie services are Paramount's properly and that Chevalier is not scheduled to return from Europe until fall.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Billie had been given a huge bowl of pansies by a neighbor and been told to take them to his mother for a centerpiece.

The child had heard his parents talk so much about the depression that this is what he said to his mother: "Mrs. Brown sent these pansies to you, but I don't know whether you want them or not, for she said they were for a cent a piece." M. E. S.

Little Joe, age 4 years, went over to the neighbor's to look at the fish in the pond. A few minutes later his brother came running home and said that Joe had killed one of the fish. Upon being questioned, he opened his innocent blue eyes very wide and said: "I didn't kill the fish, mother; I just put it to sleep." E. D.

Children Vary in Their Reactions to Noise and Acute Pain

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Doctors and lawyers both agree that some people feel pain more than others.

"I know it's a fact," said a woman of my acquaintance the other day. "I simply don't feel pain as much as some people do. When I had that mastoid trouble and the operation for it, I didn't suffer so much as many people."

Children vary in this respect, too.

Though the body is strong, it is an intricate and delicately organized mechanism. And the more complicated a machine is the more it has possibilities of differing in the way it functions. Add to this the variation in all those ways that are not physiological and you have a wide range of difference in the way children are affected by external things.

No amount of training will make all children alike in their responses. Any mother who expects to train the highly organized, imaginative child to react to pain, or noise, or excitement in the same way that the calm or matter of fact child does is doomed to disappointment.

We don't want to coddle and overindulge the former. At the same time we must take into account his physical and emotional temperament. We must not talk too much to him about controlling himself. We must not toss the words "coward" and "cry baby" at him. Usually they're neither true nor fair. After all, the so-called brave child may be so because he is lacking in sensitiveness or imagination. Or because his physical makeup helps him.

It is important for fathers and mothers—and especially fathers, I think—to keep in mind that to be brave does not mean to be without fear.

We don't want to coddle and overindulge the child who is especially sensitive to pain, and shock, and noise. But we must help him in gentle and intelligent ways to face things and to do them and to bear them. This is its own kind of bravery and poise.

If one of these statistical minded persons with a weakness for percentages set about running down the favorite dessert of all 100 per cent Americans, it's a safe bet that nine out of ten men would say pie. And a goodly number of the women probably would cast their votes the same way if they all weren't waistline watchers.

But there are pies and pies, and with our modern penchant for maneuvering a score of mouth watering variations from one prosaic recipe, the old faithfuls—berry, apple, pumpkin, and custard—hardly know themselves any more.

Especially custard pies. For because we've been told so many times about the temperamental nature of eggs, until quite lately we've declined to tamper with the ancient, tried-and-true recipes. But today knowledge and the spirit of adventure both have been advancing by jumps, and the result—delectable custardy affairs with mysterious new flavors and textures that steal our hearts quite away from the simple, unglorified milk and egg offerings of old.

If you're fortunate enough to have some of this year's maple sugar, try a maple custard pie as the first newcomer.

MAPLE SUGAR CUSTARD PIE.

4 eggs.
1-3 cup finely shaved maple sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
Pastry for one crust.

Beat the eggs slightly. Add the maple sugar, salt and vanilla. Stir till dissolved. Add the milk and pour into the crust, which has been chilled after rolling. Bake in a moderately slow oven [340 degrees F.] until an inserted knife comes out clean. Serve cold with a topping of whipped cream sprinkled with thin shavings of maple sugar.

If your oven doesn't sport a thermometer control, buy a small portable thermometer for your custard pie adventures. Too high temperature during baking will give you a separated, curdled product.

APPLE CUSTARD PIE.

4 tablespoons sugar.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
3 eggs, slightly beaten.
2 cups milk.
1-3 cup sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon lemon extract.
Pastry for one crust.

Roll the pastry and place in a deep pie tin, building up the rim. Chill. Arrange the apples over the bottom and sprinkle with the four tablespoons of sugar and the cinnamon. Blend the rest of the ingredients and pour in. Bake in a moderately slow [340 degree] oven until firm.

Other delicious variations may be made, using the standard custard recipe as a background [3 eggs, 2 cups milk, 1-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon flavoring].

Finely chopped nuts—again a half cupful—do delicious things to the flavor and texture. Simply stir them in with the other ingredients before baking. Two squares of melted chocolate added at this time with or without the nuts make a delicious custard chocolate pie. Or if berries are still on your market or in your back yard, prepare a regular custard pie and bake in a deep pie tin. Chill, and pile with ripe sugared berries and top with sweetened whipped cream. Serve in luscious wedges some hot night and watch the family perk up.

Or something new in the "topping" line develops when a custard pie is finished off with whipped cream into which have been beaten chilled mashed berries, sieved stewed peaches, apricots, or your choice of other exciting contributions.

Half a dozen macaroons crumbled and spread over the bottom crust before the addition of the custard make a real epic in pies. Or three tablespoons of jam may be substituted for the macaroons.

SWEET POTATO CUSTARD PIE.

Blend 2 cups mashed sweet potatoes with ¾ cup of sugar, 1 teaspoon of salt, 3 eggs, ½ teaspoon each of ginger and cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon of nutmegs, and 2 cups of milk. Pour into a deep pie tin lined with chilled pie crust which has been built high around the edges. Bake in a moderately slow oven [340 degrees F.] until firm.

This Woman Lost 45 Pounds of Fat

"Dear Sirs: For 3 months I've been using your salts and am very much pleased with results. I've lost 45 lbs., 6 inches in hips and bust measure. I've taken 3 bottles—one lasting 5 weeks. I had often tried to reduce by dieting but never could keep it up, but by cutting down and taking Kruschen I've had splendid results. I highly recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. Carl Wilson, Manton, Mich.

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning. To hasten results go light on fatty meats, potatoes and pastries—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at any drug store in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

To Be Bride in Fall

Miss Polly Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, is busy this summer getting together a trousseau, but finds time for almost daily tennis games. Miss Perry's marriage to Harold M. Kneedler of Manila, P. I., will take place this fall.

Mrs. Lamont to Be Guest in Lake Forest

Frederic C. Bartletts Jr. and Infant Son Off for East.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr. and their month old son, Frederic Clay III., left yesterday to spend the balance of the summer with Mr. Bartlett's father and his wife at their summer place, Tree Tops, at Beverly, Mass. Tiny Freddy is a bit young to start traveling but the doctors thought it would be quite safe to take the young man down east on a visit to his proud grandfather, who is so anxious to make his acquaintance. Mrs. Bartlett Jr. is the former Mary Tilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Turner Biddle [Mary Ellen Prindiville], who avoided all the fuss and feathers of a conventional large wedding by eloping to Wisconsin for a quiet ceremony two weeks ago, returned from their honeymoon yesterday to receive the blessings of their families in Winnetka. Young Mrs. Biddle, who is the daughter of Mrs. James W. Prindiville, is one of the prettiest and most popular of last winter's debutantes. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Biddle of Winnetka. After their marriage in Wisconsin the pair went up to Mrs. Prindiville's camp at Big Fork, Minn.

Ellen Wilson McAdoo in Glencoe for Week's Visit.

Miss Ellen Wilson McAdoo, the sprightly young daughter of the William Gibbs McAdoos, who made so many new Chicago friends during the Democratic convention, is in Glencoe for a visit of a week or more with Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Compton and their daughter and son-in-law, the Thomas Drevers. Mrs. Compton is a cousin of Mrs. McAdoo and a niece of the late President Woodrow Wilson.

The Comptons are to give a dinner for Miss McAdoo on Saturday night at their residence and afterwards they'll take the young people to dance at Skokie Country club. Mrs. Drever, who has just returned from a vacation in the northern woods, is planning some informal entertaining for the visitor also.

Mrs. James Minotto and her little daughter, Ida May, who spent the early part of the summer at the Lake Forest estate of Mrs. Minotto's father, Louis F. Swift, departed last week for Santa Barbara, where they have taken a house. Mr. Minotto and their son will go to Santa Barbara from their ranch at Phoenix, where the Minottos spend the greater part of every year.

Bruce Babcock, younger son of the Orville Babcocks, left the latter part of last week for a visit in Santa Barbara. His parents and older brother, Orville Jr., have no plans for the summer except for frequent week-end visits to the nearby country, although they might decide to pack up and go away for a longer vacation at any minute, particularly if the weather becomes very hot again. Both boys will be at Yale next winter, Bruce having graduated from St. Paul's last June.

Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman of Lake Forest will leave on Wednesday to spend a month in the Adirondacks. Mr. Boardman will join her in about ten days.

Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes and Daughters Go to Nantucket.

Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes and her three daughters, Grace, Dorothy, and Elizabeth, will be off tomorrow morning for a month's holiday at Nantucket island, where they've taken a house.

Miss Margaret Sinclair, executive secretary of the Junior league, departed on Saturday to spend two or three weeks at Roaring Brook, Mich., where she'll be near several of her fellow league members, among them the Senn twins—Dorothy and Barbara—who are at their father's summer place at Roaring Brook, and Barbara Graf, who is summering at the same resort with her family. The Grafs are not going to their western ranch this year. Miss Mary Fortune will leave today to visit her aunt, Miss Joanna Fortune, at Roaring Brook, and her sister, Jane, will go up a little later.

Mrs. Cyrus Bentley was visiting Mrs. Frederick T. West at Pittsfield, Mass., the last her household here heard from her, and she is not expected home for some time. Her son-in-law, David Hamilton, and his daughters, Margaret and Elizabeth Mary, are spending the summer at Huron Mountain, Mich., although Mr. Hamilton finds it necessary to return to Chicago for a day or two occasionally.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. La Chance of 3202 Sheridan road have gone to Swampscott, Mass., for a month's stay.

Sophie Tucker Heads Program at the Dells

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Out on Dempster road, west of Evanston, are several places where you may drop in for an evening of food, dance, and entertainment for eye and ear. It happens that two are near neighbors, the Lincoln Tavern and the Dells.

Ted Weems and his orchestra have just moved into Lincoln Tavern, following Duke Ellington, and a new era of quieter though no less inspiriting dance music has become the order of the evening. Mr. Weems is a person of varied talents. He conducts his orchestra in a way that would win him a large vote in a contest of expert dance leaders. At intervals during the evening he adds the further duty of becoming a suave and gently humorous announcer and master of ceremonies for the floor show.

A good part of the floor show entertainment is furnished by members of the orchestra themselves. Several sing, there are a pair of comics, still another displays vast ability as a whistling soloist of skill and charm. These appearances are varied by other nonorchestral talents, among them Miss Andrea Marsh, who is introduced as just out after an automobile accident, but who sings as though her nerves had not in the least been shaken; Miss Peggy Moore, dancer, who seems to be seeking with considerable success a high record in goofiness of pose and expression, and Florence and Alvarez, who perform startling variations on the tango.

Meanwhile Mr. Weems has been picking out visiting celebrities and introducing them one by one. On his first night the orchestra played the wedding march while the spotlight was turned on Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bering. The last introductions involved Sophie Tucker and Gus Arnheim, who were celebrating a busman holiday by visiting the Lincoln Tavern show.

Mr. Arnheim directs the orchestra while Miss Tucker takes charge of the rest of the proceedings at the Dell's show just a short way off and across the road. She is its wise cracking announcer and its star, and she is a good bit of a marvel in both capacities. There is a temptation to pause over some of the other details of the entertainment, to speak of the Colette sisters, two pretty, dainty, and uncommonly expert young dancers; of the Three Rhythm Rascals, who descend from the band stand to the floor and sing; of Josie and Jules Walter, whose dancing merits are many.

But Miss Tucker takes the center for the last number, mounts a stool by the side of a piano, summons her accompanist, and delivers herself not of as many songs as the audience would like, but as many as she cares to give. She is a veteran in the art of projecting songs of none too polished a manner, and she has lost none of her skill in putting them across and making every syllable click. You may or may not like the songs—the audience that night was nothing short of uproarious about them—but you will admit that many another singer could take lessons from her in how to do them.

Though the Weather Is Roasting You Can Look Delightfully Cool

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Says the co-worker near me: "I read all this hooey about keeping cool and lovely on a hot summer day. But tell me how can it be done when you leave home at eight in the morn and work until five-thirty?"

Well, for the morning look preparations start the eve before. All the little cleaning up jobs that can be done then should be done, so there won't be that last mad rush in the morning. There's the warm bath at night. Real warm with soap—in soapy water, too. These hot days call for one good warm bath per day, and don't believe you can get along without it.

After the bath you'll put a little cream on the face, work it in, dry off the surplus or leave some on over night, according to the dryness or greasiness of the skin. Fix up the nails so that will be done for the morning. Just a minute may be all that's needed.

Brush out the hair, set it. Put on the cap to preserve the wave. Then, in the morning, take a shower, if it is at all possible. This sets you up as nothing else can do. O, I forgot. The eve before, wash out those stockings and the thin little underthings that take no more than a jiffy. See that the corset ribbons and the lace upper part are immaculate. All this underwear detail is necessary to keeping cool and lovely on a hot day.

After the shower in the a. m. use your dusting powder and a deodorant, if necessary. Fix the face with makeup, and then dress. For a long day's wear, and you're sitting down most of the day, the summer silks are best. Linens and cotton frocks do look mussy along about five-thirty.

Eat a light breakfast. Relax on the way downtown—if you get a seat! Eat a light luncheon—and make it salads, a glass of milk and fruit dessert. [The light luncheon does make a big difference in your feeling along about 4.]

Try to save ten minutes of your lunch hour for revamping yourself. Hie to the washroom. There, do your face over from cleansing cream on. Refix the hair. Wash the hands well before the face work. Give a little time to this. And the afternoon will see you looking pretty much as you arrived at work in the morning.

Forswear That Yen to Demand an Explanation

BY DORIS BLAKE.

You can ask them for bread. You can ask them for gold. You can ask them for anything. But DON'T ask them for explanations! There's something in every Adam's son of them that rebels when an explanation is demanded. They'll give them—if you leave them alone and let them handle them in their own way. The explanation may not be entirely satisfactory, but better let it go at that if you love your man and want him to keep on loving you!

Women must be born with the instinct for trying to force explanations out of a man. Here's one of 18 on the warpath because "she can't get an explanation out of him." Him, it seems, was an ardent suitor for months. Then his passion subsided. His phone calls stopped. His visits ended.

For three or four months the girl never saw or heard from him. Then came her birthday. With it, a gift from the young man. A present, not named—but wonderful, the girl reports. Following directly on the heels of the present the young man appeared again.

"I hardly could believe my eyes," she tells. "For months I thought of him, wondering if he ever would come back. I demanded an explanation, of course, and this is what he told me."

Well, what he told her probably hadn't a darned thing to do with the case. Male explanations are like that frequently!

But why demand one of the ornery things? When you're not engaged to a young man he is perfectly free to come and go at will! He doesn't have to explain a thing! He shouldn't be asked to. In this case the fact that the young man wanted to come back was explained in the gift. That should have been enough! And plenty!

Even when you're tied to a man wringing explanations out of him is no ambition to possess. If you nag long enough, he'll throw you one to keep you quiet. But if you want to get the truth, better leave it to him to name the day for explanation making.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Lack Church Pews.

"I am the pastor of a congregation located in one of Chicago's poor districts. We are conducting services in a vacant theater, but the seats have been removed, and, although we have been able to secure a few chairs, they are not enough. I wonder if some church or chapel would have some old pews to give? They would help us so much. We'd appreciate an abandoned furnace for next winter, too.

"REV. H. B."

If your church is planning to discard a few pews in the course of remodeling you doubtlessly will be confronted with the problem of their disposal. Here's a minister to whom they would be a godsend.

Fashionable Parisiennes Contrast White Riding Suit with Bright Color

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—White has a magic spell that holds the smart sportswoman in thrall. The ultra-chic use popular vivid shades only for details, and stick to pure white for their sports costumes. Even the riders in the Bois du Boulogne are garbed in white these hot days. White linen riding trousers, white duck, and white wool gabardine have become the standard of equestrienne chic around Paris.

Now that it is hot, riding coats have been abandoned by many of the most fashionable riders, and vests without sleeves are generally worn with the universal white trousers. Vests for the horsewoman are usually in some bright shade. Many women wear vivid red vests with their white riding outfits. Bright green is also a favorite color for the vest. Bright blue is sometimes chosen, and one or two women look very smart in their white costumes that are worn with brown vests and boots.

The Carette riding outfit in our sketch today has trousers of white gabardine and a shirt blouse of white handkerchief linen. The vest, which buttons up the center front, is made of red gabardine. A belt of white gabardine has a silver buckle.

Chinese Consul Asserts Lotus Beds Are Genuine

The genuiness of the lotus beds at Grass lake was upheld yesterday by Dr. Kollang Yia, Chinese consul. He examined the blooms following assertions by other observers that the flowers were not really lotus, but water lilies of a kind common in the lower Mississippi. "These beds are very much like our lotus blooms in China," said the consul.

BOROTRA'S RALLY KEEPS DAVIS CUP IN FRANCE

BASQUE BEATS ALLISON; VINES DEFEATS COCHET

Matches Are Packed with Thrills.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 31.—France today won the Davis cup, emblematic of world tennis supremacy, for the sixth consecutive year, defeating the United States in the challenge round, three matches to two. But in its defeat the American team gained tennis prestige

The French gained their victory largely through the questionable ruling of a linesman, who decided, contrary to the opinion of most of the 10,000 spectators in the Roland Garros stadium, that Jean Borotra had not double faulted on the point which would have given victory in the deciding singles match to Wilmer Allison and the United States. After Borotra had rallied to beat the American, 1-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, in the first singles match of the day, Ellsworth Vines Jr., trimmed Henri Cochet, the world's No. 1 player, 4-6, 0-6, 7-5, 8-6, 6-2, but the victory had no bearing on the outcome of the contest.

WILMER ALLISON.

Hero Even in Defeat.

It was the almost unanimous opinion of the press box, including French experts, that it was not Borotra, but the linesman who held the cup for France. Allison, hero of the series, had lived up to his brilliant showing of the last two days in splitting the first four sets with the doughty Basque.

In the fifth and deciding set Allison led 5-3 and had Borotra at match point. The little Frenchman by sheer nerve pulled the game out and with the score at 5-4 started to serve. The game seesawed with the Basque, hard pressed by fatigue, slowly dropping back. The score was deuced when Allison took a point and Borotra was showing signs of cracking.

The French veteran served one ball into the net, then the second, which in the eyes of every person in the stadium except the linesman, was several inches out. Allison thought it was out and drove it carelessly into the net, thinking the match was over. The service was called good, and Allison evidently was so upset over the decision that he was incapable of taking the game, although he got to match point once more.

Cracks After Decision.

Worn out by the strain of three successive days of high speed tennis, Allison cracked after having been deprived by the linesman's decision of the whole match and with it America's chances for the cup. Borotra benefited by splitting his shoes—for the third time during the match—to gain some vital minutes of rest while making a change and held the edge over the American for the two deciding games.

Borotra already had been jeered by the unruly but impartial crowd for the shoe changing act, and the decision which saved him from defeat in the tenth game was the cause of general stupefaction, but its full irony was not appreciated then, as no one thought Vines had a chance with Cochet. It was not until he had performed the miracle of beating Cochet that it was remembered that America had lost the cup on an unjust line decision.

Vines showed considerable improvement over his form of Friday, but still was nothing to write home about at the start of the match. Some of his most beautiful shots seemed blocked by the tape of the net or steamed up just a fraction too much to hit the back line, while Cochet played with mechanical precision comparable to Rene La Coste at the top of his form.

When the lanky American won the third set at 7-5, it was regarded as a lucky break, but close observers noticed that Cochet was being forced to run about the court in a way to which he was unaccustomed.

It was in the fourth set that Vines really uncorked his Wimbledon form. His service was an unerring cannonball which no one in the world but Cochet could even have touched—and just touching was as much as Cochet could do with it most of the time. Some of Cochet's magical shots went for nothing when Vines threw himself across the court and fired them back from impossible positions. He made terrific speed, he had uncanny

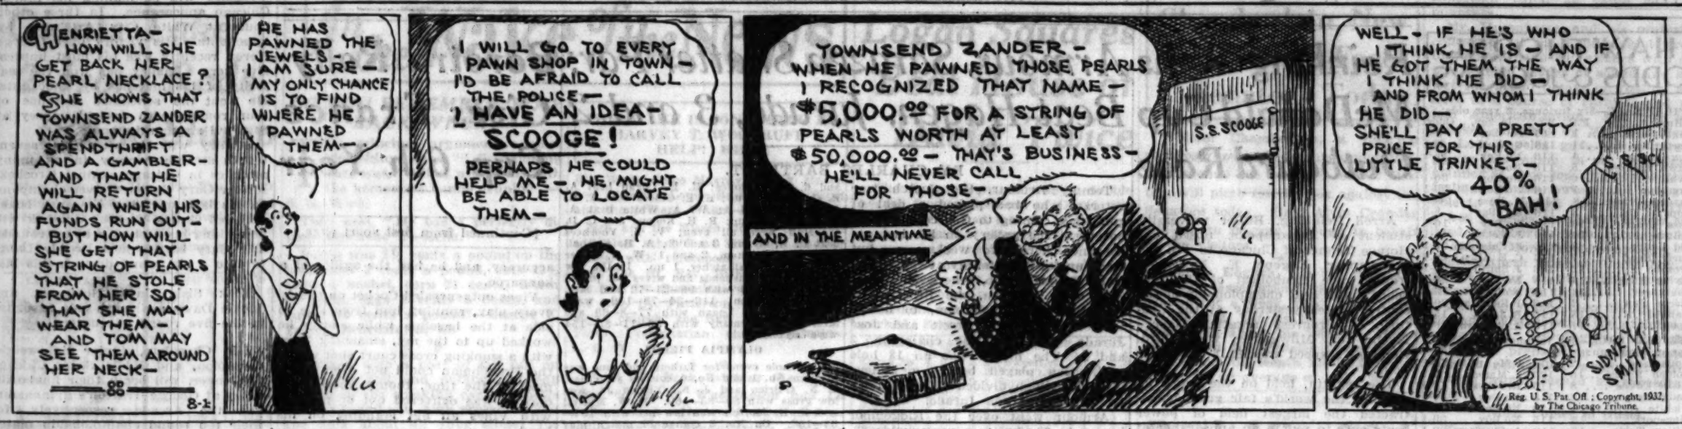
THE GUMPS—OLD 40%



OLD HAWTHORNE REOPENS TODAY; EXPECT 15,000

Shoreland Headlines Card; Cathop Favorite.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Hawthorne will be the gathering place for Chicago's racegoers today and John Schank, the boss of the famous west side course, expects to greet about 15,000 neighbors and friends at the opening of a 29 day summer season shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The Shoreland, engaging nine of the best 3 year olds in the west, is the opening day attraction and last night Cathop, a little brother of the famous Mike Hall, ruled as the favorite in the battle at a mile and a sixteenth. Waylayer was the second choice while Prince Hotspur, Big Brand, On Sir, and Kibitzer were others to muster support.

Polydorus Is There, Too.

There are seven other races on the program, with the Brookwood at six furlongs as the secondary feature. It draws some real flyers into the competition. Polydorus is expected to be a slight favorite over Supreme Sweet from Chicago, and the fleet Vishnu, which hails from the Nevada Stock Farm stable. Minton, Satin Spar, and Pancho Lopez, a stablemate of Supreme Sweet, also were in the overnight field.

Hawthorne was never better equipped than it is today for the opening of the season. The plant is the oldest in Illinois and one of the oldest in the country, but it has been modernized in recent years until it offers the conveniences and beauties of the other tracks.

Its stake and purse offerings also have kept step with the other racing institutions and the prizes hung up attract the best horses in training.

Two $25,000 Races Scheduled.

Before the season ends most of the stars in the country will appear here in the series of stake events, the features of which will be the $25,000 added Hawthorne handicap and the $25,000 Hawthorne gold cup.

The Hawthorne handicap will be run next Saturday, and in order to offer a strong field Racing Secretary Joe McLennan went to Suratoga yesterday to supervise the sending of the eastern representatives here for the race. Equipoise, Blenheim, and two or three other easterners are possibilities. The leading westerners already are at Hawthorne awaiting the battle.

Hawthorne presented a busy scene yesterday with several hundred horses arriving during the day from Arlington Park and Latonia. More of the horses that raced at Arlington this year remained over for this year's Hawthorne's meet than for any previous meeting.

Picking Winners Still a Task.

From Latonia came the better fiorses that have campaigned at that track for the last month. The fields as a rule will be large throughout the meeting and the winners just as difficult to pick as ever. The conditions for the eight stake races will give the leaders in every age division a chance to compete for the prizes.

Joseph A. Murphy again will be in charge. The popularity of dollar day racing at Arlington Park has caused the Hawthorne association to adopt a similar policy for three days each week—Monday, Tuesday and Friday, so the rate will prevail for this afternoon's opening program.

There are about 1,500 horses quartered at Hawthorne and other Chicago tracks ready to take part in the meet.

BENNY LEONARD SIGNS FOR TITLE BOUT WITH FIELDS

New York, July 31.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden officials announced today they had signed Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, for a title bout with Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, on Sept. 12 at the Garden bowl on Long Island.

Jack Kearns, manager of Fields, was said to have approved the bout and will confer with Garden officials here Tuesday, when the papers probably will be signed.

Cubs Win, 6-3; Then Warneke Is Beaten in Reliet Role, 5-4

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 31.—Lon Warneke, who hasn't picked up one of his 16 victories this season in a relief rôle, was put on the spot this afternoon in the seventh inning of the second game of the Cubs-Dodgers double header, and got taken for his fourth defeat of the year and his first since he lost on these same Brooklyn premises June 7.

CHARLEY ROOT.

The Cubs, because of Charley Root's hitting as well as pitching, had taken the first game, 6 to 3. They were hungry for the second, so they sent in Warneke with a man on third and one down in the seventh to protect a 4 to 3 lead. Warneke was only partly to blame for the fact that the Dodgers made two runs for an eventual 5 to 4 victory. The Pirates were idle, so the Cubs remained 5½ games from the top.

FIRST GAME

Wilson struck out to start the second inning. Cuccinello slugged his homer high into the far distant left field stand. Wright filed to Cuyler. Clancy doubled to center. The inning ended with Sukeforth's fly to Jurges.

The big Cub fourth started modestly enough. Stephenson was out when Rosenfeld crushed into the centerfield wall and managed to hold on to his drive. Moore was hit by a pitched ball and went to second while Phelps was throwing out Grimm. Hartnett walked on five pitches and the bases were full when Jurges scratched a hit off Stripp's glove. Root took two balls and two wild strikes. Then he connected with one to dead right center—a double which scored Moore, Hartnett, and Jurges. Root came home on Herman's single to center, Bill taking second on the throw in. English struck out.

Exit Mr. Phelps.

In the fifth the Cubs made another run and sent Phelps on his way. Cuyler walked and was forced by Stephenson. Moore doubled to left center, scoring Stevie. Shaute relieved Phelps and walked Grimm. Hartnett fanned for the second time and Jurges lined to Wright.

Hartnett led off the eighth with a homer that came down in the second deck beyond the most distant part of the outfield. Jurges followed with a single to left and went to second on Root's sacrifice. Jurges was out at third on Herman's tap to Wright and English forced Herman.

Two errors in one series of plays helped the Dodgers to two runs in the eighth. With one down Stripp walked. O'Doul lined a single to right and Moore kicked the ball around long enough to give Stripp the idea to score. Herman got the ball to the plate ahead of Stripp, but Hartnett dropped the ball, Stripp scoring and O'Doul reaching third, whence he scored on Wilson's liner to Moore.

SECOND GAME

The first two runs of the game were unearned. The first was driven home in the second by Clancy's fourth hit of the afternoon and the other by Pitcher Mungo's single. Cuccinello was safe on English's low throw and went to second on Wright's sacrifice. Clancy then smacked a single to left, scoring Cuccinello, and took second on the throw to the plate. Lopez fanned but Mungo singled to center, Clancy scoring.

The Dodgers made merry in the third although they got only one run home. O'Doul doubled to center with one down. Wilson slammed the ball against the right field wall, scoring O'Doul, but was out, Moore to Jurges, when he tried to reach second. Cuc

CHICAGO JOCKEY INJURED, MATE KILLED IN CRASH

Walter Magner, 25 years old, 6333 Wayne avenue, a jockey, was seriously injured and Charles Phillips, 26 years old, a fellow rider, was killed in an automobile-taxicab collision at Windsor, Ont., yesterday. Phillips' home is in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Sandwich, Ont., a passenger in the cab, also was killed.

Phillips and Magner were to have left today to ride in a race meet at Hamilton, Ont., after riding at Devonshire Park for the last week. Magner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Magner and was graduated from the University of Illinois law school three years ago. He has had trouble making riding weight this season and had planned to retire to practice law this winter. His father, who has been a member of the Chicago Board of Trade for many years, flew to Windsor in a chartered plane immediately after being notified of the accident.

Largest Baseball Crowd Fills Cleveland Stadium.

Cleveland, O., July 31.—(AP)—What was claimed to be the largest crowd ever to witness a major league baseball game turned out today to see the Cleveland Indians' debut in the Municipal stadium. The Tribe lost a 1 to 0 battle to Philadelphia.

The official attendance was announced as 80,284, of which 76,979 were cash customers. This mark is a scant handful more than the previous record listed by Will Harridge, American league president, and Cleveland officials, the figure set in New York Sept. 9, 1928, when 80,045 saw the Athletics battle the Yankees in a double header. Record books, however, credit the Yanks and the A's with a crowd of 85,265.

THIRD OLYMPIC ATHLETE VICTIM OF APPENDICITIS

Los Angeles, Cal., July 31.—(AP)—Appendicitis struck its third blow at the world congress of athletes gathered here for the tenth Olympic games when Tastuzo Fijiya, Japanese high hurdler, was taken to a hospital today for an operation. He became ill in the night.

Emil Barbier, Belgian fencer, and Louisa Roberts, Atlanta, Ga., member of the United States swimming team, underwent appendicitis operations yesterday and will read Olympic results in hospital beds instead of competing.

Chinese Team All Washee Up in Olympics; He Runs 5th

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., July 31.—Following the opening exercises of the Olympic games at which 105,000 customers watched the athletes parade around the lot attended by the officials wearing badges, the first athletic events of the track and field program were run off today in comparative privacy. That is to say that the moment the meet turned from the ceremonial to the competitive phase about 50 per cent of the patrons momentarily, at least, lost interest, and the sprinters, hurdlers, high jumpers and shot putters performed their arts in an atmosphere of emotional reaction.

But it must be kept in mind that this performance was taking place on a Sabbath and that there are other communities in the United States so pious that the players would not have been cheered but snatched by the neck by the officers for doing what they did behind turnstiles today in Los Angeles. It might be considered, also, that the meet had now lost that official gloss imparted to the opening occasion by Charlie Curtis, the Vice President, who had inaugurated the show as the representative of the very President himself.

No Dolly Gann.

In explaining his presence, Mr. Curtis had remarked that he was very sorry his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, was unable to attend the Olympics, and although there were no really audible shouts of "We want Dolly Gann!" from the galleries, still the patrons may have felt as though the thing was a social failure without her. There is no knowing how deeply the customers may feel about Mrs. Gann.

The officials, having had their quadrennial hour in the parade, which is all the compensation that the officials receive for their worries and office work in the promotion of these events, had retired from the spectacle and were to be seen only as background in their white pants and blue coats, moving about the green park at the bottom of the bowl with lists of names or stop watches or steel measuring tapes in their hands, running the show. It would be churlish to grudge the officials the pleasure of the march in their uniforms with their badges up, especially considering that this year, due to the state of the Olympic campain fund, they have had to buy their own uniforms.

Chinese Team Is Fifth.

One nation, at least, had no official in the lineup. The Chinese team, consisting of C. Liu, the sole athletic representative of 400,000,000 people, was attended on his trip to America only by the sports editor of a Chinese newspaper. The correspondent traveled first class, the team down below, but there was no provision for the inclusion of sports editors in the parade, and C. Liu, running in team formation, finished fifth in the second hent of the 100 meter race.

The stadium, standing about four miles from the business center of Los Angeles, formerly was known as the Los Angeles Coliseum, and it was on these grounds that the late Knute Rockne won one of his last great triumphs in the football business when his Notre Dame team beat Southern California, 27 to 0. For the Olympic games they had added a couple of stories of height around the bowl except at the open end, creating an amphitheater which might contain the Yale bowl, complete with hot dog stands and annexes, as conveniently as a hollow tooth accommodates a raspberry pit.

Flame Does Its Stuff.

At the open end of the bowl, on a high fluted shaft, a smoky flame played in the wind from a huge saucer the size of a kettle drum, fed by a natural gas pipe. This was identified as the Olympic flame, something almost religious in its meaning, although you had to sense the meaning by ear, there being nobody present who could put it into mere words. It will burn perpetually for possibly as long as fifteen years.

Airplanes grumbled about in the pale blue sky, dragging long pennants like tails, with advertising matter on them, and a dirigible made several tours, with a similar trailer to apprise the patrons of some other astonishing bargain. The Californians are bargain conscious in some matters, and food is said to be penny cheap in the neighborhood markets; but there is still, in some of the store windows, a variety of luxurious and strictly useless knicknacks of a kind

NAMES POUR IN FOR SWIM; NEW RECORD PROBABLE

Entrants of Other Years to Try Again Aug. 14.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The entries for the third annual 100 yard free style swimming championships are pouring in to THE TRIBUNE office. While it's early to predict, it seems quite likely that the number of contestants will exceed that of last year when more than 1,400 swimmers competed for the gold medals, the first prizes in the ten races for boys and girls of Chicagoland.

There are races for all over 11 years of age. Entries will be eccepted until midnight Aug. 10. The events will be held on Sunday, Aug. 14, at the Lincoln park lagoon.

The age classifications, which apply to both boys and girls are: Class A, 11 to 12 years; class B, 13 to 14 years; class C, 15 and 16 years; class D, 17 and 18 years; class E, 18 years of age and over.

Every One Is Rewarded.

All swimmers who report for the Chicagoland championship events will be awarded gold merit badges emblematic of their ability to swim 100 yards. In addition to the gold first prizes, silver and bronze medals will be given to the second and third finishers in each of the ten races. A gold cup is the trophy for the team scoring the most points. First place in each race will count five points, second place three points, and third place one point.

Many of the entries are from those who have been unsuccessful in other years. Among these is Elaine Feigenbeum, 6919 Sheridan road. In 1930, the first year that THE TRIBUNE held the 100 yard championships, Elaine competed. She also entered last year.

"Watch my speed," Elaine wrote when she filed her entry in the class B group for girls. "I have won several meets and I believe I can win a gold medal this year."

Eddie Can Draw, Too.

Edward Cernicky, 2640 West 47th street, may not be a champion swimmer, but he's an artist. Even so we have no right to say Edward isn't a swimmer. That remains to be proved a week from Sunday. He's entered in class E, the boys' unlimited division. We know he wields a pen for the envelope in which he sent his entry was handsomely decorated with a pen and ink drawing tinted in colors. We presume the lad mounted on the sea lion and clutching an entry blank is Edward. In any event, if young Cernicky can swim like he can draw, the class E race is decided right now.

It will be possible to have 15 races in each heat of the preliminaries. Thus the number of entries in each division must exceed 225 before it will be necessary to hold semi-finals.

Slash Rating of Several Polo Stars

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Decreases greatly outnumber increases among the higher ranked polo-ists in the new list of handicap ratings announced by the United States Polo association today. These ratings were decided upon at the midyear meeting of the association handicap committee last week.

Heading the list of players whose handicaps were cut is Winston Guest, the hard hitting back of the 1930 American international four. Guest's handicap was reduced from eight to seven goals.

Hopping Raised to Eight.

Earle A. S. Hopping, who rode at No. 2 on the 1930 quartet in the international polo challenge cup series, was one of the few outsanding players to receive an increase. He was raised from seven to eight after being reduced from eight to seven at the previous meeting of the handicappers.

The group of eight goal riders in the United States remains at four. There are no nine goalers and Tommy Hitchcock Jr., American international captain, remains as the only player accorded the maximum rating of ten goals. Hitchcock is a ten goaler for the eleventh year in succession.

Three seven goal men were dropped a notch. They are Harold E. Talbot Jr., leader of the Roslyn quartet; Arthur P. Perkins of the Midwick Country club in California, and Edward Baldwin of Hawaii.

Phipps Gets Seven Rating.

One addition was made to the seven goal ranks. Michael G. Phipps, a member of this year's Yale four, was advanced one goal.

The six goal grouping was hit hard, seven players receiving a one goal reduction. G. H. [Pete] Bostwick is one of the seven. Robert E. Strawbridge Jr. and Seymour H. Knox of Buffalo are others. The remaining four are Harry East of the Burnt Mills Polo club; H. C. Phipps of Meadow Brook, and Selby McCreery and William S. Tevis Jr., both members of the San Mateo-Burlingame club in California.

Fullerton Tennis Club Beats Hamilton Park, 5-4

Fullerton Tennis club won the championship of C division of the Chicago Tennis association yesterday by defeating Hamilton Park, 5 matches to 4, at Hamilton Park.

Reinking Wins McDonald Cup Outboard Race

Arrell Reinking, Butler university student of Indianapolis, nosed out Horace Tennes of Chicago to win the Commander Eugene F. McDonald trophy race symbolical of the outboard motor boat championship of the central states yesterday at the Century of Progress regatta. George Kuehn of Milwaukee was third. Reinking's speed was 46.16 miles per hour.

The regatta, held on the south lagoon at the world's fair grounds, attracted the largest field of power boats ever to put in an appearance at a Chicago boat race. More than 100 boats from 16 states competed.

Art Jacobs of Chicago won the class A race at a speed of 36.21 miles per hour. Jack Maypole of River Forest was second and Arrell Reinking of Indianapolis was third. Maypole came back to win the class B race for amateurs at 39 miles per hour.

Twenty-two boats turned over in the course. One boat threw its driver, Frank Harvey of Milwaukee, and pierced the side of the yacht Roamer, owned by O. E. Elliott of Chicago. The force of the runaway was so great that one-third of the outboard boat went completely through the yacht. No one was injured. Summaries:

CLASS B—Won by Jack Maypole, River Forest; A. Reinking, Indianapolis, second; Warren Jones, River Forest, third.

New Code and Plenty of Ducks Greet Hunters

BY BOB BECKER.

Now that the department of agriculture has set a two months open season on ducks and geese for this fall's sport the hunters in the middle west have relaxed and now are looking forward with renewed interest to the autumn migration. Last fall Illinois shooters had thirty days due to the shortage of ducks because of drought and drainage of breeding grounds in the north central states and Canada. Now that breeding conditions have improved, Illinois will be able to open the season on Oct. 16 and will close on Dec. 15.

There are several new regulations for this fall's sport which hunters should get acquainted with. In the first place there will be no live goose decoy restriction. Last year wild goose hunters will remember that the decree was "not more than ten live decoys to a blind." This fall use all the live geese decoys you want.

25 Live Callers Limit.

But the most important thing for the duck hunters to keep in mind is this: a restriction on live duck decoys which says twenty-five live callers is all that must be used. This is a federal regulation. States can, of course, reduce that number if they wish.

Another important feature of the new regulations keeps the present noon hour opening for waterfowl hunting on the books. In other words, on Oct. 16 Illinois hunters cannot start hunting until 12 o'clock noon. Control of baiting, rest days and other regulations were left to the states to do what they wanted with these factors in waterfowl hunting.

Daily Bag Limit Is 15.

As for bag limits duck hunters had better keep these items in mind or they may run into trouble with the wardens. First, no killing of ruddy ducks this year. They are too scarce. Second, a daily bag limit of 15 [same as last year], but not more than 10 birds in the aggregate of canvasbacks, redheads, greater and lesser scaups [the bluebills], ringnecks [also called fall ducks], bluewing, greenwing and cinnamon teal, gadwalls and shovelers. These species need greater protection than the common ducks such as mallards, black duck, pintail and others.

This regulation is extremely important and hunters must get hep to it before they start operations from a duck blind. In Illinois, it is not going to make much difference because along the Illinois river most of the hunting is on mallards and pintails. But with the open water waterfowl hunters it's going to be a different story.

For example, if a shooter bags six canvasbacks, 3 bluebills, and a bluewing he is all done on these species. He can take five more ducks during the day, but they will have to be mallards, pintails or black ducks because the law says not more than 10 of those birds in the restricted list may be in any one day's bag.

Armour, Sarazen Shatter Par; Beat Hagen, Jurado, 3 and 2

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Tommy Armour, the Scotch war veteran who has played a deal of golf since coming to this country, did not thrill the gallery on his last appearance here two weeks ago, but made up for it yesterday at the Ridgemoor Country club, where he paired with Gene Sarazen, the British and American open champion, to defeat Walter Hagen of Detroit and José Jurado, the Argentine champion, 3 and 2. The match was an 18 hole exhibition played before a gallery of 2,500, which divided its cheers between Armour and Jurado.

Armour went over the Ridgemoor layout in 68, due to a remarkable 32, four under par, on the incoming nine. His score tied the course record set last year by Horton Smith of Oak Park and will be hung up as a new mark for the ball now in use.

Tommy Forced to Step.

At that Tommy had to step to keep ahead of Hagen and Sarazen, who also shot subpar golf. Walter came home with a medal card of 69 and Gene with a 70. Both had turned the first nine in 34. Jurado, despite the fact that he early developed a fondness for almost every trap on the course and finally wound up with a 77, made a hit with the galleries. The little man from Buenos Aires, who arrived here in the latter part of June to take part in the national, Canadian, and western open tournaments, is showing the effects of the constant round of travel and play to which he has been subjected since coming here. Jurado, Hagen, and Armour will compete in the Michigan P. G. A. trials at Oakland Hills, Detroit, today.

Par—Out	455	344	434—36
Par—In	434	455	443—36—72
Armour—Out	554	344	524—36
Armour—In	433	444	433—32—68
Hagen—Out	354	443	434—34
Hagen—In	434	444	543—35—69
Sarazen—Out	434	344	544—34
Sarazen—In	435	445	443—36—70
Jurado—Out	554	355	454—40
Jurado—In	534	445	543—37—77

Best Ball.

Sarazen-Armour—Out	434	344	324—31
Sarazen-Armour—In	433	444	433—32—63
Hagen-Jurado—Out	354	343	434—33
Hagen-Jurado—In	434	444	543—35—68

Play Brilliant Golf.

Armour, Hagen, and Sarazen played some of the best golf seen in the Chicago district this year. Hagen opened it with a birdie three on the first hole, but Sarazen came back with an eagle three on the 510 yard second, compounded with a beautiful brassie shot and a six foot putt. All four golfers birdied the third and repeated on the 14th. Armour didn't get a birdie until the eighth, but from there on he wasn't over par once. He had birdies on the 12th, 14th, 15th, and 17th. Hagen might have tied him or even bettered the score if Walter's tries for birdies on the greens had not trickled past the cup by inches at least four times during the match.

TWIN EAGLES.

G. O. Baggy made an ace on the 12th hole, 172 yards, on No. 2 course yesterday. Baggy played with J. W. Boyd and A. L. McBride. The ace was the third to be made on this hole this season. J. J. Bowers won the first blind bogey event with 99—5—94; S. J. Whitman, second, 88—8—94; J. A. Lodi, 99—5—94, third. Winners in the second blind bogey event were C. A. Darret, 93—0—93; G. A. Brignall, 95—2—93.

Borotra Rally Gives France Cup 6th Year accuracy, and he had the agility of a kangaroo.

Vines outgeneraled Cochet on nearly every play, running him from side to side at the baseline while slowly he worked up to the net, smashing loose with a smoking cross court shot which the Frenchman could not even touch most of the time, though more than once it was delivered out of position with Vines all but standing on his head.

Vines Steadies Again.

In the fourth set, Cochet, after trailing 0-4, got to match game at 5-6, but Vines pulled himself together, treating his opponent to some of the most blistering drives ever seen on this court. The score was deuced several times, but Cochet, already winded from his exertions, had not the strength to put over the winning points, finally dropped his own service to 6-7. Vines won his own service with rocket like drives, then broke through Cochet, catching him out of position for set point with a beautiful placement.

In the last set Cochet obviously was exhausted while Vines was soaring to new heights with each stroke. His service was gaining greater accuracy and his cross court shots were more breathtaking than ever. The American took the set and match—the match which should have given back the cup—by a score of 6-2 and was still going strong at the end.

Laskey, Jones Meet Tonight at White City

Tonight's Card

Art Laskey vs. Tom Jones [10].
Young Stuhley vs. Bob Groshek [10].
Dick Sisk vs. Johnny Panek [5].
Jack Robinson vs. Bob Stone [5].
Jackie Davis vs. Phil McQuillan [5].
Jack Ripp vs. Jack Barry [4].

Two ten round bouts will headline a boxing show at White City tonight. Art Laskey, Minneapolis, Minn., heavyweight, and Tom Jones, Chicago Negro, will meet in one. The other will bring together Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., and Bob Groshek, Gary, Ind., middleweights. Three five round matches and a four rounder comprise the supporting card.

Laskey will be making his fourth Chicago appearance. In three other bouts at White City Art won by knockouts. His victory over George Neron recently was his most impressive here. Laskey has won the majority of his matches by knockouts. He went the scheduled distance of four rounds with Jack Dempsey at St. Paul six months ago.

Stuhley will be after his seventeenth straight victory in as many matches in Chicago against Groshek, former Gary Golden Gloves champion. In his last start the Kewance boxer whipped Costas Vassis. Groshek will be making his first start at ten rounds. The Gary battler held Freddy Langford to a six round draw in his last effort.

Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion, and Eddie Shea, Chicago challenger, will begin their final drills today at George Trafton's gymnasium and the Arcade, respectively, for their ten round championship match at the Chicago Stadium Thursday night. The contest marks Chocolate's first appearance in the middle west against a topnotch opponent. Shea is receiving the chance he has sought ever since he started fighting eight years ago—the opportunity to fight for a title before his home folks and neighbors.

Shea will depend upon his punch and strength to carry him to victory. Eddie's workouts indicate that he is going to center his attention on a body attack. Shea's best victories were over Bat Battalino, Fidel La Barba, and Benny Bass.

Angel Civille vs. Willie Oster.
Sammy Slaughter vs. Paul Pirrone.
Freddy Miller vs. Hymie Wiseman.
Jack Moran vs. Marty Lampson.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The strain of a two game winning streak was just too much for the White Sox. They broke out at the heel, the toe and several other places yesterday to make it easy for the Washington Senators to take the second of the series, 8 to 5. At the same time their unraveling simplified the effort of Monte Weaver, the pitching professor of mathematics, to attain his 17th victory of the campaign against 5 defeats.

Vic Frasier, the noncommunicative Texan, is accustomed to trimmings and he was charged with this one, making 12 for the year, but he might have, at least, come close to prospering if his mates hadn't forgotten their fielding manners. They, or to be exact, Mr. Grube, were responsible for two Senator runs in the first inning. A blunder by Appling was the cause of another tally in the fifth, but the piece de resistance occurred in the fourth with a man on base. Both Selph and Grube were determined to catch the same foul, but didn't, and the beneficiary of this incident immediately slapped the ball out of the park. All of this happened while Frasier was serving.

Seeds, Hayes Hit Ball.

One thing that can be said in behalf of the Sox, their defeat notwithstanding, is that they didn't wait to pick up runs at bargain rates. Those they harvested were on legitimate hits. In this feature Bob Seeds and Jack Hayes were especially active, each producing three singles, all of which were paired. The pairing of these half dozen wallops in three innings accounted for a rather strange record compiled by Carey Selph. He had the pleasure of driving in three runs and yet didn't notch a hit or even drive a ball past the enemy infielders.

So that the 3,000 spectators wouldn't be kept in suspense over the Sox's two game winning streak, Rice opened the game with a single to center and stole second. Myer filed out, but Manush spanked a single to right. Kress threw to the plate, thinking he might nab Rice, but he didn't. Moreover, Grube let the ball bounce to the stand and this enabled Manush to reach third. He hiked home on Cronin's fly, to Fothergill. The Sox retrieved one of these runs in their half on singles by Seeds and Hayes and an infield out by Selph.

More Trouble for Frasier.

Frasier's misfortunes continued in the second and an undeserved run for the Senators was the outcome. Kingdon doubled to right center with one out and Berg filed to Fothergill. Weaver boosted a tall fly over the infield and this was where Hayes did a sun dodging act. The ball dropped in front of him for a single, Kingdon scoring. The next outbreak involved Grube and Selph in the fourth. Both tried to grab Rice's pop foul with two out and neither succeeded. On the next pitch Rice showed his appreciation by driving a homer into the right field seats. Berg, who had singled, scored ahead of him. That put the Senators in front, 5 to 1.

An error by Appling, coupled with a triple by West, hung up another enemy run in the fifth, but the Sox redeemed themselves by putting on a splurge that netted them three in their half. Blue started this with a single but Grube forced him. English, batting for Frasier, slapped a single to center. Seeds filled the bases on an infield hit. Then Hayes singled to right, scoring Grube and English and putting Seeds on third. Seeds scooted across the plate while Hayes was being forced on Selph's roller to short.

Sox Near a Tie.

The Sox crawled up a bit closer with a run in the seventh, and with about one more base hit they could have brought on a 6 to 6 tie. The incident opened with Gregory ignoring a third strike. Seeds aimed his third single into center. On a hit and run play Hayes poked a single past Myer, Seeds taking third. Hayes stole second. Selph's infield out let Seeds score. Then Fatty Fothergill registered his fourteenth consecutive time at bat without a hit by fouling to Kuhel.

Two good innings of pitching by Paul Gregory were followed by one not so good. West led off with a liner to center and stretched it to two bases because Appling didn't hold the return throw. Kingdon took a half hearted poke and luck was with him. The ball drifted past Blue and rolled over into foul territory for a triple, West scoring. Berg went out easily, but Weaver ripped off a hit to right, Kingdon counting.

cinello tripled off the left field wall, but died when Wright was called out on strikes.

Cubs Score in Fifth.

Three Cubs Strike Out.

Clark took over the pitching job in the seventh. Herman and English fanned, but Cuyler doubled to right. Stephenson was given an intentional pass. Moore supplied the third strike-out of the inning.

Rosenfeld opened the Dodger seventh with a fly to Stephenson. Stripp then lined a normal single to center, but Cuyler, following his procedure on every ground ball that came his way during the afternoon, chased the ball all over the premises until Stripp finally wound up at third, credited with a triple. Warneke relieved Grimes and O'Doul bounced a single back of the pitcher's box, Stripp scoring the tying run when the ball evaded Herman. Wilson fanned and as he did so O'Doul stole second. Cuccinello singled to center, scoring O'Doul, and took second on Cuyler's throw-in. Wright fouled to Grimm.

Hornsby batted for Warneke to start the ninth and flied to Rosenfeld. Herman singled to right. English's apparent double play ball took a hop over Cuccinello, Herman taking third. Cuyler shot a grounder at Clark and Herman was run down, Clark to Stripp to Lopez, English stopping at second. The game ended when Wright made a great stop and throw on Stephenson's grounder to force Cuyler at second.

William Chamberlain, a young southpaw who served his apprenticeship around the semi-pro lots of Boston, will pitch for the Sox against the Senators today. Gen. Alvin Crowder will try to stagger through in behalf of the visitors.

Charley English, the kid from the Western association who has been around for a week, can't brag about his fielding, but he is entitled to a few words about his hitting. When he singled for Frasier yesterday it marked his thirteenth hit in 29 times at bat for an average of .448.

FOREIGN CROP NEWS BRIGHTENS OUTLOOK HERE

Price Rise of 1924 Is Recalled.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain prices are so low that traders say there is little or nothing to be made in selling grains short. Accidents are said to be likely to favor holders. There is more disposition to buy wheat on all sharp declines. Trade leaders believe this will continue for some time.

The market, however, is subject to sharp rallies, while price recessions are dependent upon pit conditions. More outside interest on the buying side was apparent during the week, with most other commodities also showing strength. This tended to encourage buying of wheat and all grains as an investment.

Prices at Low Levels.

Prices are down to the lowest levels, and with the exception of wheat, supplies are not excessive. In Chicago wheat prices have advanced 5¾@7¾c from the lowest point in years within the last few weeks, and while top levels were not held, owing to profit taking by eastern and other interests, net gains were 3⅛@3¼c for the week. Prices in all other markets also finished better than the previous week. Winnipeg October, which recently was 10½c over Chicago September, closed at 8¼c premium.

Foreign markets were strong and advanced sharply early, only to react later. Foreigners were good buyers of futures in Chicago, and eastern interests that had large holdings of offers were heavy sellers on the bulge, which started a downward movement, taking the edge off the bull side and starting general unloading and a decline.

Failure of foreign markets to follow the upward trend in Chicago and of importers to buy cash wheat heavily was largely responsible for a recession from the top prices.

Damage to Spring Wheat.

Crop news from the northwestern spring wheat sections on both sides of the international line was bullish. There has been deterioration of 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 bu in the Dakotas and Minnesota crop, due to heat and drought. Estimates on western Canadian crop, which were recently 300,000,000 bu, have been lowered to 250,000,000 bu, and some even go below that figure. Last year's crop was 284,000,000 bu in the three western provinces.

Private reports on the United States crops will be given by Chicago statisticians on Tuesday. Winter wheat estimates are expected to be raised 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 bu, and spring wheat estimates lowered 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 bu. The Bennett-Miller estimate, given out on Saturday, made the spring wheat crop 246,000,000 bu, as compared with 305,000,000 bu by the government in July.

Foreign Crop News Bullish.

Foreign crop news was the most bullish of the season. Crops in the Danubian basin are said to be 110,000,000 bu short of last year. The size of the Russian crop is in doubt, but Russia sold wheat for August-September shipment to England at a low price during the week. All indications are that most of the foreign crops will be smaller than last year. That suggests a possibility of a repetition of 1924 that was responsible for an advance to $2.00 wheat inside of a little over six months.

Flour business, both domestic and export, enlarged. Winter wheat farmers are holding their grain back, while spring wheat farmers in the northwest who need money and have harvested their crop two weeks earlier than usually are selling fairly.

At the close July wheat was 50¼c, September 51⅛@51⅝c, and December 54⅝@54⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Crop Estimates Cut.

Corn estimates have been reduced by heat and drought, but prospects are for a large crop, estimates ranging from 2,950,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 bushels. An advance in wheat was responsible for a sympathetic movement in corn due to shorts covering, but heavy sales of cash corn by country holders for future shipment took the edge off the market and prices receded. The close was at ¼c to ⅜c net lower for the week, with July 30¾c, September 32¼c to 32⅜c, and December 32⅝c to 32⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Northwest Hedges Oats.

Northwestern interests were good sellers of late futures said to be hedging against purchases to arrive, most of the sales being in December. Industrial interests were good buyers, and there were export sales of around 350,000 bu to Canada, shipments being via lake. The new crop is beginning to move freely, with No. 2 white in car lots on track Chicago ⅜@1⅛c over September and No. 3 white ⅛c under to 1c over September. At the close July was 16⅝c, or within ⅛c of the season's low; September 17⅜@17⅝c, and December 20½@20⅝c, all being unchanged to ⅛c lower for the week.

Bank Journal Lists Signs of Trade Hope

New York, July 31.—At the present time the usual indices of business do not give a completely accurate picture and attention might better be centered on certain current developments which some day may be looked back upon as milestones on the road to recovery, says the current American Bankers' Association Journal in discussing the period ending the middle of July.

These favorable developments are:

"1—The defeat of the soldiers' bonus bill, with its threat of a $2,000,000,000 inflation of the currency.

"2—The termination of the world 'run' on American gold resources, which definitely ended one phase of international monetary confusion.

"3—Great Britain's courage and spectacular decision to rid itself of the crushing burden in fixed charges of its £2,000,000,000 war loan by offering to convert the 5 per cent issue into cash or 3½ per cent bonds, at the option of the holders.

"4—The first signs on the part of the disarmament conference, under the goad of President Hoover, of a willingness to attack this problem realistically.

"5—The agreement of the leading nations of Europe on a final settlement of reparations, involving the almost nominal lump payment by Germany of 3,000,000,000 marks.

Crisis of Confidence.

"The world at the moment is in the midst of a crisis of confidence, and the real story of accomplishments lies in this record of achievements looking toward the removal of those factors which are preventing the recovery of confidence."

Regarding reparations the Journal believes that it is too early yet to place a final estimate on the importance of the Lausanne agreement, but that there can be no question of its potentialities in the direction of quieting the apprehensions of a distraught world. "The whole agreement, admittedly, must survive or perish," the Journal says, "according to the attitude of this country at the expiration of the Hoover moratorium. We cannot say now precisely how generous that attitude will be.

Awaits Action on Debts.

"Regardless of what the United States does or does not do when the time comes for a reopening of the debt question—a time which, happily, will be one freer of politics than at any period for the past two years—one thing cannot be ignored. That is the amazing progress made among the principal European powers in understanding and accommodating themselves to one another's problems."

MOST OF BRITISH LOAN REPORTED ON 3½ PCT. BASIS

LONDON, July 31.—(AP)—Although no official figures are available, it was unofficially reported today that three quarters of the £2,000,000,000 war loan conversion from a five to a three and one-half per cent interest basis has been completed.

Meanwhile, the Bank of England continued working at top speed to deal with the conversion, the largest financial operation of its kind in history besides the loan itself. The offer of a one per cent cash bonus for conversion expired today, but the publicity campaign to convince Britishers they must help the government with the war debt burden continued unabated.

Employés of the Bank of England have been ordered to work tomorrow, a bank holiday.

Argentine Loan Closes.

BUENOS AIRES, July 31.—(AP)—The $125,000,000 patriotic loan launched May 25 to pay the back salaries of public employés and other government domestic expenses have been closed. Unofficial calculations today were that subscriptions amounted to 150,000,000 pesos of the prescribed 500,000,000 pesos.

OUTPUT OF AUTOS FOR 1931 IS 56.8 PCT. BEHIND 1930

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—A drop of 56.8 per cent in the number of motor vehicles produced in the United States in 1931 compared with the previous year was reported today by the commerce department. The value of the output was 59.4 per cent below that of 1930.

The department's figures showed the 1931 production amounted to 2,297,282, valued at $1,388,496,951. This included 1,904,878 passenger vehicles valued at $1,115,692,917. Public conveyances numbered 9,528 and were worth $25,096,337.

There were 244,837 commercial vehicles worth $162,289,201 and 127,208 chassis worth $17,154,029. Trailers and vehicles made for governmental agencies comprised the remainder.

The report showed figures were received from 199 establishments employing an average of 135,426 workers who received $157,436,896 in wages. The figures showed sharp declines from 1929. The figures for 1931 were preliminary and subject to correction.

RESERVE BANKS OPEN NEW DRIVE TO AID BUSINESS

Furnish Money Under Recent Decree.

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—The federal reserve system today stepped into the industrial situation of the nation and acted to furnish money to revive industry, trade and agriculture.

While the amount placed at the disposal of current business is unlimited, the board made no estimate of how much it would be.

Acting under the amendment to the federal reserve law signed by President Hoover on July 21, the board authorized federal reserve banks to make direct loans to individuals, partnerships and corporations for an emergency period of six months beginning tomorrow. The loans may be made upon paper eligible for rediscount by the federal reserve banks and must be used to finance current business operations.

The amendment to the federal reserve law provides that the banks may be authorized by the board to make the loans in "unusual and exigent circumstances," by the affirmative vote of not fewer than five members of the board and for such periods as the board may determine. It also requires that before making such a loan the federal reserve bank shall obtain evidence that the individual, partnership or corporation was unable to secure adequate credit accommodations from other banking institutions.

Action Follows Complaints.

The action of the board in authorizing the loans for the emergency period follows complaints that business, industry and agriculture had been unable to obtain funds with which to carry on legitimate operations.

The emergency move will permit individuals to borrow from federal reserve banks upon agricultural paper of not more than nine months maturity and trade and industrial paper of three months. Borrowing upon speculative paper is barred. Commercial banks are not included in the corporations which can borrow.

The board provided that the loans must be made at interest rates prescribed by federal reserve banks and approved by the board, and that each application for a loan must be made to the federal reserve bank of that district and contain a statement of circumstances giving rise to the application.

It also specified that each applicant must satisfy the federal reserve bank of the eligibility of the security offered, give a statement of efforts made to obtain credit from banks and state whether the applications for such credit accommodations were definitely refused and why, give a list of its banking relations and complete credit data, agree to furnish additional security if called upon to do so and submit to audits and examinations by representatives of the bank.

Must Justify Loan.

The federal reserve banks are required to see that the financial standing of the applicant justifies the loan, that the security offered is acceptable from a credit standpoint and eligible legally, that there is a reasonable need for the credit and that the security is adequate to protect the federal reserve bank from loss.

"A federal reserve bank should not discount such paper," the board said, "unless it appears that the proceeds of such discounts will be used to finance current business operations and not for speculative purposes, for permanent or fixed investments or for any other capital purpose.

"Except with the permission of the federal reserve board, no such paper should be discounted if it appears that the proceeds will be used for the purpose of paying off existing indebtedness to other banking institutions."

The board cautioned the federal reserve banks that they should not make any commitments to renew or extend such paper or to grant further additional credit.

Gore Urges No Farm Board Cotton Be Sold Before 1933

Washington, July 31.—(AP)—Senator Gore [Dem., Okla.], in a letter to Chairman Stone of the federal farm board, urged today that no more farm board cotton be sold before Aug. 1, 1933. He expressed a belief that "tht price of cotton would materially advance" under such a policy. The Oklahoma senator also asked the board that after the date mentioned only 2,000 bales a day be marketed unless the price should rise to 12 cents a pound.

Sees Chemical Industry as Reaching Low Point

The chemical industry appears to have reached the low point of depression, but the immediate outlook does not indicate any more than slow seasonal improvement in aggregate chemical demand over the final half of the year, says the Fitch survey. Being a basic supply industry, drawing its business from every important channel of industrial activity, it should be in the forefront of business recovery, this review declares.

SEVERAL ENCOURAGING DEVELOPMENTS NOTED IN CHICAGO BUSINESS

Coincident with the sharp upswings all over the country in numerous commodity and security markets, several encouraging developments in general business marked the last week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. All indicated that the new price gains are based on something substantial. New expansions in wholesale grocery trade, hardware, drug and electrical sales were noticeable, most of which were contrary to the previous trend.

With the greater part of their attention devoted to preparations for an expected upturn in merchandise this fall, Chicago wholesalers and retailers experienced a week of sales typical of the season. Fair crowds were reported in the department stores, but buying was restricted almost entirely to "sales" items. With advance registrations for the interstate merchants' council meetings early in August running ahead of last year, wholesalers are more optimistic and are ready with extensive displays of all classes of merchandise and wearing apparel.

In the iron and steel industry opinion is becoming widespread that fundamental conditions are more favorable for a turn. Heavy melting steel scrap, price movements of which are sometimes regarded as a good index of general business, advanced 50 cents a ton in Chicago, the first rise in this market since January, 1931. The increase is the result of offers from Canada and prospective buying by a domestic mill.

New increases in employment also added to the better news of the week. Workers were added by a radio and automobile accessory company. With greater expansion in the local shoe trade, many men were reëmployed.

Hail Rail Stock Rise as Better Earnings Omen

New York, July 31.—Brokers considered it a favorable sign that the railroad stocks were able to record impressive advances last week in the face of their generally discouraging statements for June. The July figures are not expected to show any improvement, but realization of present hopes for a real uplift in trade in the fall would make the rail figures for the final few months of 1932 compare favorably with the earlier periods of the year.

BOOSTS TRADE ACCEPTANCES AS BUSINESS SPURS

New York, July 31.—The trade acceptance at this time strikes at the heart of the depression by providing a way for extending credit to hundreds of small business and industrial concerns whose financial statements would not entitle them to further consideration at the local banks, says W. S. Cousins in an article appearing in the current American Bankers' Association Journal.

It bids fair to regain the permanent position which it held prior to the boom and crash, and "from the purely banking standpoint the great advantage is its eligibility to rediscount at the federal reserve banks or to purchase in the open market by the federal reserve. Any extended use would in time provide a supply of choice trade bills which would pass 'through the market' in a manner similar to that of the bankers' acceptance which has become the mainstay of the American discount market."

A great deal of the criticism leveled at the banker in recent months arises directly from a misunderstanding of the function of commercial banking, according to Mr. Cousins in this article. "Had the banker unlimited resources and were he able to disregard entirely the question of the repayment of funds loaned, he would be in a position to lend a more receptive ear to many more of the requests for credit extension than those which at present come to his attention. The banker is merely the custodian of the funds of his depositors and he is charged with the responsibility of keeping these funds in such liquid condition that large drafts can be made upon the credits—deposits—by the depositors."

Reports Radio Set Sales Far Below 1931 Figure

Unit sales of radio receiving sets in the first half of the year were approximately 30 per cent under the comparable 1931 total, it is estimated in the current Fitch survey. The last half promises some slight improvement, but without material abatement of unemployment it is doubted that the radio set business will receive much of a lift, it is stated.

Abitibi Power Suspends Its Bond Interest

TORONTO, Ont., July 31.—(AP)—Payment of bond interest by the Abitibi Power and Paper company is suspended, the directors announced today, until the final adjustment of the Ontario Power Service situation and a "clearer view of the immediate future of business in general and the newsprint industry in particular" can be had.

The bond interest payments were due June 1 and the company then went technically in default. However, 60 days of grace expire tomorrow. Heavy obligations of the company incurred on behalf of the Ontario Power Service corporation were stated as reasons why interest was not met two months ago.

Lowest in Its History.

"Productions and deliveries of newsprint for the seven months ending July 31 were the lowest in the company's history," the directors stated. "In spite of the consequent adverse earnings, the company during the same period reduced its current bank loans from $3,400,000 as of Dec. 31, 1931, to the nominal amount of $300,000 as of July 31, 1932.

"The directors fully realize the importance of resuming bond interest payments at the earliest possible moment commensurate with permanence and financial stability, and all efforts of the management are being directed towards this end."

Offer by Ontario.

The Ontario government recently offered to take up the $20,000,000 Ontario Power Service bonds, issuing in their stead $18,000,000 of Ontario Hydro bonds and thus taking over the Abitibi Canyon Power development project. This offer has not yet been placed officially before the Abitibi company, parent of the Ontario Power Service.

"In the judgment of the directors," the statement said, "payment of bond interest should be further postponed pending the final adjustment of the Ontario Power Service situation."

FINANCE WORLD HOPES FOR BEST AS WEEK OPENS

Will Rally Continue? Every One Asks.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nw York, July 31.—The Wall street community faces the new week with mingled hope and anxiety. The stock market has been on the upgrade for the better part of two weeks now, its latest spurt having lasted for four active trading sessions without a break, and there are many who fear the phenomenon is "too good to last." A reaction of some sort is not only likely, they say, but is desirable if the list is to fortify its new advanced positions and get set for further gains.

On the other hand, the more enthusiastic of the bull element insists that so many shares have been selling for so long at "option" levels and so many more have been on the bargain counter at prewar price tag ratings or worse that the recovery has a long way yet to go before exhausting even its technical possibilities.

Hope for Revival.

Moreover, since the movement admittedly has little more for its basis than popular hopes of a fall revival, these dyed in the wool optimists can see no reason for calling bets off at this early stage of the game. "The whole hog or none" seems to be their motto. As for corrective measures, they are able to point to a whole series of setbacks already encountered at brief intervals since July 8 when the bear market lows of early June were duplicated.

It has been the common talk for

A CASH RESERVE

Setting aside reserve funds to provide for safety in periods of stress is one of the first rules of good management in business.

For individuals, too, a cash reserve is essential. A cash balance, earning interest in a savings account in a strong bank, gives the owner a feeling of safety and security. It assures the necessities of life and is a solid protection for emergencies; it is a source of permanent satisfaction and its value is always 100 per cent.

Deposit a fixed amount each week or month in this bank and build a substantial reserve—available when needed.

MUTUAL BANKS REPORT GAIN IN NEW ACCOUNTS

More Depositors than Ever Before.

Despite unemployment and decreased earning power mutual savings banks of the United States had a gain in new accounts for the first six months of 1932. Proof that a large section of the public is intensively "savings minded" was shown by the increase of 72,468 accounts between Jan. 1 and June 30, bringing the total of all accounts in mutual savings banks to 13,432,139, a high point for all time. The average of this great number of accounts amounted to $743.31 on June 30, a slight decrease from the average six months ago of $750.77. Savings bankers pointed out today that the best possible measure of savings activity is number of accounts rather than amounts involved.

Bank Surpluses Increase.

While accounts were growing the banks likewise increased their ratio of surplus to deposits. Six months ago the figure stood at 12.2 per cent for the whole group of mutual savings banks, operating in 18 states. On June 30 it was 11.5 per cent, or $1,111/2 for each $1 on deposit in mutual institutions. Such a gain under current conditions is looked upon as somewhat remarkable increase of a very large sum of money.

The surplus account showed a total of $1,143,809,760 on June 30, representing a rise of $20,556,787 from Jan. 1. This also was a record figure for all time.

In the six months period assets of the mutual savings banks declined by $18,195,611 to a grand total of $11,188,430,126, just below the peak figure on Jan. 1 and higher than the figure of a year ago by $53,318,867.

Deposits, in the same period, showed a tendency to fluctuate. New York had a net gain of $24,584,207, the best record in the 18 states. Twelve of these reported small decreases against gains in Delaware, Maine, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, and Oregon. Balancing gains against losses, the decrease for the country was $45,779,568, the total deposits being $9,984,243,517. It is an interesting sidelight that deposits for the whole year, June 30, 1931, to June 30, 1932, were increased by $7,275,536.

To Pay Large Sum.

The average interest rate on June 30 was 4.09 per cent in the 18 states, compared to 4.32 per cent six months ago. At this rate, the banks will pay about $409,000,000 during the year in the form of dividends. Every active mutual savings bank has paid its dividends, not only this year, but throughout the period since midsummer, 1929. The only effect of business conditions on depositors has been a lowering of rates, thereby adding to surplus, increasing the margin of protection.

Equitable Life Assurance.

Can you advise if Equitable Life Assurance society is safe? Are they able to make a go of it now that times are so hard?—B. A. W.

Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States was incorporated in 1859. Its capital stock was retired in 1925. It is now purely mutual.

Growth has been rapid and conservative. Insurance in force at the close of 1931 was seven billion, 91 million dollars, against three billion, 851 million dollars at the close of 1924 and one billion, 494 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1914. Admitted assets on Dec. 31, 1931, were one billion, 400 million dollars, against $725,612,600 on Dec. 31, 1924, and $536,377,000 at the close of 1914.

Income in 1931 was $368,285,000, and disbursements, including $54,982,000 dividends to policyholders, were $256,683,000.

On Dec. 31, 1931, 38 per cent of total admitted assets was mortgage loans, 30 per cent bonds (amortized basis), 19 per cent policy loans, 6 per cent stocks (June 30, 1931, market value), 2 per cent real estate and one per cent cash.

Securities with a cost of $509,034,000 had a convention value [bonds on amortized basis; stocks at June 30, 1931, market] of $501,270,000.

Expenses are low and mortality rate is favorable. Policyholders' surplus appears sufficient for all contingencies and the reserve basis is strong.

The company has an excellent reputation.

Walworth Company.

We would appreciate it if you would give us an individual report on Walworth company 6s, due 1945.—S. R. R.

Walworth company, established in 1872, is the second largest manufacturer of valves, fittings, etc., in the United States. It also produces pipe and pipe wrenches.

Normally the oil industry and the building industry each takes about one-fourth of total output, and industrial replacement about one-third. Last year 60 per cent of output was for industrial replacement, 12 per cent for the oil industry and 10 per cent for new building.

Net loss for the first quarter of 1932, after interest of $155,000, was $218,000. Net loss, after interest of $157,000, was $540,000 for the corresponding 1931 period.

The company suffered a loss of $1,431,000 before fixed charges of $647,000 in 1931. Charges were earned 1.22 times in 1930, 3.92 times in 1929 and 1.53 times in 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $7,066,000 and current liabilities were $1,749,000. Cash was $825,000 and notes payable were $955,000.

VERNON HOTEL OWNERS LINE UP WITH REGULARS

Stone Committee Wins Second Round.

BY AL CHASE.

Round two in the fight between rival committees for the bonds of the Vernon hotel at 758 West Jackson boulevard seems to be a victory for the regular body, judging from the wallop handed the independents in the shape of an agreement signed by the owners of the property to go along with the regular H. O. Stone & Co. bondholders' protective committee, headed by Avery Brundage. Other members of the committee are Horatio B. Hackett, secretary; Charles R. Moderwell, Francis R. Blossom, and J. L. Kraft.

H. B. HACKETT.

The independents announced last week that the owners had agreed to turn over the entire profits of the hotel for use in paying a reduced rate of interest and retiring bonds.

On Saturday morning, July 30, however, the owners, Meyer Levin, Sophie Shapiro, and Louis C. Cohen, signed an agreement with the regular bondholders' protective committee to coöperate fully in reorganizing the property.

Tax Situation Serious.

In a letter to be sent to the bondholders, the regular bondholders' protective committee points out a serious tax situation, ignored by the independent committee in its recent statement. Nothing has been paid on 1928, 1929, 1930, or 1931 taxes, which total approximately $36,000.

"It is evident that unless considerable relief is obtained in the County court it will take the entire net income of the property for a period of at least one and one-half years to clear up the tax situation" the regular committee states in its letter.

"It is proposed that, at the expiration of the period of grace provided for in the trust deed, a bill of complaint will be filed to foreclose the first mortgage trust deed. Either a receiver will be appointed or the owners will furnish a bond in lieu of receiver and all of the income will be secured to the bondholders.

Will Surrender Bonds.

"If sufficient bonds are deposited then the foreclosure bill may be dismissed; otherwise, the proceeding will be completed. If a sufficient number of bonds is deposited then the owners have agreed to surrender for cancellation bonds aggregating $26,000 now owned or controlled by them, thus reducing the total bond issue to $200,000, and thus enhancing the security of the bondholders.

"Everyone further agreed to pay all court costs and masters' fees, commissions, etc., if the foreclosure is completed, thus eliminating this expense for the bondholders. If a sufficient number of bonds is deposited the owners also agree to supply $4,500 cash to apply on account of committee fees, etc.

Plan New Corporation.

When the title is cleared title is to be vested in a new building corporation which will execute a new bond issue maturing July 1, 1939. The present management will continue under supervision of the committee.

"Conservative estimates of income and expenses indicate that as soon as the present unpaid taxes are liquidated, then the net income from the property should be sufficient to pay interest on all of the first mortgage bonds at the rate of 4% and to retire annually 3% of the principal thereof," the committee states.

The original bond issue was for $260,000, since paid down to $230,000. It was underwritten by H. O. Stone & Co. at 6½% interest. The four story building contains 166 rental rooms.

OPEN COAL CO-OP 'ANTI-TRUST SUIT IN SOUTH TODAY

Asheville, N. C., July 31.—(AP)—The United States government's far reaching anti-trust suit against 136 coal operators of West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky will be heard before a special three judge court beginning in Asheville tomorrow.

Senior Circuit Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte, N. C., and Circuit Judges Elliott Northcott of Huntington, W. Va., and Morris A. Soper of Baltimore, will comprise the special court. Officials and participants today estimated the hearing will last ten days or two weeks.

The suit, charging that 136 coal operators in these four states violated the Sherman anti-trust law through a combination of members as Appalachian Coals, Inc., for the purpose of coöperating in the marketing of coal, was filed by the government last June. Conspiracy to monopolize trade and set prices is charged. The suit is regarded as a friendly action to determine just how far the Sherman law goes in controlling the formation of coöperative groups.

RELIANCE MANUFACTURING.

The earnings of the Reliance Manufacturing company for the first six months of 1932 were $90,707.36 after all charges as compared to earnings of $260,048.08 for the first six months of 1931. After preferred dividends the earnings applicable to the common stock were equal to 11 cents per share. The operation for the second quarter of 1932 resulted in a loss of $10,-794.80 due to inventory losses occasioned by a sharp decline in the price of raw materials.

JULY BANNER MONTH OF YEAR IN BOND MART

Rail and Other Issues Fare Better.

New York, July 31.—(AP)—The bond market continued to move forward last week, making one of the best showings of the year and carrying on July's record of advancing prices.

The market averages did not show a single day's loss throughout the month. The composite for 60 corporate loans was up more than 7 points, that of 20 industrials and carriers more than 9, and 20 utilities around 5.

Rail Bonds Better.

Sentiment continued to improve during the week and numerous railroad and industrial bonds, long in the "unwanted" class, reached new high levels for the year. Oils were among the principal gainers, the belief being general that the petroleum companies were now operating "out of the red."

Although the railroads showed better earnings as a whole, they were aided, market-wise, by reports from Washington that the Reconstruction Finance corporation might decide to loan them money for repairs and maintenance, but not, it was understood, for new equipment.

Treasury Success Helps.

Another factor that helped was the heavy oversubscription of the treasury's August 1 offering of $650,000,000 and 2¼ and 3¼ per cent notes. The United States government section held firm and various issues attained the new high peaks of 1932.

Foreign loans were irregular. The Argentines had a relapse and the Germans weakened at one time, but both rallied later. The Austrians slumped when interest funds for the league of nations' 7 per cent issue of 1923-43 were not forthcoming. British and Australian bonds eased, along with those of Japan.
